Assessment Answers

by James Burley

Q. I live in the middle of the block. In checking throughout my neighborhood, I found that the corner lot is assessed for less than mine is. Since corner property is more valuable, why should it be assessed for less than mine?

A. One very simple reason could be that the size of the lot on the corner is smaller.

Another reason could be that the corner lot has an irregular shape or its topography is bad. A steep slope which would cause maintenance problems for the owner could also affect its value. The physical characteristics might make it the least desirable lot of all. These are fairly obvious possibilities proving that we cannot always assume with any assurance of accuracy that a corner property is always more valuable.

Many factors affect land values, and one of them is the corner influence. But the corner influence itself must be determined by a careful analysis. The influence of a corner on land value will vary from year to year and location to location.

Traditionally, there has been a preference for corner property, and home buyers paid a premium — sometimes as much as twenty-five percent — for them. Consequently, since they were more valuable, they were assessed higher than neighboring properties. But this preference is not so strong as it once was.

The desire for corner property is on the wane. One factor influencing this is the spiraling costs of energy and the need to conserve fuel.

In townhouses and row homes, the end homes are harder to heat than are interior ones with protection on both sides. As a result, the demand for them is increasing to the extent that, in some instances, inner homes are selling for as much as the end ones.

In some situations, a corner property might actually be a detriment. People could be using the side yard for a short cut. Some corner properties become major, pedestrian thoroughfares. Children in the neighborhood might tend to congregate at the corner and use it as a playground, and trespassing might be all but impossible to control.

If a traffic signal or bus stop is located at the corner, the lights, litter, noise, and noxious fumes that these conditions often generate could adversely affect the value of the properties at that corner.

Maintenance and lawn upkeep are greater for corner properties. Even snow removal from the sidewalk can be a big problem — especially if the owner is handicapped or elderly — and one that might easily be overlooked.

Under ideal conditions, a house well situated on a corner lot might still command a premium price, but we can never say that all corner lots are better than interior ones.

Time has definitely had its impact upon the importance that was once placed on a corner lot. Appraisers are finding it increasingly difficult to find a measurable difference in value between a corner lot and an interior one. The assessors, who are consigned to follow the trend rather than set the pace, can no longer place the same emphasis on corner influences as previously.

Q. My house has two bedrooms. My neighbor has a three bedroom house. In spite of that, we are both assessed alike. Why?

A. A third bedroom in a home will contribute to its total value, but the specific influence can be hidden by many other factors. Since you have not mentioned any other differences, I must assume that your neighbor's home is similar to yours. If you live in a newer development, your homes may even have been built by the same builder.

Two homes, each twenty feet by forty feet, might have any number of rooms and room arrangements but, other things being equal, could have the same or close assessments. In the cost approach, one technique used by the assessor in finding value, the square footage of the structure will be an important consideration. As a matter of record, assessors would want to know and would attempt to determine the number of rooms, but the final assessment would be based more on the size and quality of the houses.

If the housing market indicates that a three bedroom home is bringing a significantly different price than a two bedroom home of roughly comparable size, then an adjustment would be made. it is not unusual in two homes of the same size to find that the square footage of all three bedrooms in the one home is no greater than the square footage of the two bedrooms in the other home. And the two bedrooms could have larger closets.

There was a time — not too long ago — when a two bedroom home was not so saleable as a three bedroom home. This is no longer true. Today, two bedroom homes are commanding top prices in the market. Part of the reason is due to the fact that families are smaller. Another is due to the liberalization of lending policies by banks and other financial institutions. For example, older couples can frequently get 30-year financing which was practically impossible only a few years ago. Moreover, many singles — perhaps more women than men — are now purchasing homes and maintaining separate, one-person households, setting a trend for what was formerly an uncommon practice. Banks and most lending institutions were reluctant to make mortgage loans to single persons, women in particular falling victims to this attitude.

Taking another approach, if your homes are different and not of similar size, other factors such as style and design might mean a difference in the assessment. Certainly the quality of construction, embracing both craftsmanship and materials, could cause your home to carry a higher value. Still other causes could be the ages of the two homes — if they were not built at the same time — and their relative degree of repair, deterioration, or neglect.

In either case, whether or not they are alike, there might still be another reason, for instance, an assessor error. This situation could readily be determined by examining your property description card during your first hearing. You should verify that the assessor is aware of the differences in the properties, and you should be satisfied that he has analyzed the cost indices and market sales data sufficiently.

The important thing is that the marketplace no longer differentiates between two and three bedroom homes. The present day emphasis is more on the total size of the structure than on the number or configuration of the rooms.

q. How do property owners present their argument that the sales analysis method results in assessing their property too high since personal property is included in the sales figure?

A. From a sound business standpoint, personal property should not be included in the sales price of residential real estate but should be negotiated as a separate transaction. The settlement attorney will usually be careful to extract any amount in the sales figure for personal property when he presents the deed for transfer and recording, because the property transfer tax is figured on the total amount of the consideration.

Personal property consists of such items as draperies, rugs, refrigerators, furniture, garden equipment, and tools. Often the line between what is considered part of the real property and what is considered personal property is very indistinct. A window air conditioner is always considered personal property, whereas central air conditioning is always included as part of the real estate. Wall to wall carpeting would be considered part of the home because its installation is considered more or less permanent. Area rugs, although they also serve as floor covering, would be considered personal property because they can be rolled up and taken when the owner moves.

A guideline, to differentiate between real estate and personal property, is that, if the item can be taken and is normally taken when an owner sells his home then it is personal property. If it is built into the home or affixed more or less permanently, as a built-in oven would be, then it is considered part of the home.

Actually, the percentage of real estate transactions that include personal property of a significant aggregate value is small. Sometimes the personal property is thrown in as an added attraction to help sell the property. In one recent sale, a couple sold their boat along with their property because they were moving into an apartment. The boat sale should have been listed as a separate transaction.

Allowances should be made in the appraisal so that the assessment represents the value of the real property after the value of the personal property has been extracted. The property transfer record, which is filed with the assessments office, has a section to denote whether personal property was included. This document is available to public inspection, and property owners can check this to verify if the personal property was included in the price. The property owner can also request the assessor to check his assessment to make sure that the value of any personal property is subtracted and not made a part of the assessment. The assessor will also review the information and make the appropriate adjustments in his sales analysis.

Assessors are now beginning their work for the assessments that will become effective January 1, 1979. They are using sales data that results from transactions occurring in 1977. While the law requires that assessment be at fifty percent of market value, assessors are using sales data on transactions that occurred at least a year earlier. This has the effect of providing an additional percentage cushion, which in most cases more than compensates for any personal property that might be included in a sale.

Generally, second hand personal property items have a greatly depreciated value from what they had when they were new, and they have a relatively minor effect on the sales price. For this reason, the impact of personal property upon the total assessment is minimal.

Questions or letters of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers — James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

Two Companies Respond Thursday To Truck Fire

A truck fire inside the garage at Hill Top Fruit Market early Thursday morning caused extensive damage to the cab of the truck, and some damage to the roof of the garage.

Grantsville firemen were called at 6:06, with an assist call going to Eastern Garrett County. Grantsville responded with four pieces of equipment and approximately 20 men, while Eastern Garrett sent two pieces of equipment and four men.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined, but may have been due to a short in the truck wiring. No one was in the building at the time the fire started. The garage is the property of Chester McFarland.

Firemen returned to the station shortly before 8 a.m.

By
Congressman Goodloe Byron
Maryland—Sixth District

This regular column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with the citizens of Central and Western Maryland. You may send your questions to me, in care of the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. While space is obviously limited for printing all replies, I will answer each of you who writes. The following questions are typical of those asked of me in recent weeks:

How do I obtain a Golden Age Passport?

The Golden Age Passport is a lifetime permit which allows citizens 62 years of age or older free entrance into our national parks, monuments and recreation areas. The passport also provides fifty percent discounts on Federal "use" fees charged for facilities and services within the Federal areas, such as camping fees. For further information you may write Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, Department of the Interior South, Washington, D. C. 20240.

What are you doing to curb Federal spending?

I have always believed that Congress must exercise fiscal restraint in order to reduce the budget deficit. In this regard, I have sponsored legislation to require that the Federal government balance its budget, except in times of national emergency. I have also consistently opposed spending tax money for the foreign aid and have introduced legislation in Congress to require that all bills proposing government regulations must contain an estimate of the direct and indirect costs of complying with the bill.

Is it possible for miners to receive benefits for partial disability due to Black Lung?

No. The law restricts benefits to miners who are totally disabled from Black Lung disease. However, dependent survivors may now be entitled to Black Lung benefits if the miner died on or before March 1, 1978, and worked at least 25 years in the coal mines prior to June 30, 1971. The miner's dependent survivors must supply the Department of Labor with whatever medical evidence is available.

What is the maximum FHA insured mortgage amount for houses?

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has increased the maximum FHA insured mortgage amount for one-family residences from $45,000 to $60,000 and has also reduced the amount for down payment.

Two Baltimore Natives Invent Vacuuming Robot

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Two Baltimore natives have formed a company to market a robot that can be programmed to remember the layout of a house and do the vacuuming without the aid of humans.

William D. Hillis and David L. McClees, both 21 and graduates of Baltimore area high schools, have established Terrapin Inc., in Boston, Mass., to produce the household-chore robot called "Turtle."

McClees said the device has little commercial or labor-saving applications, but could become more useful if it develops more memory accuracy. He said it is primarily of interest to computer hobbyists.

The "Turtle," which will retail for about $300, is a two-wheeled unit about the size of a box turtle that travels at six inches a second.

The robot, which flashes lights and beeps, bumps its way around the home using a small computer to learn the floor plan, which it stores in its memory. The robot then can draw the floor plan with a pen.

"We have thought about putting on half-tracks instead of wheels," he said. "They could be used in supertankers to check for poisonous gases."

The turtles will be manufactured in a loft the two men have opened in Boston after incorporating the company and pumping in $15,000 of their own money and funds from other investors.

"We are not sure of the size of the market," said McClees. He said besides hobbyists, educators may want to use the robot for computer classes.

McClees, a graduate of Towson Senior High, began work in the computer business at a summer job at Westinghouse's software systems facility near the Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

McClees, an economics major at Harvard University, said he is considering commercially developing the robots with vacuum cleaners for home use.

Hillis, a mathematics major, will graduate this month from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The robot was developed at MIT's Artificial Intelligence Laboratory.

In loving memory of our mother and grandma, Pauline N. Paugh, who passed away one year ago, May 25, 1977.
It's been a year loving mom, since God took you away;
It's been lonesome here at home and all along the way.
We didn't know that beautiful day we took you for a ride;
That God would take you home with him, to be by His side.
We loved you Mom and Grandma with all our hearts, while you were here with us; And now that you are gone away, we miss you very much.
Sadly missed by son, daughter and grandchildren

But the love, care and kindness we shared, will always be here to stay.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. We have just started shopping for a home and found the prices to be very high. Should we wait in hopes that prices will lower?

A. Chances are home prices will go even higher; part of the reason is inflation. Investing in a home now before prices go higher is one of the best hedges against inflation. Keep in mind that next year's "bargain" price may be today's going price.

Send in your questions to our office. All questions will be answered.

Edwards Named TCC Chairman

George C. Edwards, commissioner from Garrett County, was elected chairman of the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland at the seventh annual meeting at The Village Inn Thursday.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Mary Ellen Sollinger, Allegany County, vice chairman; and Barry Teach, county administrator of Washington County, secretary-treasurer.

Mayor Varner Paddack, Hagerstown, chairman of the personnel committee, reported that his committee is still interviewing applicants for the position of executive director. Edward I. Heath, the original executive director, announced his resignation last fall but it was not effective until March.

Herbert B. Cahan, Secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development, was guest speaker at the Wednesday banquet.

His topic, the Maryland Economy, followed the Acting Governor Blair Lee's annual economic report, and brought out several points released in the governor's economic development strategy May 15.

Economic indicators show that jobs in Maryland grew faster than in the nation in only one sector — state and local government. In manufacturing, jobs grew at less than one-third of the national rate.

To stimulate the economy, Mr. Cahan related, the Governor and his advisors plan five areas of concentration: create a more favorable business environment, develop facilities and programs to support new job and income opportunities; attract and encourage new investments, improve utilization of existing resource, and harness the development resources of the public and private sectors.

The Governor had stated he feels sure that many public works are needed, especially "the long-stalled completion of the two missing links of the National Freeway, between Hancock and Cumberland."

He also gave high priority to dredging of the Baltimore Harbor, and energy development, "particularly any cost-effective process that will let us use more Maryland coal in Maryland."

A planning and Economic Development committee meeting was held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, followed by a luncheon with A. Michael Maher, senior scientist, energy staff, U. S. Department of Commerce, as guest speaker. His topic concerned future energy development.

The annual meeting with election of officers was at 1:30 p.m.

Garrett County representatives to the council, which was formed to advance the economic development of Western Maryland, in addition to George Edwards are Mrs. Frances Riley, Charley B. Miller, Commissioners Wayne Hamilton and Don Bender, Lowell Bender and Col. J. Haig Jackson.

Following a special band and choral presentation Thursday night at Dennett Road Elementary School, friends and colleagues of music teacher, Harold Hudnall, presented him with a parchment scroll in recognition of his efforts. Rumor Hurts . . .

As we have stated several times before, Garrett Countians are blessed with a rather high quality of life here on the mountaintop. People here, for the most part, get a real kick just out of living. However, there is one popular pastime which we could all do without, that is, the creation and the spreading of rumors and gossip.

What amounts to nothing more than pure, unadulterated hogwash is passed off as fact and then spreads like wildfire, growing in intensity along the way.

Rumors seem to be the most abundant after a tragedy occurs, such as the disastrous fire last week which took the lives of three of our citizens.

The family of the victims of this horror story surely suffered enough, without the added negative effects of outrageous stories which people have originated through nothing but speculation and sensationalism. These insane rumors are tossed about as facts, but haven't an ounce of substance or proof. The only person who would know positively if there were foul play surrounding this particular case would be the medical examiner, and he ruled that there was no foul play whatsoever.

People should learn to keep silent until those in charge can investigate, find the real facts and then be given a chance to release those facts via either radio or newspaper.

This particular phenomenon is common in all rural areas. It would be wonderful if Garrett County could become an exception.

Rumor is like a disease. It is contagious, infectious and it can hurt.

"Distress" Areas Selected For Urban Program

Garrett and Allegany counties and 11 towns in the two counties were listed by the Treasury Department last week as among 12,000 communities which would qualify as distressed areas under President Carter's proposed urban program.

Area communities include Deer Park, Oakland, Friendsville and Kitzmiller. In Allegany county, Cumberland, Barton, Frostburg, Midland, Lonaconing, Lake and Westernport were listed.

In addition, Hagerstown, Hancock, Smithsburg and Williamsport in Washington County would qualify, as would the county as an entire area.

If the legislation is approved, they would be eligible to apply for federal aid under the industrial development bond and differential investment tax credit provisions.

The legislation would grant tax exemption to small issue bonds up to $20 million for industrial development in blighted areas, and would allow businesses an extra five percent tax credit for investments in such communities.

The formula excludes about two-thirds of the nation's 39,000 cities, counties and towns. However, many communities may be able to get aid for "pockets of poverty" within their areas.

The goal is to direct aid under the urban program to the communities which need it most.

The funds have not been set, but under the investment tax credit program, areas would get $41 million in 1979, $132 million in 1980 and $114 million in 1981.

To be eligible, an area must have three of the four following criteria:

Its unemployment rate is above the national average; its five-year growth rate of employment, population, per capita income or industrial output is below the national average; its five-year growth rate of manufacturing employment is below the national average; or its per capita income is below 80 percent of the national average.

TRAGEDY SCENE — Oakland firefighters sift through debris of a house which burned to the ground last Thursday night on the Sunnyside Road. Three residents of the home perished in the blaze which had totally engulfed the structure upon arrival of the fire department. The victims were Elden W. Fike, 31, and his two daughters, Jennifer and Rebecca, age eight and six. (See story).

Father And Two Children Die When Fire Destroys Their Home Thursday

Joint services were held Monday afternoon at the Durst Funeral Home for three members of one family who lost their lives when their home located on Sunnyside Road, six miles south of Oakland, burned to the ground last Thursday night.

The victims of the tragedy were Elden William Fike, 31, and his two daughters, Jennifer Louise Fike, eight, and Rebecca Marie Fike, six.

Oakland firefighters were called to the scene at about 10:50 p.m. and found the two-story dwelling totally involved in flame. The blaze was discovered by Mr. Fike's brother-in-law, Lonnie Bentley, who lives near-by. Mr. Bentley ran over to the Fike residence after another relative of the victim heard an explosion.

Bentley told investigators that he heard another explosion when he arrived at the house. The fire was so intense that Mr. Bentley was unable to enter the residence.

The wife of Mr. Fike, and the mother of the dead children, Mrs. Dottie Fike, was away from the house at the time of the blaze.

The bodies of the victims were found near the center of the house, according to Robert Shimer, Deputy State Fire Marshal, who investigated. The victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James Feaster, deputy county medical examiner for Garrett County.

Also at the scene were the Deer Park Fire Department, the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Maryland State Police and Garrett County Sheriff's Department personnel. Assisting in the investigation were Robert Friend, criminal investigator for State Police in Garrett County; William Ferry, Garrett County State's Attorney's Office criminal investigator, and Deputies Van Evans and Truman Paugh, Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

Autopsies performed at Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland revealed that all three victims died of asphyxiation by smoke inhalation. Dr. Feaster stated that the various rumors circulating the area claiming foul play are "absolutely and positively untrue." He stated that there will be no further investigation.

Mr. Shimer stated that the fire most likely originated in the basement of the dwelling when gasoline vapors from a power mower were ignited by a hot-water tank located nearby. He said the explosions could have resulted from several things, as there were three motorcycles, at least one power mower, a five-gallon can of gasoline and a rather large quantity of gunpowder all in the basement garage.

Mr. Shimer issued an appeal to the public to keep all gasoline equipment such as power mowers, motorcycles and container of gasoline away from heat sources. He said people should provide outside storage for these items.

Mr. Fike was born in Oakland on July 13, 1946, and was a son of Emerson H. and Helen (Sanders) Fike, of Oakland.

He was a member of the Oak Park Church of the Brethren and WOW Camp 80. He was employed as a lineman by the C&P Telephone Company.

Surviving besides his parents and his widow, Mrs. Dorothy Jane (Glaze) Fike, are a brother, Emerson H. Fike, Jr., Deer Park; three sisters, Mrs. Pamela Bentley, Mrs. Linda Bentley and Mrs. Mary Steyer, all of Oakland.

Jennifer Louise Fike, eight, was born February 8, 1970, and was a second grade student at Red House Elementary School. She was a member of WOW Rangerette Unit J-112. Rebecca Marie Fike was born December 16, 1971, and was also a member of WOW Rangerette Unit J-112.

Besides their mother, they are survived by their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Frank Glaze, Oakland, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Fike, Oakland.

Services were conducted by the Rev. Paul Crumley and Rev. Charles Teets. Interment was in the Eglon Cemetery.

Fire Levels Large Barn In Bittinger

A large barn in Bittinger was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon after it was struck by lightning.

The barn, owned by Mrs. Martha Emory and used by her son and daughter-in-law, William and Thelma Emory, is located off Route 495 near Bittinger. The fire was reported about 4:15 p.m.

The family was not at home at the time of the fire, which was reported by neighbors. Fire companies responding included Bittinger, Grantsville and Accident.

No livestock was in the barn at the time. Equipment lost included the family's lawn mower and accessories and a lawn mower belonging to the Bittinger cemetery association. Also destroyed in the fire were new kitchen cabinets stored in the barn.

Although Bittinger's fire company reported swiftly, the fire had gained too much headway. Firemen were able to protect a storage building 50 feet away and a dwelling 100 feet away. The loss reportedly will be covered by insurance, according to Robert Shimer, fire investigator for Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Weather

Warm and partly cloudy — with a slight chance of a thundershower in the central and east portions — highs in the upper 70s or lower 80s. Fair tonight — low in the 50s to around 60. Sunny and quite warm Thursday — high in the low or mid 80s.

Funding Approval Given For Gorman Water System, To Serve 100 Customers

Formal funding approval was received late last week for the Gorman Water System, according to Tom Jones, director of the Garrett County Development Corporation.

Total project cost will be $561,000, with water to be purchased from the Mt. Top Public Service District at Mt. Storm.

The project, which has been in the planning stages for the past two years, will connect with the West Virginia system at Gormania and provide service for Gorman and for residents along Route 50 to Table Rock at the top of Backbone Mountain. At Table Rock there will be a ground storage tank. A total of 100 customers have signed up for the service.

Of the total cost, $266,600 will be from a Farmers' Home Administration grant; $134,300 from an Appalachian Regional Commission grant; $97,900 from the Garrett County Commissioners, to be paid with coal tax monies; and the remainder, $62,200, from an FHA loan made out to the Garrett County Sanitary Commission.

The loan would be repaid from revenue generated by use of the system.

To inform all potential users of project progress, the County Commissioners plan a public meeting June 8, at 8 p.m., at the Gorman Fire Hall.

Those involved in the planning will be finished with the final engineering work in late September or in October of this year. Bids will probably be advertised shortly thereafter, the bid awarded in November, and construction work should begin in the spring of 1979.

Buser Responds To Allocation Of Education Funds

The Garrett County Commissioners indicated last week to Board President Herbert G. Harman, Assistant Superintendent Jerome Ryscavage, and Dr. William H. Buser, Superintendent of Schools, they planned to allocate four hundred thousand additional county dollars ($400,000) for next school year. The Commissioners stated they are providing sufficient funding to provide the salary increases agreed upon to all employees, to open Northern Middle School, and to fund textbooks at a higher level.

Dr. Buser stated, "The public interested in improving schools should know this means a $391,000 cut in school board operating budget requests. It assumes: that heat and light will cost the same as this year; that students will not use more paper or library supplies, that postage and mailing expenses will remain the same; that publishing, printing, and advertising costs will remain the same or that the school system should do less publishing, printing, and advertising; that worn out audio-visual equipment, cars and trucks will need less repairs next year than this school year; that important minimal field trip experiences for students should not be provided at public expense; that employee fringe benefit costs and extra duty compensation will remain the same as this school year; that the cost of property, liability, and vehicle insurance will remain the same; that service contracts for complex heating systems and printing equipment will remain the same or can be eliminated.

"According to many political observers, we will continue in one of the highest periods of inflation when the same dollars buy even less. For our public who expects more to be done better by the schools, Dr. Buser indicates much will need to be eliminated from the budget request submitted by the Garrett County Board of Education. The authority to change the current amount of funding available remains that of the County Commissioners."

$65,500 Slated For Safety Projects

The Maryland Department of Transportation recently committed $65,500 in federal funds for four transportation safety projects in Garrett County.

Funds will be used for such varied safety programs as the purchase of radar equipment for law enforcement, a traffic engineering study and the purchase of ambulance equipment to improve emergency medical services.

The funded projects for Garrett County, to date, are:

Oakland — $24,700 to the Oakland Police Department to purchase traffic radar equipment and to train radar operators.

$12,000 to the Garrett County Sheriff Department to train radar operators and to purchase radar equipment for law enforcement.

Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Grantsville — $7,800 to purchase equipment to improve ambulance service and to comply with federal standards for emergency vehicles.

Under the Highway Safety Program, the department will commit a total of $2.8 million in federal funds for state-wide transportation safety projects during fiscal 1978.

GUESTS OF HONOR — These World War I veterans were guests of honor at Memorial Day ceremonies held yesterday at the Oakland cemetery. Delegate DeCorsey Bolden was the speaker for the event. Ceremonies were also conducted by the Knights of Pythias of Oakland, and the Southern Highlander Marching Band presented several selections. The local Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans, the Gold Star Mothers and local Girl Scouts decorated the grave of the unknown soldier with wreaths and flowers. Pictured left to right are Clarence Mersing, Jack Williams, Ed Shaffer, Chance Gower, Richard Maroney and Prentice Watson.

OAKLAND'S LATEST LOT — Ribbon cutting ceremonies for Oakland's new parking lot, located on Liberty Street, immediately preceded the Memorial Day parade yesterday morning. Doing the honors was Mayor H. D. Swartzentruber, center. At left is Ernie Gregg, president of the Downtown Oakland Merchant Association, and at right, James R. Stanton, president of the Oakland Town Council. The new lot, which will be open for parking in the near future, will accommodate approximately 40 cars. Benches, trees and planters will be added to the lot for aesthetic and rest purposes. The lot will eventually have a pay-as-you-enter gate and provisions will also be made for monthly rental.

In 1965 she began employment with the Garrett County Board of Education, first in the capacity of instructional secretary and supply clerk and in 1974 transferring to the department of cafeteria and transportation as an accountant secretary.

Mrs. Lewis is a member of the Crellin United Brethren in Christ Church and is director of the Bible School there.

Mrs. Lewis is the mother of three children: Stanley E. Weese, an English and psychology teacher at Northern High School, currently residing with his wife and daughter at Mt. 132 Species Listed In May Bird Count

Only 132 species were spotted in Garrett County during the May 6 bird count sponsored throughout Maryland by the Maryland Ornithological Society.

Thirty-nine local observers counted throughout the daylight hours to gather a total of 6,859 birds, the second lowest number in seven years. A cold drizzle probably contributed to the reduced numbers sighted.

Last year's count was the record high, with 151 species, 8,544 individual birds and 46 observers.

Some birds spotted were unusual for a May count, including one whistling swan, spotted near Grantsville; and four species of shorebirds, with one black-bellied plover, two Wilson's phalarope, two Dunlin, and two common redpolls.

There was one lark sparrow sighted, south of Mt. Lake Park, the first reported sighting since 1926. The birds had nested in the county in the early 1900's.

Most often sighted was the evening grosbeak, with 554. Second was the red-winged blackbird, with 540, ousted from holding the most-frequently sighted for the first time in six years; barn swallow, 431; robin, 420, and chipping sparrow, 309.

Results will be published in the June issue of Maryland Bird Life, according to Mrs. Fran Pope, who directs the county count in Garrett County.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY OF MARYLAND

NOTICE OF PROPOSED REDUCTION IN TELEPHONE RATES AND PROPOSED CHARGES FOR CERTAIN CALLS TO DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Maryland has filed with the Public Service Commission of Maryland proposed revisions to its tariffs which provide for a reduction of 30 cents in monthly rates for basic residential telephone services and for charges for calls to Directory Assistance in excess of a specified allowance.

Under the proposed revisions, the monthly rates for residential services would be reduced by 30 cents coincident with the introduction of charges for calls to Directory Assistance.

The proposed revisions concerning Directory Assistance in general provide the following:

— For residential customers, there would be no charge in any month for the first 12 direct-dialed calls per line to local (411) and Maryland long distance (1 or 301+555-1212) Directory Assistance.

— For business customers, there would be no charge in any given month of the first 3 direct-dialed calls per line or trunk, or 3 calls per each 8 Centrex main stations.

— There would be a 20c charge for each direct-dialed call in a given month beyond the applicable allowance.

— However, there would be no charge for calls to Directory Assistance from the residential services of customers with physical or visual handicaps which keep them from using a telephone directory provided by the Company, or from coin telephones, hospitals, hotels, motels or mobile telephones.

— There would be no charge for calls to Directory Assistance outside of Maryland (area code +555-1212).

— Where the regular "0" operator was directed by a customer to connect the customer with Directory Assistance, a charge of 40c would apply on each such call.

The Commission has suspended the proposed revisions for a period of not more than 150 days from May 17, 1978, and instituted proceedings to consider the justice and reasonableness of the proposed revisions.

The proposed tariff revisions are available for inspection at the Public Service Commission, Room 904, 301 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland, and at the following Maryland offices of C&P Telephone: 179 Main Street, Annapolis; 2014 Mondawmin Mall and 323 North Charles Street, Baltimore; Harford Mall, 670 Bel Air Road, Bel Air; 411 Race Street, Cambridge; Morgnec Road, Chestertown; 123 South Liberty Street, Cumberland; Columbia Mall, Columbia; Talbottown Shopping Center, Easton; Frederick Shopping Center, Frederick; 16105 Shady Grove Road, Gaithersburg; 26 Baltimore-Annapolis Boulevard NW, Glen Burnie; 111 South Potomac Street, Hagerstown; 415 Pennington Avenue, Havre de Grace; 4307 Jefferson Street, Hyattsville; Landover Mall, Landover; 313 East Charles Street, La Plata; 312 Laurel Avenue, Laurel; 328 Washington Street, Leonardtown; 200 East Alder Street, Oakland; North Plaza Mall, Waltham Woods and Joppa Roads, Parkville; Salisbury Mall, Civic Avenue, Salisbury; 57 East Main Street, Westminster; Wheaton Plaza South Office Building, 11160 Viers Mill Road, Wheaton; and also at 130 North Main Street, Keyser, West Virginia; 428 West Main Street, Clarksburg, West Virginia; 145 Fayette Street, Morgantown, West Virginia.

Sir:

The Bureau of Mines has seriously weakened strip mining regulations in Maryland. It has recently authorized a number of practices, including —disposal of overburden offsite, or in head-of-hollow or valley fills.

—treatment of acid and toxic materials rather than burial.

—construction of dams from waste materials.

It also established standards which give an operator the right to release of the revegetation bond when the mined lands are from sixty to ninety percent covered with vegetation even though state officials and mine operators have repeatedly asserted a capability to see that mined lands are restored to equal or better than premining condition.

The state has offered as reason for its action, that it must conform to the Federal Surface Mining Act of 1977. However, this law specifically authorizes a state to continue or to require performance standards more stringent than are established federally. Under Maryland's earlier standards, revegetation has been increasingly improved, and the industry has prospered. Concurrently, the Bureau has assumed the right of approval of post-mining land use, and the right to determine that certain farm lands otherwise deemed of prime agricultural quality are not entitled to protection granted them by federal law. These determinations, the Coalition believes, are best made by county authority.

For the new regulations to be made permanent, the Bureau must hold a public hearing, scheduled for June 6 at 10 a.m. at Westernport. Until June 8 it will accept written comments. Public and civic organization officials, members of soil conservation districts, the recreation and second-home building industries and their potential employees, sportsmen, farmers, land owners who have leased their lands for mining and those who drink Potomac water may want to express to the Bureau their views on the changes, addressed to the Citizen's Coalition on Surface Mining, 912 Seton Drive, Cumberland.

For the Coalition,
Eugene D. Straub

Dear Editor,

In reference to your last week's letter regarding an incident which occurred at the recent Garrett County Special Olympics, I would like to clarify the Appalachian Adult Activities Center's involvement.

The participant involved was not from the Appalachian Adult Activities Center. The Center's buses arrived at this event on time and did not depart until all the Olympians had received their medals. Our Staff had been briefed and fully prepared for these olympics, and it is the concern of the Appalachian Adult Activities Center to give our fullest cooperation to worthwhile events of this nature.

Sincerely,
(Ms.) Jodie Bennett

Solar Corona

The outermost portion of the solar atmosphere is the solar corona. It is an unstable region which evaporates from the sun sending a stream of particles through space. This stream is called the solar wind, and may originate in coronal holes. These are areas of lesser radiation in the corona. Many phenomena observed on earth are caused by the solar wind. Radiation from the corona is in the extreme ultraviolet and soft x-ray region of the spectrum. This radiation must be studied above the atmosphere since it does not reach the earth.

Immunization Clinics Scheduled

Low cost immunization clinics are being offered again this spring in the county to protect dogs and cats from contracting and transmitting rabies. The clinics are made possible by the joint efforts of the Garrett County Health Department, Maryland State Division of Veterinary Medicine and the local veterinarians.

Dr. William W. Pope, Garrett County Health Officer, stresses that it is extremely important to have pets immunized against the rabies virus, especially in Garrett County where the pets are more likely to come into contact with wild rabid animals. By vaccinating a cat or dog, the chain of transmission of the virus from pets to humans is broken, eliminating the threat of obtaining rabies from the pet. Pets are more likely to contract the disease from a wild animal.

All dogs and cats over three months of age are required to have rabies vaccination. Cats are to be vaccinated each year, puppies three months of age or older to be vaccinated and require re-vaccination after 12 months, and dogs over one year of age only require vaccination every three years.

The clinics will be held at the following times and locations, for $2.50 per animal:

Oakland Armory, June 2nd, 6-9 p.m.

Grantsville Firehall, June 3rd, 1-2:30 p.m.

Accident Firehall, June 3rd, 3-4:30 p.m.

Oakland Armory, June 4th, 2-4 p.m.

Kitzmiller Community Building, June 7th, 6-7:30 p.m.

Contact local veterinarians or the Garrett County Health Department for more information.

Scouts In Action

The Deep Creek Pack 80 Cub Scouts have completed several activities so far this month. The scouts participated in a softball practice May 7th and later that same day they had a roller skating social.

They split a double-header softball game May 20 with Pack 45 of Friendsville losing the first game 15-14 and capturing the second game 11-10. The boys were coached by Gary Iden and several rematches are planned for the coming months.

The cubs have also been raising money to help support their summer activities. Winner of the lawn swing raffle was a resident of New Huntington, Pa. The swing was donated by Joe Dolan of Accident. Winning awards for number of tickets sold were Paul Frank, Jr., 48 tickets; Owen Dolan, Jr., 39 tickets; Bryant McKee, 25 tickets and Freddie Glotfelty, 22 tickets. The two highest sellers received a model for their efforts.

The pack was rechartered and new members and leaders were instituted during the May 23 monthly meeting. New cubs receiving Bobcats were Scott McKee, Greg Brenneman, Greg Iden, John Harmke, Bob Mansfield, John Beckman, Dwayne Noble, John Bowser, Danny Ahern and Brent Yoder.

Receiving the Bear were Mark Robeson and Owen Dolan, Jr. Advancing to Weblos were Mark Robeson and Owen Dolan, Jr. The Weblo Naturalist award was presented to Tim Everly, a three-year pin to Bryant McKee, two-year pin to Tim Illick and a one-year pin to Gordon Noble.

An installation of leaders and committee members was led by Nancy Frank, assisted by Bryant McKee, Tim Illick, Owen Dolan, Jr., Tim Everly, Mark Robeson and Brian Alexander. Den Leaders installed were, Suzanne Dolan, Joan Smoot, Donna Howard, Cathy Ghrist and Patty Glotfelty. Weblos leaders are Jim McKee and Ray Alexander and Den Chief for Den 1 is Danny Davis. New officers include Owen Dolan, Sr., Cubmaster; and Gary Iden, Assistant Cubmaster.

Officers continuing their posts are, Nancy Frank, Committee Chairman; Don Bowman, Institutional Representative; Patricia McKee Treasurer; Marilyn Illick, Secretary and song leader; and Judy Alexander, Outings. The meeting concluded with plans for the pack's participation in the Accident Memorial Day Parade, a uniform inspection and refreshments.

Brenneman Named To SCD Committee

Harley Brenneman was appointed to the Soil Conservation District Committee Monday by the Garrett County Commissioners.

He will fill the vacancy created by the death of Robert O. Glotfelty.

Mr. Brenneman owns and operates a farm in the Bittinger area.

Helmet Law Is Vetoed By Lee

Legislation to allow Maryland's motorcycle operators to decide whether or not to wear helmets was vetoed Monday by Acting Governor Blair Lee III.

Although Lee said it was with "considerable reluctance" he had decided to veto the measure, there was substantial evidence of more severe motorcycle accident injuries in states which have repealed mandatory helmet laws.

"I've come to the conclusion that those guys want to be free to splatter their brains all over the highway, but it's not going to be because I made it possible," Lee stated.

In referring to other bills during a press conference last Wednesday, Lee also said he would veto a bill which would have required the State Board of Public Works to hold all its meetings in public. Currently, its semi-monthly meeting is open to the public, but a meeting held before the formal meeting is closed.

The acting governor said there would be no useful purpose served by opening the informal meetings to the public.

Lee also planned to sign a bill that would prohibit chain stores and discount houses from selling beer and wine. "It's unfair to change the law now and have them (small liquor stores) eaten up by the large chains."

Lee said he would sign a bill requiring gasoline companies to sell wholesale gas to independent gas stations for four cents below the retail price at their company-owned stations.

Task Force Named To Check Services For Handicapped

State school superintendent David W. Hornbeck has appointed a task force to propose new certification standards to better equip teachers and other staff to provide appropriate services to all handicapped children as required by a new state bylaw.

The task force has been asked to recommend a basic core of skills for all special education teachers and specialized skills for teachers of more severely handicapped children. In addition, the task force will be considering the possibility of requiring general education teachers to receive some training in special education

In line with federal law, a new state bylaw currently requires that all handicapped children from 5 through 20 (and eventually from birth through 20) be provided "free and appropriate educational programs and related services" in the least restrictive environment, including regular classrooms. New certification standards are needed because current standards are not consistent with the bylaw and do not include standards for teachers of very young children.

Dr. Jean Hebeler of the University of Maryland, Special Education Department, is chairwoman of the task force. The group comprises representatives of local school systems, teachers' organizations, public interest groups, colleges, and the State Department of Education.

The months of April, May and June were three of the most action filled months of 1887; A large livery stable belonging to Mr. H. W. Hesson, on the corner of Wilson Street and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad depot, was entirely consumed by fire. "In order to save Mr. Hesson's residence, on the same lot, it was necessary to tear down a one-story building used as a feed store, situated between the stable and residence. Some sleighs, horses and a few harnesses were salvaged, but the loss came to over $1,000 with no insurance coverage. The origin of the fire was not known."

A tall, dark stranger stirred up the county in 1887 as he pulled off a very clever scheme; Registered at the Glades Hotel in Oakland, the stranger professed to be a commercial traveler for the Standard Tank Line Company of Pittsburgh. His plot was to sell merchants coal oil at a little below the regular market price and then sell a package of a peculiar sort of gunpowder at $36, always demanding cash for the powder. but selling oil on the usual time. "He hired a double team from a livery man here with which he drove through the northern end of this county, and then by way of Kingwood and Morgantown to Farmington, a town on the Baltimore & Ohio nearly a hundred miles west of Oakland. From Farmington he sent the team to Oakland after having kept it thirteen days without sending the money to pay the bill.

"One of the merchants to whom he sold, having his suspicions aroused, ascertained from Pittsburgh that there is no such firm as that named. None of the orders for coal oil or powder have been filled, and the man is ahead with the cash taken in for powder. It is not know how many merchants were taken in."

Animals were given a lot of attention that year when Mr. Richard Custer killed on his farm near Swanton, April 30, a swan which measured six feet 9 inches from tip to tip of wings. The neck measured three feet seven inches in length.

"On the 17th of April, 1887, a ewe on the farm of Mr. John Sines, near Oakland, gave birth to twin lambs, one of which had 5 legs, the fifth leg coming out behind the right shoulder and extending down to the knee of the right leg. The fifth leg has a perfect hoof. The lamb is living and doing well."

While that lamb was able to overcome its affliction, some animals were not; "A cow belonging to Mr. Charles Wamsley, residing near Oakland, gave birth to a calf last week with a back like that of a camel. The calf was dead."

Next week, we'll see what the summer held for the people of Garrett County in the year 1887.

AFS Student Chapter Elects

Judy Herring was chosen president of the American Field Service student chapter of Southern High School during recent elections.

Assisting her will be vice president Angie Lewis, treasurer Lois Filemyr, and secretary Sheila Donham.

The student chapter, with guidance from the local adult chapter, holds various fund-raising events to bring a foreign student into the community to spend a school year. Lolo Carette, this year's student, will be returning to her home in Arras, France July 1. A farewell covered dish picnic will be held June 25 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herring, her host family, beginning at 4 p.m.

The AFS student chapter receives a $100 donation each year from the Junior Woman's Civic Club to help with club projects. It is not known whether or not the local chapter will be hosting a student for the 1978-79 year, but such fund-raisings as dances, raffles and car washes will continue to help support the exchange program.

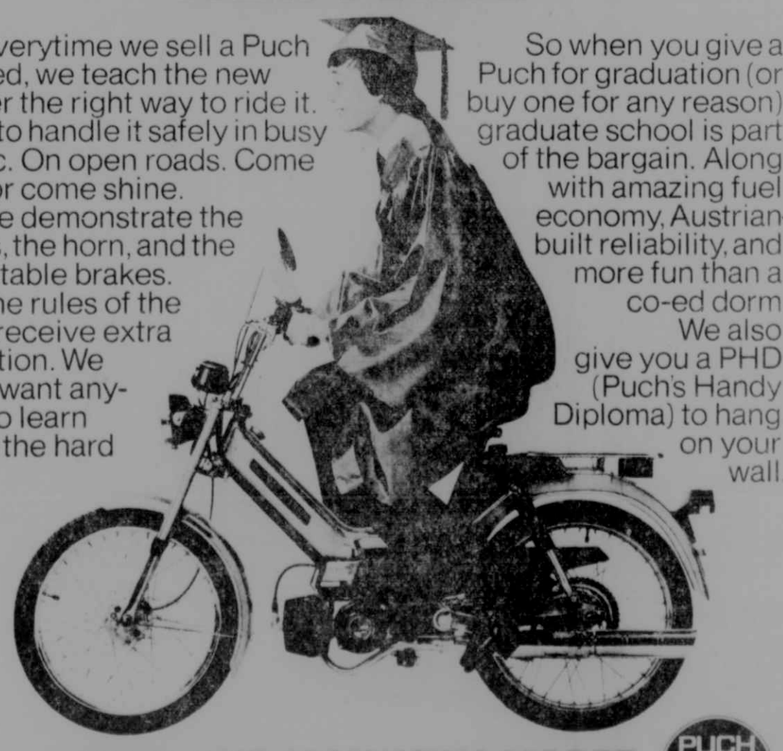
GIVE THE GRADUATE A PUCH AND WE'LL GIVE HIM A DIPLOMA.



Everytime we sell a Puch moped, we teach the new owner the right way to ride it. How to handle it safely in busy traffic. On open roads. Come rain or come shine.

We demonstrate the lights, the horn, and the adjustable brakes.

The rules of the road receive extra attention. We don't want anyone to learn them the hard way.

So when you give a Puch for graduation (or buy one for any reason) graduate school is part of the bargain. Along with amazing fuel economy, Austrian-built reliability, and more fun than a co-ed dorm.

We also give you a PHD (Puch's Handy Diploma) to hang on your wall.

FFA LAND JUDGING CONTEST for the western region was held May 25, pitting chapter members from North Garrett against Flintstone. Flintstone managed to defeat the Northern team. The contest was held at the Gale Kamp farm near Avilton, and was supervised by the Soil Conservation Service.

RECEIVE TROPHIES AFTER 47 YEARS — Garrett County Commissioner Wayne Hamilton, left, and William Harman, standing right, of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Division, were honored guests at the Northern High School FFA banquet last week. In the photo principal J. Kenneth Bittinger, seated, listens as Mr. Hamilton accepts a trophy cup which was circulated in the county for top FFA dairy judges in the early 1930's. Mr. Hamilton was the top judge in 1930 and Mr. Harman was the 1931 winner. The trophies had been stored at the Accident and Friendsville high schools and were then stored at Northern High after county consolidation. The Northern FFA members decided to award the trophies to the original winners as part of the National FFA 50th anniversary celebration. Mr. Hamilton served as State Vice President in 1930 and Mr. Harman served in that office in 1931. Viking photo.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU SMELL GAS.

Natural gas has no odor of its own. We add one for your protection. Here's what you should do if you smell gas.

If the odor is slight, and it's near an appliance, it may simply mean a pilot light is out and needs relighting. But if there's any doubt, give us a call.

If the odor is strong, leave the building. Don't flip the light switches. Don't use any other electrical equipment. Don't light a match or candle or try to find the leak yourself. Be sure everyone is out, and call us from a neighbor's phone.

If the odor is outdoors, call us immediately. Don't wait for others to do it.

You can reach us anytime. If you smell gas, one of our servicemen will come right to your home and make a thorough inspection.

Natural gas is one of the safest energies you can use. And together we'll keep it that way.

Cooking Corner

By Mariane

Sounds of running lawn mowers, smells of freshly mowed grass, fragrant lilacs and roasting hot dogs, touches of warm sunshine on our back and gentle breezes through our hair, sights of peaceful blue skies and children playing...oh yes, good weather is here. Good weather brings a myriad of outdoor activities to our county and among them are picnics and camping.

Picnics and camping can be safe and fun for everyone if a few basic rules are followed. For picnics, thoroughly chill all foods which are normally to be served cold before packing into an insulated chest for traveling. This would include all salads and desserts with eggs, creams, mayonnaise or salad dressings. It is a good idea to keep large blocks of ice ready in the freezer at all times during the summer months. Snap top plastic containers are ideal for this because they don't leak into freezer chests as they melt. These blocks of ice insure that cold foods in a freezer chest will stay cold.

Foods which are between the temperatures of 60 and 120 degrees can pose a great danger of bacteria growth if the foods are held for any length of time before being eaten. If you plan to cook your meats at your destination, keep them cold enroute. If you have precooked chicken or any other meat and your traveling time is more than a half hour, it should be transported cold and re-heated when you arrive. If you are forming hamburgers or the like at a picnic site, be sure to wash your hands thoroughly before handling other foods. Bits of meat under fingernails provide an ideal place for germs to grow quickly in warm weather. Don't leave foods sitting on a picnic table after people have eaten. Get them back into your freezer chest quickly. These are simple rules which most people know but which are easily disregarded when we're having fun on a picnic.

THREE BEAN SALAD

1 (1 Lb. can) cut green beans, drained	⅓ cup corn oil
1 (1 Lb. can) Kidney beans, drained	⅔ cup cider vinegar
1 (1 Lb. can) garbanzo beans, drained	⅔ cup sugar
1 medium onion, thinly sliced	½ tsp. salt
1 medium pepper, chopped	½ tsp. black pepper
Crumbled crisp bacon

KRAUT RELISH
By Dianne Rice

Toss together:
1 #2½ can sauerkraut, drained well
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
1 small jar pimentos (cut small)

Heat:
1½ cup sugar
½ cup vinegar
½ cup oil

Cool hot mixture and add to above ingredients. Marinate for 24 hours. Keeps indefinitely.

NUTRITION NOTE: If you own the cookbook "Woman's Day Crockery Cuisine" by Sylvia Vaughn Thompson, please read on. The recipe for Silky Caramel Slices in this cookbook is extremely dangerous and not to be used. The recipe will cause an explosion and the cookbook has been recalled because of it. It deals with cooking an unopened can of condensed milk in a crockpot. Never, never heat unopened cans of food anywhere because, at least, they may burst and cause serious burns.

Tip of the week: Keep a can and bottle opener in the car glove compartment. You won't find yourself at a picnic site with a can of baked beans and no opener. Coat the bottoms of coffee pots and other pans with soap before using on open flames. Clean up time will be easier if you do. Store wooden matches in a covered glass jar...safer and no risk of damage from moisture.

Planning Variety Show

Mrs. Sue Beachy and Mrs. Hazel Klotz attended a meeting at the home of Kay Kemp in Salisbury, Pa. to formulate plans for a variety show for the benefit of the Meyersdale Community Hospital.

The show will be held in the Salisbury High School gym on Wednesday evening, June 21, at 7:30 p.m.

141 Attend Rally

The District Rally at the Maple Grove Church was well attended, May 17, with 141 persons registering and a program given on "love." Speakers were Margaret Fath and Melodie Davis of "Your Time" radio program.

Health Group Meets

A meeting of the delegation of the Grantsville Area Health Center was held May 17 at 7 o'clock with Robert Bender, president, presiding. Several doctors have been contacted for the Health Center, and a lease for a doctor has been suggested. C. C. Bender, Gerald Beachy and Floyd Baker are members of a committee to check into these possibilities.

An additional grant has been applied for, and reports were given on the dentist, Dr. Schmuck.

Election of officers was held, with Esther Yoder named president, C. C. Bender vice president, James Oester secretary and the Rev. Douglas Garland treasurer.

Delegates at large will be Mike Brandes and Harold Butler.

An evaluation will be taken of the building and equipment.

Personals

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Garrett County Commissioners will conduct a public hearing on June 12, 1978, at 10:30 a.m., in the Grand Jury Room, Garrett County Courthouse, to present and take testimony on the proposed County Budget (including Federal Revenue Sharing and Anti-Recessional Funds) for Fiscal Year 1978-1979.

The proposed budget is as follows:

The County Commissioners are proposing a reduction in the property tax rate of 18¢ for this tax year. Last year's property tax rate was $2.63, and the certified value of all assessable property was $183,000,000. The rate multiplied by the value produced revenues (less discounts) of $4,491,209.

To produce the same revenues as last year (including certain State Aid adjustments), the tax rate would be $2.40. This rate is called the constant yield rate. For this taxable year, the actual property tax rate is $2.45. This rate is 5¢ more than the Constant Yield Tax Rate and will produce in revenue $103,468 more than produced by the constant yield tax rate.

Rev. Harvey To Speak June 2 To Adoptive Parents

Phyllis Harvey, director of Child Placement Services of the West Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church, will be guest speaker at the June 2 meeting of the Adoptive Parents' Group in Oakland.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the basement of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland. Children are invited to accompany parents.

Miss Harvey is an ordained minister of the United Methodist Church and serves as a pastor of the Benton Ferry United Methodist Church, Fairmont, W. Va. She is a native of Princeton, W. Va., a graduate of Glenville State College, and has been with the Child Placement Services since 1963.

At this time, the United Methodist Church, through its Placement program under Health and Welfare Ministries, is one of two private adoptive agencies practicing in West Virginia. For this reason, and due to increasing demand as compared with decreasing supply of infants, process can often take many months before placement can be completed. To assist in narrowing the time frame, the agency relates closely to the Holt and Dillon organizations for cooperative placements on international adoptions.

Garrett County is part of the West Virginia Conference of the United Methodist Church and Garrett County residents are eligible to apply, regardless of race or religious belief.

The United Methodist Child Placement services has a need for adoptive parents who will share themselves with biracial and black children. National statistics say that for every Caucasian child available for adoption there are at least 12 couples who are waiting for that child.

The Adoptive Parents' Group is an organization devoted to the support and encouragement of all types of adoption and to sharing information about adoption. For further information, contact Barbara Morris, 334-2499, or Sue Seaks, 334-4282.

Melvin Smith Is Competitor In State Contest

Melvin (Chip) Smith, Jr., of the Bittinger 4-H club, was one of 36 public speakers who participated in the state 4-H Public Speaking event held at the University of Maryland's Center of Adult Education Saturday, May 13.

Melvin, an intermediate 4-Her, had won county and district honors and was then chosen to participate in the state event.

This was the first year intermediate and junior speakers were judged. Previously only seniors were allowed to compete.

Rifle Instructor Course Scheduled

NRA Training Counselor Keith Mullenux has announced that the Garrett County Junior Rifle Club will sponsor an NRA Rifle Instructor Course on Saturday, June 3, at the Extension Office located in the basement of the Post Office, starting at 1:00 p.m.

Mr. Mullenux related that the course is open to all youth and adults over the age of fifteen who are interested in helping teach young people how to shoot safely. The course will cover the basics of sight picture, sight adjustment, trigger squeeze and sight adjustment, as well as methods of effectively teaching these marksmanship skills to youth.

Interested persons should contact Mr. Mullenux at 334-8338 to join the class. A registration fee of $2.00 will be charged to defray costs of the NRA Rifle Instructor Training Kit.

Persons who desire to help youth learn to shoot safely should consider serving as instructors at the Garrett County 4-H Camp held at the Western Maryland 4-H Center July 2-7, or at the Woodmen Camp held during July 16-18.

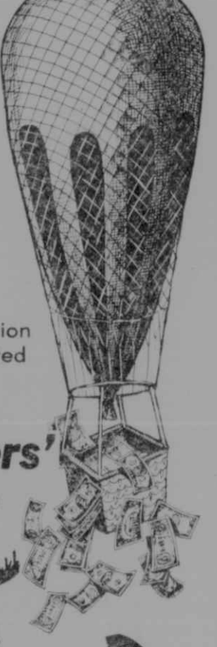
For further information about participating as an NRA Rifle Instructor, or those interested in starting a Junior Rifle Club Program in their own community, contact Lawrence Little in the 4-H Office.

Rev. Snider To Speak At Mt. Top Assembly

The Rev. David G. Snider, a newly approved Assemblies of God missionary to French Polynesia, will be guest speaker Wednesday, June 7, at 7:00 p.m., at the Mt. Top Christian Assembly, the Rev. W. H. Leake, pastor, has announced.

Mr. Snider and his wife Doris will be involved in pioneer missions work during their first four-year term of missionary service in French Polynesia. This area is a new mission field for the Assemblies of God and the Sniders are the denomination's first missionaries to be assigned there. They will engage in evangelism, church planting, and starting an International Correspondence Institute outreach.

The nearly 130 islands of French Polynesia are scattered over 1,544,000 square miles of South Pacific. The islands are divided into five main groups: the Society Islands, the Gambier Islands, the Austral Islands, the Marquesas Islands and the Tuamotu archipelago. Most of the 143,480 people living there are Polynesian.



Mr. Snider attended Cameron College in Lawton, Okla., and Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, where he received a BS degree. Mrs. Snider attended Central Bible College in Springfield, Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. Snider have also taken studies at the Assemblies of God Graduate School in Springfield, Missouri.

Special music and a presentation about the revival in the South Pacific will highlight this missions service. The public is invited.

Instant Dress Fabric
17¢ an inch
Even a beginner can make a sundress in a jiffy just by sewing a seam, hemming and adding straps or trim. Compare the cost to a ready-made sundress.
1. Hold the shirred fabric snugly around you under your arms. Generally the fit is best if the shirring is 2" to 4" smaller than your waist measurement and 4" to 6" smaller than a bust measurement. Cut away all but 1" of excess fabric.
2. With wrong sides of fabric together, machine stitch center back seam, ½" from cut edge.

3. Try on Instant dress. Pin straps to fit securely from back to front over shoulders. Stitch straps securely at back and front.
4. Check hem length. To shorten border print more than 2", take a tuck on the inside of your garment where the border print blends into the field design above. On all over print, simply shorten desired amount at lower edge.

Investigation To Begin In Tuesday's Texas City Oil Refinery Explosion

TEXAS CITY, Texas (UPI) — Federal safety inspectors hoped the hot metal at the site of an oil refinery explosion would be cool enough today for them to start searching for the cause of a blast that killed four people.

Seven explosions that sent orange fireballs curling 500 feet into the air ripped through the Texas City Refining Inc. plant early Tuesday morning. Firefighters struggled against the blaze until mid-afternoon to prevent a repetition of the 1947 Texas City disaster that killed 576.

"Firemen are still putting foam on some of the (nearby) tanks, but it's too hot to go into the area," a plant spokesman said Tuesday night. "We hope to get in there sometime (today), but it will probably take several days to figure out what happened."

The first explosion at the 10-block-long plant occurred about 2 a.m. in the area of a gas plant and process unit. That explosion triggered six more blasts that destroyed some crude oil storage tanks. The concussion was felt in Nassau Bay, about 20 miles away.

Don Gray, a process engineer from an Amoco refinery, said a new process unit was being completed and brought on line at the plant, and that may have triggered the disaster.

"Bringing any new unit on the line is a hazard," Gray said. "Any explosion sets up a chain reaction. Any kind of ignition could set it off."

Three victims trapped in the inferno were identified as Carl Cope, 34, of Alvin, and Joseph Bertrand, 59, of La Marque — both operators for the company — and Aaron Browning, a contract guard from Houston. A fourth victim, Daniel Dore, 35, of Texas City, died later of burns.

Seventeen other people were hospitalized by the explosions.

The plant, owned by two farmers' cooperatives, refines gasoline and fuel oil primarily. It has a crude oil processing capacity of 74,500 barrels a day.

Describing the scene, Fire Capt. C. F. Lorber, who was standing in a parking lot about a quarter of a mile away, said: "I turned my back and that fireball went off. Even with a reflective coat I felt like a roasted turkey."

The Texas City blast April 16, 1947, was the worst such disaster in the nation's history. That explosion — which almost wiped out the industrial community — occurred when the French freighter Grandcamp exploded in the Texas City harbor and spread to nearby refineries.

The disaster killed 576, injured 5,000 and caused $67 million in property damage.

Troops Combing Guatemala For Peasants Involved In Uprising

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Government troops combed the mountains of northeast Guatemala today for participants in a bloody peasant revolt against wealthy landowners that left at least 43 people dead and 35 wounded.

Observers in the town of Panzos, 124 miles northeast of Guatemala City, said Tuesday the bodies of 43 men and women killed in a battle between peasants and the landowners and their farm workers were stacked in front of the town hall.

At least 35 others were injured in the fighting and soldiers searching the mountains found more wounded, observers reported.

An army communique said the peasant revolt was "instigated by guerrilla elements to invade the lands and private farms."

The military has repeatedly denounced the leftist Poor People's Guerrilla Army for inciting peasants to attack private land owners.

Although army clashes with peasant land invaders are common in this poor Central American country, the death toll in Monday's battle was the highest ever recorded. The army also reported seven soldiers injured in a related attack on an army post near Panzos.

The clash began when an estimated 400 peasants from the village of Senahu, armed with machetes, shotguns and pistols, invaded four large plantations, the observers said.

Heavily armed landowners and their farm workers held back the peasants until soldiers arrived to join the battle.

More army troops were flown to the northeastern province of Alta Verapaz Tuesday to hunt down the peasant participants and their "instigators" in the mountainous coffee-growing region.

The fighting came barely a month before President-elect Romeo Lucas Garcia takes office July 1. The period just before and after his election March 5 was marked with political violence and his opponents have charged he won the election by vote fraud.

The Guatemalan Congress met in emergency session Tuesday to demand President Eugenio Kjell Laugerud investigate the fighting.

Left-wing guerrillas were active in Guatemala in the late 1960s, but were largely wiped out by President Carlos Arana Osorio, who held office from 1970 to 1974.

In another violent incident Monday, the mayor of the town of Iztapa on the Pacific Coast, Cesar Agusto Ortega Gonzalez, was shot to death with two other men in a bar.

Mathias Requests Progress Report On Westvaco Plant

Seantor Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) this week asked Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Douglas Costle for a progress report on the use of local coal as a fuel at the Westvaco Plant in Luke.

Seantor Mathias was joined in the request by Senator Jennings Randolph, Democrat of West Virginia.

At issue is EPA's announced intention to deny the State of Maryland's request, in behalf of Westvaco, to allow Westvaco to continue to burn coal mined in Western Maryland. The use of Western Maryland coal is not only financially advantageous to Westvaco but to the economy of Western Maryland as well, Senator Mathias said.

Mathias and Randolph noted that Westvaco and the EPA narrowed their differences at a technical meeting April 26.

They said: "We are pleased that the recent dialogue has been helpful and hope that another meeting planned for Philadelphia June 7 might result in further modification and a resolution of the matter."

Mathias said Westvaco is one of the areas leading businesses providing steady employment, excellent employee relations, has been a leader in the effort to clean up the Potomac River and in the fight for clean air.

"In view of the importance of the matter we would appreciate a report as promptly as possible, giving EPA's view on the progress that has been made to date and your plans to resolve the differences to a greater degree," the Senators said.

B.P.W. Brings Back Four Awards

Delegates from the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's club brought back four awards from the annual state convention held this past weekend at Hunt Valley Inn near Baltimore.

Leading the Garrett County delegation was state board member and local club president Mrs. Barbara Flinn. Other delegates were Anne Connor, Pam Ashby, Helen Harman and Eleanor Deal. Mrs. Phyllis Trickett and Miss Mildred Wucik were also there, as past presidents of the state federation.

The local club received awards for meeting program criteria, contribution to the national foundation, equalization of membership before September 30, 1977, and public relations.

The Garrett County club also served as one of the five hostess clubs for the convention, and was in charge of arrangements for the Sunday brunch.

The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's club is open for membership to all working women in the area. Meetings are held on the second Thursday of each month at Will o' the Wisp beginning at 6:30 p.m.

William, a senior at Southern, also won the Louis Armstrong Jazz Award.

Runners-up for the Sousa award were Teresa Casteel and Brant Turney.

U.S. To Aid African Peace-Keeping Force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is exploring the possibility of U.S. aid to a pan-African peace-keeping force to counter the "massive placement" of Cuban and other outside troops, his spokesman says.

Press secretary Jody Powell also said Tuesday night the U.S. insistence that Cubans were responsible for the bloody invasion of Zaire is based on "human intelligence-gathering from overwhelming sources, some of more or lesser reliability but ... all with the same conclusion that the Cubans and East Germans were involved in training and supplying the rebels.

"They knew about it before it took place and they were in a posture of encouraging it," Powell said. "They have to accept responsibility before the world."

Powell said the idea of a pan-African force has been "knocking around" for several days and was discussed by Carter and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at a White House dinner last Friday.

"We indicated a willingness to explore it," he said. "The French are inclined to and we're willing for them to take a leadership role. But there aren't any details to be revealed at this point."

Undersecretary of State David Newsom will attend the meeting in Paris next week where the force will be discussed. It would be available "to provide assistance to governments who are threatened by outside forces," he said.

Father Of Youth Accused Of Murder To Appear In Court

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The father of a 16-year-old boy accused of killing three girls was ordered today to testify before an Anne Arundel County grand jury concerning charges that it was actually his 20-year-old son who committed the murders.

Circuit Judge Bruce Williams ordered Edward Kreiner Sr. to testify before the grand jury investigating the Oct. 12 murders of 8-year-old Theresa Hogan, her 10-year-old sister Debbie and their playmate, 8-year-old Ann Brzeszkiewicz.

Stuart Kreiner, 16, is charged with first degree murder in the stabbing deaths.

The elder Kreiner complied with the judge's order to appear before the grand jury.

The jury is considering allegations made by Ronald Shipley, an inmate at Clifton T. Perkins State Hospital, that Edward Kreiner Jr., 20, actually killed the girls.

Shipley said Stuart Kreiner, who underwent psychiatric evaluation at Perkins, told him the 20-year-old Kreiner engineered the murders.

"He (Stuart) said that his brother had made him get the three girls to come down in the woods," Shipley told police.

The Kreiner boys' father said Shipley's statement is the "most vicious thing I've ever seen in my life."

The elder Kreiner said his son Edward was attending a Pennsylvania college at the time of the murders.

Citizenship Revoked For Nazi Killings

CHICAGO (UPI) — The judgment against Frank Walus, accused of killing Jews in Poland during World War II, will help the government's cases against other alleged Nazi war criminals living in the United States, prosecutors say.

U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman found Walus liable for denaturalization on four counts Tuesday and ordered his citizenship revoked. The Justice Department had filed a civil suit against Walus, charging him with lying to immigration officials about his activities during the war.

The verdict in the Walus case will encourage government prosecutors in one trial that already has started and five other cases pending against alleged Nazi war criminals, assistant U.S. Attorney John L. Gubbins said.

"It'll help," he said, noting the Walus trial was the first successful denaturalization of an alleged Nazi war criminal. "It's an uplift."

Hoffman, a Jew, said during the reading of his verdict he "sought to maintain an impersonal view," but found defense evidence "full of contradictions and inconsistencies" and the government's case "strong, conclusive and unshaking."

"The court, therefore ... finds Walus committed criminal acts of unjustified violence," Hoffman said. "The court also finds defendant Walus lacks the good moral character required to be a citizen of the United States."

Walus, 55, married and the father of four children, became a U.S. citizen in 1970 and now lives in on Chicago's South Side.

During the 17-day bench trial that ended April 11, 11 Polish Jews identified Walus as a Gestapo officer and the slayer of 25 to 30 Jews — including women and children — in Czestochowa and Kielce, Poland, between 1939 and 1943.

Walus repeatedly denied the charges, saying he was captured by the Germans who forced him to work on farms during the war. He produced photographs and printed documents in his defense.

He did not attend the hearing Tuesday.

"If Mr. Walus chooses, he may take an appeal to the Court of Appeals," U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Sullivan said. "If this decision is affirmed on appeal, the Immigration and Naturalization Service may initiate an administrative proceeding to deport Mr. Walus to a country of his choice."

If a country chosen by Walus refuses to accept him, Gubbins said, the United States would then "force choices on him and would probably start with his former homeland" — Poland.

However, Gubbins said the appeal process by Walus could take years.

Congress Checks Cloning Theory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress today was taking its first look at developments in cloning and the possibility scientists can create carbon copies of human beings.

Duplicate frogs have been made by cell nucleus transplantation, but most scientists say human cloning is a long way off. A book published this year, however, claims a human heir was created for a millionaire by cloning.

A House subcommittee on health and the environment headed by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., was beginning a congressional investigation into progress on cloning. It planned to hear legal and ethical arguments on the matter.

Simplified, cloning involves taking the nucleus from the cell of a living creature and transplanting it into the egg of a female. The resulting animal or human theoretically would be exactly like the animal or man from which the cell nucleus came.

The National Institutes of Health says the federal government is in no way involved in any human cloning experiments.

The committee asked science writer David Rorvik, author of "In His Image: The Cloning of a Man," to testify. But he is in Europe promoting the book, which many scientists proclaim a hoax.

Rorvik claims he was approached by an aging millionaire who wanted a clone of himself produced so he could have an heir. He said he put the man in touch with a scientist who did the work and placed the fertilized egg in the womb of a young woman.

The woman allegedly gave birth to a genetic duplicate of the millionaire.

Dr. John Gurdon of Oxford University in England has produced a cloned frog.

But Dr. Bernard Talbot, a special assistant to the director of the National Institutes of Health in nearby Bethesda, Md., told UPI this year that scientists have failed in all attempts to clone mammals such as mice and rabbits.

"With a human, it would be ever so much more difficult," he said. "Even with frogs, for it to work, you have to work with the sex cells from tadpoles."

Cost Of Living Takes Big Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soaring food prices, particularly for beef and fresh vegetables, pushed up the cost of living in April by 0.9 percent for the steepest increase in 14 months, the government said today.

The April rate, figured on a yearly basis, would amount to 10.8 percent, the Labor Department said in its monthly consumer price index — the first return to a yearly double-digit inflation rate since February 1977.

Barry Bosworth, head of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, warned last week that the consumer prices in April and May would be a "disaster," but he said some improvement may be evident during June.

The 0.9 percent increase compared with 0.8 percent gains in March and January and a 0.6 percent February increase.

The department said its consumer price index for all urban consumers stood at 191.5 last month, meaning goods that cost $100 in 1967 were priced at $191.50 in April.

The department said food price gains were the main reason for the overall sharp gain.

Swedish Courthouse Damaged By Bomb

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) A bomb exploded outside the courthouse in central Gothenburg early today, wrecking offices and destroying all windows up to the fourth floor. No one was injured.

Police said there appeared to be no motive for the bombing. Irreplaceable stained glass windows in the German Church opposite the court were badly damaged. Gothenburg, Sweden's largest port, is on the country's west coast, 310 miles from Stockholm.

Earthquake Rocks Yugoslav Town

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — An earthquake rocked the central Yugoslav town of Sarajevo today, sending panicky residents fleeing their homes.

First police reports said there were no injuries or damage.

The quake struck at 6:47 a.m. and at its epicenter measured about 5 degrees on the 12-degree Mercalli Scale, seismologists said. This equals 3.7 on the open-ended Richter Scale.

Congress Offers To Help Steel Company

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Maryland congressional delegation has asked the Bethlehem Steel Corp. to explain its plans for drawing business to the Sparrows Point shipyard and offered help in obtaining government contracts for the company.

Bethlehem officials say the letter from the lawmakers to Lewis W. Foy, chairman of the nation's second largest steelmaker, asked specific questions of the company out of concern for the economic outlook.

The congressmen wrote that "we are greatly concerned about the possible reductions in the work force" and informed company officials that they have "undertaken to make representations to the Navy in an attempt to obtain information regarding contracts Bethlehem is interested in."

But they said they also wanted to know "what efforts Bethlehem is itself making internally to keep Sparrows Point open and working.

"Kneecapping" Attack Occurs In Germany

BERLIN (UPI) — A lawyer assigned to a terrorist trial against the wishes of the defendants was shot in the legs today in the first known "kneecapping" attack in Germany.

Police said a man fired three shots at 36-year-old attorney Dietmar Hohla on a street in the American sector of the divided city, hitting him in the legs. The assailant, described as a man about 30 years old, escaped in an automobile later found abandoned.

Police said two other men also appeared to be involved in the attack on Hohla, who was shot as he opened the trunk of his car on his way to work.

Hohla was taken to a hospital with wounds a police spokesman described as not serious.

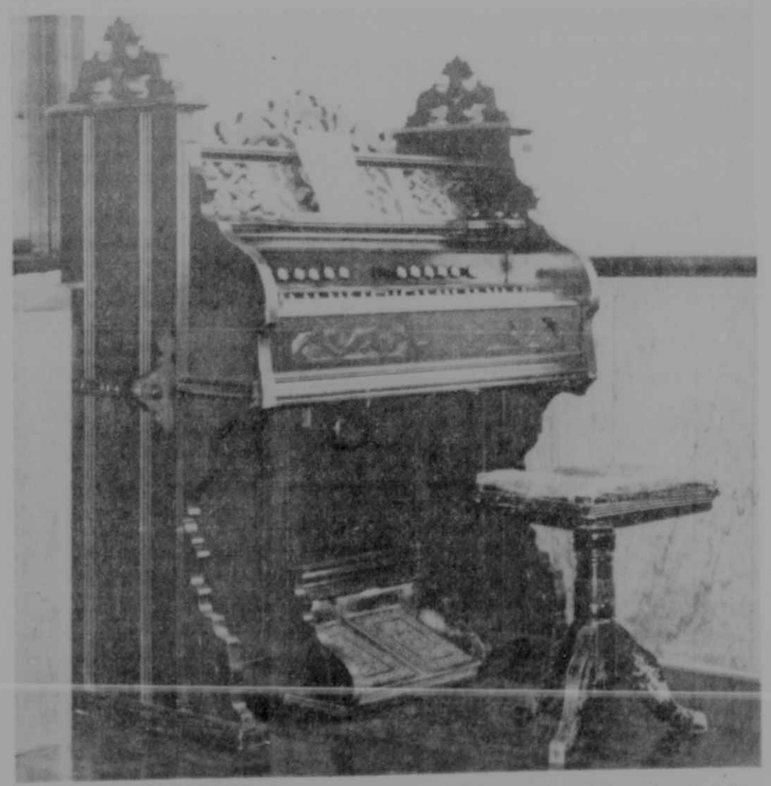
The spokesman said terrorist leg shootings, known as "kneecappings," are common in some other European countries, such as Italy and Ireland, but were unknown in Germany until the Hohla attack.

Cheers, applause and laughter rang out in a courtroom at Moabit Prison at the trial of five terrorists Hohla was assigned to defend when the judge announced the shooting today.

The five are charged with the 1974 murder of Judge Gunther von Drenkmann, the 1975 kidnapping of Peter Lorenz, head of the West Berlin branch of the Christian Democratic Party, attempted kidnapping and 10 bank robberies.

Hohla is one of the lawyers assigned by the court to defend the accused. The defendants oppose the appointment of such lawyers and have physically attacked them in the past.

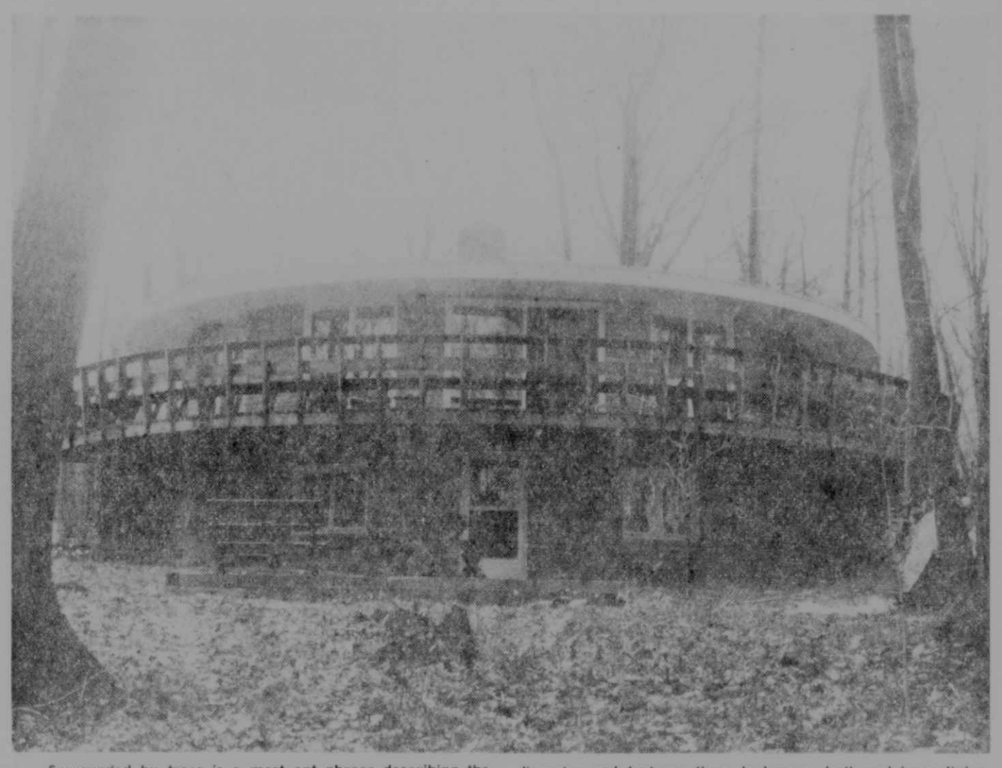
A sixth defendant, Till Meyer, 34, escaped from the prison Saturday. Two armed women terrorists posed as lawyers to gain entrance to the supposedly escape-proof prison, took a guard hostage and used him to escape with Miss Meyer.



Robbers Make Off With Paper Payroll

LONDON (UPI) — Four men burst into the offices of the Daily Mirror today, shot and killed a guard, and escaped with a $380,000 payroll.

The guard was shot in the stomach by a blast from a submachine gun. He was rushed to hospital but died soon after.



The four gunmen broke into a loading bay of the Daily Mirror building while a security firm was making a payroll delivery, police said.

Police said the men escaped in a white car with $380,000 in payroll funds.

"THEY DON'T MAKE 'EM like they used to," is a well-known adage that could apply to this late 1800 vintage bellow organ at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident. The well preserved instrument was manufactured by the Carpenter Organ Company of Brattleboro, Vermont, and the organist had to pump the foot pedals furiously in order to elicit a tune. Perhaps for the sake of today's organists, it's just as well that "they don't make 'em like they used to."

House With No Corners Is Unusual, But Practical

Surrounded by trees is a most apt phrase describing the round house of Mr. and Mrs. Art Calhoun, located off Lakeshore Drive. The cut stone and cedar structure is forty feet in diameter and features three bedrooms, bath and large living room on the second floor, a kitchen, dining area, storage room, and three-quarters bath in the cooler lower level.

Ten years of meticulous effort by Art, his wife, Wilma, and her sister, Glenna DeWitt, have paid off in beauty and function for the round house. A deck encircles the front portion of the house, overlooking the lake.

By Carol Canan

Probably the most unique house in Garrett County lies nestled in tall trees just off Lakeshore Drive, along the shoreline of Deep Creek Lake. This round house is the result of ten years of loving labor tendered by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Calhoun, Oakland, and by Mrs. Calhoun's sister, Miss Glenna DeWitt.

Ten years ago, the Calhouns had acquired a lot which did not have even an access road. At that time, they decided that when they built a home, they would have one as close to the home of their dreams as they could make it.

An advertisement in a magazine offering plans for a round house caught their eyes, and they sent for the plans. From the plan, however, they took only the basic idea, and literally went to work, redesigning and changing. Basically all that remains of the original plan is the 40-foot diameter.

Handyman Art and chief planner Wilma first threw out the idea of having the kitchen on the main level. This meant excavating, further translated into hours of hand digging a half basement, with dirt removal carried out by the wheelbarrow and manpower method.

This change of plans permitted a more spacious living room, three good-sized bedrooms and a full bath on the second story.

A welcoming kitchen with large dining area and a three-quarter bath are now located in the cool lower level, a fact much appreciated during summer's hotter days. Despite the warmest weather, the temperature in the kitchen never rises above 75 degrees.

Wilma was chief planner again here, and the cabinets were designed to follow the curve of the walls. All cupboards are completely lined with white Formica, much appreciated when cleaning is needed.

Cunningly hidden behind the central chimney is a large storage room, affording out of the way space for outdoor cooking equipment, food storage, and other miscellany.

A circular staircase winds its way from lower to upper levels. The staircase was a gift from a generous friend, and fits right into the decor of the home.

In the living room, cherry paneling is in keeping with the natural look of the cut stone chimney and with the view of lake and woods from three large glass doors.

The huge cut stone fireplace dominates the room almost as much as the magnificent view, and is a tribute to Art's meticulous work. A perfectionist in his masonry, Art tore down some of the stone work when he discovered a minute crack in the structure, and relaid the stone to eliminate the tiny flaw. Not even the lure of the golf course could deter him from his "house" work.

Two of the bedrooms are finished in birch paneling and one in oak. There is ample room for a king-size bed, a dresser and two closets in the master bedroom, and double beds with one or more dressers, chairs, etc., in the other rooms. All closets in the house, including an extra large walk-in closet in the hall behind the chimney, are lined with cedar.

A large bath with king size vanity is located just off the living room, and features careful use of all available space with a linen closet tucked into what might have been unused space.

Outside, the house is finished in cut stone and cedar. The roof, in keeping with natural materials, is of gravel and tar, painstakingly carried up by the bucketfuls. Art's round stonework is a monument to patience and craftsmanship.

An encircling deck hugs the front half of the house, providing additional summer living space.

Assistants with the work were Okey Strawser and Allen Murray, and Miss DeWitt, who contributed decorating ideas and some handcrafts for the interior. Other family members including the Calhoun's two children and five grandchildren and their spouses from Washington, D. C. to California contributed to the decorating and art work. Antique and modern pieces mingle comfortably to accent the comfort and livability of the house, which was well insulated so that it can be used as a year-round home whenever desired.

Wilma noted that, surprisingly, there was very little waste of materials of any kind, despite the unconventionality of the round house.

The house is now the attractive, well-planned, functional embodiment of a dream come true. The ten years of effort on evenings and weekends has yielded a perfect hideaway, planned for a vacation spot or for later retirement years. It is more than worth the untold hours of effort to see it standing there, a tribute to what men and women can do with ingenuity, lots of work, and patience.

Kitchen cabinets follow the curvature of the wall to combine good looks with function. Cabinets are fully lined with Formica for easy cleaning and long-lasting use.

What could be more appropriate in a round house than a spiral staircase? Mrs. Calhoun notes that a friend gave the staircase to them, never dreaming that the stairs would so perfectly fit the design of the Calhoun's dream house.

Comfortable furnishings offer a welcoming look to visitors at the Calhoun home on the lake. Wall to wall carpet did not pose a problem for installers, and Mrs. Calhoun said that there was very little waste in either carpet or any other materials used to construct the house. All masonry work was done by Mr. Calhoun, with some assistance from Okey Strawser and Allen Murray. The house was well insulated and incorporates a heatilator in the fireplace for year-round use.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE DIVINE LIKENESS

Lesson for June 4, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 13 through 14
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 52:7-10

Two things amaze me as I encounter people throughout the world. One is the amount of skepticism I find—call that "unbelief" if you like—the other is the amount of credulity—or "overbelief."

Rev. Althouse

Some religious observers are calling ours "the age of unbelief." So much has been discarded or discredited that once we held sacred. Churches are losing ground in terms of church membership and the temporal as well as the spiritual power of religion seems to have slipped so greatly.

We also are men

Yet, at the same time I am often amazed at the credulity I find. Some people, it seems, will believe anything they are told. They will follow blindly the leadership of a religious totalitarian leader. They will send their money to religious groups that are scarcely more than a name to them. The field ripest for sheer fraud and exploitation, it seems, is still religion.

This was also the experience sometimes of the early church. There were times when it must have seemed to Paul, for example, that there was absolutely no receptivity to his message of Christ. But there were other times and other places where the response was too much belief instead of too little.

One of these times and places was at Lystra during Paul's first missionary journey. Because he healed a man who had been crippled from birth, the people of Lystra jumped to the conclusion that he and Barnabas were gods who had come to the earth in the form of men.

Paul and Barnabas were shocked and it was only with great effort that they persuaded the Lystrians not to worship them and offer sacrifices. "Men, why are you doing this?" they cried. "We also are men, of like nature with you, and bring you good news, that you should turn from these vain things to a living God..." (14:15).

You are witnesses

Yes, Paul and Barnabas were men just as the Lystrians were. Yet, there was a difference, too, a difference the Lystrians misinterpreted. They saw the Holy Spirit moving in them and assumed that these two men were gods come to earth. But the "difference" they saw in Paul and Barnabas was not that "gods have come down in the likeness of men," but that in these two men the likeness of God was being made manifest. The promise that Jesus had given his disciples was that they would become God's sons by virtue of his Sonship.

The writer of Genesis was convinced that man was created in God's own image and Jesus displayed perfectly the full extent of that divine image that can be realized in the life of every person.

We have spent enough time casting God in man's likeness. The time has come to let the divine likeness shine forth in man.

Commerce Dept. Cites FSC Small Business Institute

Frostburg State College's Institute for Small Business has been named an Associate Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce according to an announcement made jointly by Dr. Nelson P. Guild, president of FSC, and Raymond DePaulo, deputy assistant secretary for Field Operations of the Department of Commerce.

The associate office program was established by the Department of Commerce in order to meet the changing needs of the business public and the increasingly important social concerns of business. As an associate office, the Institute will serve as a liaison between the Baltimore District office and the business community of Western Maryland.

James F. DeCarlo, Jr., director of the Institute for Small Business, said, "We take great pride in this recognition of our five years of service to the community. The staff of the Institute has accepted a responsibility to alert the Department of Commerce to local business requirements, activities, interests, and problems so that agency may more fully meet the needs of the Western Maryland business community."

Carroll F. Hopkins, director of the Baltimore District Office, said "Frostburg State College has been second to none in providing services to the business community. Its institute for Small Business stands as a model for other colleges interested in responding to the needs and concerns of the business community. The Baltimore District office looks forward to cooperating with our newest Associate Office and providing assistance to manufacturers, wholesalers, the service trades, and financial institutions on such foreign and domestic trade problems as come within the purview of the statutory responsibilities of the Department of Commerce."

The Institute for Small Business will now include in its library, selected Department of Commerce publications, statistical data, and reports which are of value to businesses in Western Maryland. The Institute will be able to inform the business community of the trade programs and services available from the Department of Commerce and assist in obtaining these services.

The Institute for Small Business was founded in August 1973 as a community service of the College's Center for Management Development. Since that time, more than 1,000 small businesses in Western Maryland and adjacent parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia have received management assistance. More than 1,400 people have attended training sessions sponsored by the Institute.

Free and confidential management assistance is now available for the Garrett County small business community. The service is being provided by the Institute in cooperation with the Garrett Community College Oakland Center, 104 East Center Street.

Dave Berry, management assistant specialist, will be at GCC's Oakland Center every Thursday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to talk to anyone already in small business as well as those who are thinking of starting a new business. The service is free and no appointment is necessary. However, anyone wishing to make an appointment during these hours may do so by calling 334-8266. Additional services and assistance may be obtained by calling the Institute for Small Business, 301-689-4417.

Annual Methodist Conference Being Held At Frostburg

Nearly 1,700 United Methodists are presently on the campus of Frostburg for the 194th annual session of the Baltimore Annual Conference. During the four-day event they will celebrate their heritage, participate in worship and the ordination of ministers, and deal with business ranging from the internal administration of pensions and medical insurance to social concerns such as world hunger and gambling. The conference runs through Friday.

The 1,700 members, equally divided between clergy and laity, represent nearly one-quarter million United Methodists in the more than 700 churches of the Baltimore Conference. The conference covers a geographic area which includes all of the state of Maryland west of the Susquehanna River, the entire District of Columbia, and the three counties of West Virginia's eastern panhandle.

Presiding over the annual session is Bishop James K. Mathews, whose Washington Episcopal Area includes both the Baltimore and Peninsula Conferences.

The first session of the 1978 Annual Conference, which was held last night, featured a historical pageant tracing the United Methodist heritage in Western Maryland.

The first full day of the 1978 session opened today with a traditional Memorial Communion Service honoring clergy and lay members who have died during the last year. Preaching for this service was the Rev. Carol Cosens Yocum, pastor of the Weller and Deerfield United Methodist Churches in Thurmont, Maryland.

Following the Memorial Communion Service, Bishop Mathews delivered his annual "State of the Church" address.

Following lunch today members of the conference will divide into three legislative sections to begin dealing with business items. One of the issues which is expected to generate considerable discussion is a recommendation that ministers provide their own furniture for church-owned parsonages beginning in June of 1979.

The conference will meet in plenary session beginning tomorrow morning to hear reports from the legislative sections and to adopt program and budget recommendations for 1979. The proposed budget of $5.4 million reflects an increase of 2.74% over 1978.

Another highlight of the conference will be this evening, when a service of ordination will be held. Bishop James K. Mathews will ordain 16 men and nine women to the office of Deacon. Fourteen men and three women will receive ordination as Elders during the service.

The three-day session will conclude on Friday afternoon with Bishop Mathews reading of the changes in appointments of ministers for the ensuing year. Nearly 100 ministers are expected to receive new assignments.

This marks the first time in more than a generation that the Baltimore Annual Conference has met in western Maryland. For the past decade sessions have alternated between Washington and Baltimore. Prior to that most sessions were held on the campus of Western Maryland College in Westminster. When the former Methodist and Evangelical United Brethren denominations merged to become the United Methodist Church in 1968 the number of members became too large for them to be accommodated at the Westminster school.

Grantsville Firemen Extinguish Blaze At Trash Dump Site

Members of the Grantsville volunteer fire company were called out at seven minutes til one Thursday morning to extinguish a fire at a trash pile.

The fire had originally been reported as a structure fire, and the Eastern Garrett volunteer company was called to assist. Eastern's trucks were turned back before they reached the scene. Grantsville sent five trucks and returned three to the station after it was discovered that no structures were burning.

The dump is located off Route 219 north of Route 40, on the Harry Warner property. Some old tires and canvas were ablaze, and there was thought to be some danger to a nearby storage trailer.

Grantsville firemen returned to the fire hall about 3 a.m.

Driver Injured In One-Car Mishap

Of a number of recent traffic accidents, only one of them resulted in an injury. They occurred at various locations around the county. Several were one-vehicle mishaps.

The driver of the car was slightly injured in a mishap on U. S. 219 just north of Oakland shortly before midnight of May 16. Thomas K. Allison, Reese Street, Oakland, was driving south on Rt. 219 when he swerved to avoid striking an unidentified vehicle traveling north. Allison went off the road, hit a small ditch, turned completely around and struck a tree. Tfc. D. H. Riggleman made no charges.

Eloise A. Finzel, RD 4, Grantsville, was driving north on U. S. 219 about three miles north of U. S. 40 the afternoon of May 18. A young person was walking a large dog on a leash when the animal suddenly ran in front of the Finzel car. The operator was unable to avoid striking the dog. Tfc. Gary Resh made no charges.

Another accident later that evening involved a deer on U. S. 219 near Mayhew Inn Road. Charles F. Reumont, Shadyside, Pa., was traveling south when the animal ran in front of his car and was struck. Tfc. Riggleman investigated.

An accident occurred on the Hutton road near Sanders Lane early the morning of May 18, also involving a deer. Victor H. Slaubaugh, RD 1, Oakland, was driving east and lost control of his car after striking a deer. The car went off the left side of the road and into a drainage ditch. Tfc. L. R. Rosage made the investigation.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the following morning Darrell L. Rexrode, Rt. 135, Mt. Lake Park, had difficulty with the steering of a large truck of Silver Knob Sand Co. The vehicle was northbound on the Oakland-Sang Run Road when, the driver said, he started to go right, intending to go left. The vehicle continued right into a ditch and struck a utility pole. Tfc. Dale Williams made no charges.

A hit-and-run accident occurred at the west end of Swanton the evening of May 19. An unknown vehicle was eastbound on the Swanton Hill Road, went down an embankment, through a rail fence and then fled the scene. Tfc. J. E. Foley investigated.

Blain D. Swauger, Bloomington, was southbound on Owens Avenue in Bloomington the afternoon of May 20. He attempted to slow down to make a right turn but his brakes failed and he struck a utility pole. Tfc. Riggleman made no charges.

Another hit-and-run occurred shortly after midnight May 21. Trong B. T. Hebb, RD 2, Oakland, was southbound on U. S. 219 about a mile south of U. S. 50, when an unknown northbound vehicle crossed the center line of the road. In an effort to avoid a head-on collision he headed for the southbound shoulder but was still struck by the unknown vehicle. The unknown vehicle was an older model white Ford. Tfc. E. J. Upole investigated.

Still another hit-and-run mishap occurred on the parking lot of Browning's Foodland the afternoon of the same day. The car of Walter Whitehair, Terra Alta, W. Va., was parked unattended and was struck by an unknown vehicle which fled the scene. Tf. J. E. Foley made the investigation.

Lee Signs Bill To Lower Air Quality Standard

Acting Governor Blair Lee III signed into law Monday the bill which would lower Maryland air quality standards to those of the federal government. However, Counties can ask for permission to impose stricter standards when deemed necessary.

In a pre-signing statement, Lee said that he is convinced the bill will not adversely affect the health of state residents noting he had consulted with the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and has been convinced the bill would not seriously damage air quality.

The bill's chief sponsor was Del. Casper R. Taylor, Jr., (D-Allegany, Washington) who said the measure "corrects an overreaction that Maryland made on environmental problems ten years ago." Supporters hope the bill will attract new industry to Maryland. Gov. Lee also said "Maryland apparently has gotten itself the reputation as a state having unreasonably strict air quality standards. We're trying to create a favorable business climate."

Taylor blamed the air quality regulations as one reason for the "state's very slow moving, stagnant rate of economic development and a continuing decline in industrial jobs."

He also said many other issues must be addressed if Maryland's economic development is to be turned around, but he is enthusiastic about Lee's recently announced five-part strategy for development. Taylor said proposals for new sources of energy, tax reform, and "elimination of departmental in-fighting where issues of environment and development overlap" all will serve to boost the Maryland economy.

Garrett County
Teachers Association

Garrett County Teachers Association is currently involved in an investigation of possible Title IX discrepancies with the local school board. These discrepancies involve hiring practices of a possible discriminatory nature within the ranks of Physical Education teaching staff.

Although some figures may point to the contrary, it can not be denied that an imbalance of the male/female employment ratio in Physical Education exists in Garrett County Schools. Of the Physical Education teachers here, there is nearly a 3:1 ratio of male to female teachers presently employed as physical education instructors or coaches, whereas there is an equal number of girls' gym classes as there are boys' classes.

Why is there not an equal number of women physical education teachers to supervise the girls' physical education classes? Why have some women, who are qualified to be physical education teachers, been placed in positions within our school system in favor of hiring men for physical education job openings?

Getting the Law Enforced: NEA Fights Sex Discrimination in the Classroom.

Teachers and students could be profoundly affected by Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments — if the antisex discrimination regulations are effectively enforced.

NEA teachers, through resolutions passed at the Representative Assembly, have expressed their opposition to sexual stereotyping in the schools. They have encouraged school systems to give female students an equal chance to participate in all education programs, including athletics.

Through the DuShane Fund, NEA defends the rights of all its members, including women teachers who have suffered job discrimination.

NEA belongs to the National Coalition for Women and Girls in Education, which is actively seeking a more effective government enforcement of Title IX and another women's equity law.

Coalition representatives have met with Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, HEW Office of Civil Rights Director David Tatel, and Office of Management and Budget officials to seek their support in enforcing Title IX.

Federal enforcement of sex discrimination in education has been lax — a point conceded by HEW in settling the case of Women's Equity Action League (WEAL) v. Califano.

NEA joined WEAL in its legal action, along with the National Organization for Women, the Association of Women in Science, the Federation of Organizations for Professional Women, the National Student Association, three women professors who had suffered sex discrimination in employment, and a female junior high school student who had experienced bias in her school's athletic program.

The settlement negotiated by WEAL, the other plaintiffs, and the government formed the basis of an order issued by U. S. District Judge John Pratt in Washington, D. C.

The Order:

Commits HEW to doubling the number of staff in its Office for Civil Rights by immediately adding 898 new positions.

Directs HEW to try to clean up its backlog of 3,000 unprocessed complaints by September 30, 1979.

Sets specific timetables for processing both old and new complaints, but leaves to the Office of Civil Rights the flexibility to conduct "broad compliance reviews" (investigations of institutions where no complaint has been filed).

"Victims of Discrimination"

Announcing the settlement, HEW Secretary Califano admitted that throughout most of the 1970s many individual complaints "were ignored by OCR or were shelved without a review, and the victims of discrimination did not receive the protection they deserved from the federal government."

Added OCR Director Tatel, the settlement "gives us the flexibility to implement a really aggressive civil rights enforcement program; the victims of discrimination did not receive the protection they deserved from the federal government."

Documenting HEW's lassitude over the past several years was a report by the Project on Equal Rights (PEER), "Stalled at the Start: Government Action on Sex Bias in the Schools." PEER is sponsored by the National Organization of Women's Legal Defense and Education Fund.

It took HEW three years to issue regulations to Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972. The regulations were effective July 21, 1975.

Peer charges that from August 1976 through June 1977 HEW officials made virtually no Title IX rulings under an unofficial moratorium.

Sex Bias Charges Ignored

Following are some of the complaints by teachers and students which ended up in bureaucratic limbo, according to Peer:

"A ninth-grader in Livonia, Michigan, wanted to learn how to handle power tools but shop classes were off limits for girls. 'Women,' she was told, 'should stick to home ec.' She wrote the government for help in 1973. Three years later, HEW wrote back, got no answer, and closed the case. The government never checked to find out if girls were still barred from taking shop."

"Something is wrong! I am doing more work for less pay; a New Jersey woman wrote HEW in September 1973. She was coaching four girls' teams for one-third of what the school paid men to coach one team. HEW left her complaint in limbo before closing it without an investigation."

"Twenty-nine Minnesota school districts were discriminating against women in promotions to supervisory jobs, a women's organization told HEW in 1973. Of 152 administrators in those districts, two were women. Investigators did not begin to look into the charges until 1977."

The Peer report cited a 1972-73 NEA study which showed that although women outnumbered men in the classroom by two to one, they served as principals in only 13.5 percent of the nation's schools.

Women principals headed less than 3 percent of the country's junior highs and only 1.4 percent of the senior high schools. "Women superintendents were rarer than whooping cranes," said Peer, "amounting to one-tenth of one percent of the total."

Unequal Treatment

"Access to positions of authority and higher pay is not the only area of school life in which women meet unequal treatment. Discrimination is common in such matters as salary scales, unequal pay supplements, and health and pension benefits. These are bread-and-butter issues to the millions of women employed in the nation's public schools, and their families. Employment related grievances constitute the single largest category of charges filed with HEW under Title IX," said the Peer study.

"Aside from the harm done to individuals, exclusion of women from administrative positions also has a long-term unwholesome effect on the school system. Every day, in schools all over the country, students see about them a power structure that reinforces all of the old sterotypes in their textbooks — women may run their classrooms, but men run the show."

What, Exactly, Is Title IX?

Regulations to implement Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 barring sex bias in education went into effect on July 21, 1975.

They affect 16,000 public school systems and 2,700 colleges and universities receiving federal aid. Violations could result in a cutoff of funds or a federal lawsuit to force compliance.

Title IX is the first federal law that requires both positive affirmative action to prevent sex bias, and remedial action to overcome the effects of that discrimination.

For Teachers, Title IX prohibits discrimination in advertising and recruitment, hiring, compensation, employment criteria, promotion, tenure, training, sick leave, and fringe benefits.

Institutions can't discriminate against a female teacher because she is pregnant, nor can they inquire about a teaching applicant's marital status.

Students are affected also. Guidance counselors are barred from steering students of one sex only into specific classes or courses and from using separate tests for girls and boys.

Males and females are guaranteed equal access to all courses and extracurricular activities (except that the sexes may be separated when human sexuality is taught).

This includes the right to compete athletically, though body contact sports such as football, wrestling, and boxing may be separated by sex.

Elementary schools should already have complied with physical education requirements, but secondary schools and universities have until July 21, 1978, to carry out the law.

Reprinted from the "NEA Reporter" April, 1978.

Wheat Target Price Raised

Farmers participating in the 1978 Wheat Set-aside Program will be eligible for program benefits based on a target price of $3.40 instead of $3.00 per bushel, according to Paul A. Crowl, Chairperson of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

The Emergency Agricultural Act of 1978, recently signed by the President, authorized a 40-cent increase in the wheat target price, and a two-week extension in the signup period.

"The higher target price for wheat should encourage more farmers to sign up for the Set-aside Program," Crowl said. Signup will be conducted at the ASCS county office through May 31. "This will allow farmers more time to think about the new rates and decide on their participation."

Target prices represent a floor price that eligible farmers may receive nationally for their crops planted within the national program acreage. If the national average market price of a particular crop falls below the target price, a deficiency payment is made equal to the difference between the target price and the larger of the national loan rate or the market price.

Byron Names Bass Campaign Manager

Rep. Goodloe Byron, Democratic incumbent candidate for Congress, has named John D. Bass as his full-time Campaign Manager to organize and coordinate all re-election activities throughout Central and Western Maryland.

His wife, Virginia Gale Bass, will serve as a full-time Executive Assistant for the campaign. Both were politically active in the 1976 Maryland senatorial primary race coordinating campaign activities in Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Mr. Bass, a political science graduate from Frostburg State College, has served as Voter Registration Chairman for the Democratic State Central Committee in Allegany County. He was also appointed Volunteer Coordinator in 1976 by the Democratic Party and was responsible for planning, organizing and implementing the county-wide political campaigns of the four major Democratic candidates — Carter/Mondale, Sarbanes and Byron.

Mr. Bass is currently on leave from Honeywell Incorporated where he serves as Customer Liaison Engineer. A Navy veteran he has served throughout the world as a Communications Technician and has received the Naval Unit Commendation for support operations in Vietnam and Letter of Commendation from the Director of the National Security Agency. He was also Public Relations Director for the Cumberland Area Rescue and Emergency Service.

John and Virginia have two children, Paul, aged 10, and Joel, aged four.

Dr. Arnett To Be Honored June 4 Upon Retirement

The people of Rowlesburg will have an opportunity to honor one of their most popular citizens, Dr. Jerome Arnett, Sr., on Sunday afternoon, June 4. Dr. Arnett will be retiring May 31, after 37 years of medical practice.

Dr. Arnett was born in Parsons and moved to Aurora when he was five years old. He and his wife, the former Maye Fike, both attended and graduated from Aurora High School in the same class.

Dr. Arnett received his Bachelor Science degree from West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon. He took two years medical work at West Virginia University, which at that time was only a 2-year school. He received his M.D. from the University of Maryland in Baltimore. He did his internship at Lutheran Hospital in Cleveland, Ohio.

The Arnetts are the parents of four children. The eldest, Dr. Jerome Arnett, Jr., is a lung specialist at Memorial General Hospital in Elkins, West Virginia. Dr. Edward Arnett is a pediatrician in Martinsburg. Dr. Carroll Arnett is doing research work at University Hospital in Durham, North Carolina. Mrs. Collette Keener, their daughter, lives in Newark, Ohio.

Dr. Jerome Arnett, Sr., is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Association of Family Practice, and the Preston County Medical Society.

Dr. Arnett began his medical practice in the office of Dr. Miller of Eglon, West Virginia, in 1941. He then opened his own office in Rowlesburg in 1943. In 1950 he built his own clinic in Rowlesburg where he has practiced until the present time.

Dr. Arnett says he will not be idle after his retirement. He has many plans and hobbies that he intends to pursue full time. Finishing his book is one of them. He is an avid fisherman, camera enthusiast, and nature lover.

Open House will be held in Christ Church in Rowlesburg on Sunday afternoon, June 4, from 2 to 5 p.m. The public is invited.

THE IMPORTANCE OF LOCATION

Any Realtor will tell you that the three most important factors concerning the value of a house are: "Location, Location, and Location." Unfortunately, most home buyers ignore this important advice.

Location is especially vital when buying a house for maximum resale value. Statistics say that you will be reselling your home long before the final mortgage payment is in the mail. Therefore, take a long, hard look, not only at the present, but the future prospects for the community and immediate neighborhood.

Select a location where raw land and house values have an increasing price trend. Especially check into the zoning laws for any unfavorable change which could cause a depreciation in the value of the neighborhood and the resale price of your home in the future.

Remember - you can remove, replace or remodel a house, but you can never change the location. So choose carefully.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone one of our offices:

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. We have just started shopping for a home and found the prices to be very high. Should we wait in hopes that prices will lower?

A. Chances are home prices will go even higher; part of the reason is inflation. Investing in a home now before prices go higher is one of the best hedges against inflation. Keep in mind that next year's "bargain" price may be today's going price.

Send in your questions to our office. All questions will be answered.

Someone should teach a course on "evasive tactics to discourage door-to-door salesmen and other unwanted callers." But since no one has as of yet, maybe I can provide a few pointers.

A particularly bothersome caller is the religious salesman. This includes those looking for converts and/or donations; or those selling religious memorabilia. Remember the dove that Noah released from the ark — the one that didn't return? Well, the bird is yours for only $12.95. Also available are Tower of Babel paperweights, "pillars of salt" salt-shakers and a water into wine kit. Whenever I see a religious salesperson approaching my block I don a burlap sack, dump the ash bucket over my head and start singing, "The Old Rugged Cross" at the top of my lungs. Then I open the door with an Oral Roberts smile, present my best holier-than-thou attitude and inform them that I couldn't possibly afford any of their material because I over-tithed last year. It works every time.

The encyclopedia salesman requires a different approach. You can always hear him coming — his groans are clearly audible from two blocks away. He's the one with the triple hernia from dragging a complete set of Funk & Wagnalls around. The moment I hear a groan, I run upstairs, vaseline my hair back, put a pair of huge tortoiseshell hornrim glasses on, button my top shirt button, slip on a pair of cordovan penny-loafers and tie a sweater emblazoned with Yale around my shoulders. Then I throw open the door and say, "Won't you come right in — I've been dying to discuss some of the more miniscule theses used in conjunction with several Jungian psycho-physiological works and also evident in the theological synthesis of Zwingli's philosophical endorsement of Luther's position concerning the edict of Nantes. The salesman usually muffles a scream,murmurs an "I must have the wrong address" and heads for the hills.

I even have a routine for the Fuller Brush Salesman. I come to the door with a hairbrush perched on my head, a toothbrush in my mouth, a bottle brush and clothes brush visibly protruding from my hip pocket, carrying a broom and a feather duster. I then tell the guy I'm just the houseboy and that my employer, who is president of the Acme Brush Manufacturing Company is out of town. I then ask him to stop back — none of the salesmen ever come back. I wonder why?

Maryland Students Improve Functional Reading Skills

Maryland students continue to make steady improvement in acquiring the reading skills needed to function in society, according to reading test results released by the State Department of Education.

Scores of 7th and 11th graders on the Maryland Functional Reading Test show that students today are more competent in performing reading tasks on credit card applications, tax forms, and job applications than students in the same grades two years ago. The program of instruction in "survival" reading skills began in 1975.

The Maryland Functional Reading Program encompasses a sequence of skills for students in grades kindergarten through 12 in five categories: locating references, understanding forms, gaining information, following directions, and attaining personal development through reading.

Eleventh grade students showed a higher score than 7th and 9th graders in all categories of reading skill. Reading for personal enjoyment, however, is selected by more 7th grade students than 9th or 11th grade students.

Of 57,180 11th grade students statewide tested last October, 89 percent demonstrated their competency by answering at least 80 percent of the items correctly. This was a 2 percent improvement over last year's results.

Seventy-four percent of the 9th graders and 72 percent of the 7th graders achieved the desired level of competency. The number of 7th graders who achieved competency this year increased by 3 percent over last year. Ninth graders took the test this year for the first time.

Older students scored higher on the tests than younger students in all skill categories except locating references in such materials as encyclopedias and job manuals. In that category, more 7th graders achieved competency than 9th graders.

Statewide, the test results suggest that 7th grade classes need more emphasis on reading newspapers, training manuals, and other materials to gain information. Eleventh grade students perform well in reading to gain information but less well in locating references.

In questions on reading attitudes, 52 percent of the 7th grade students said they enjoy reading as a spare-time activity, while only 41 percent of the 11th grade students expressed a preference for reading.

St. Paul's Women's Society Meets

The Women's Society of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Grantsville, met recently at the home of Mrs. Brenda Hunt.

Mrs. Nancy Jones, president, presided. Mrs. Sadie E. Triplett, Pastor, conducted the devotions, using as her theme, "Faith Without Works."

Others attending were: Mrs. Helen Paul; Mrs. Betty Landis; Mrs. Sue Bowers; Mrs. Marsha Swauger and daughters Amy, Tammy and Lisa.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Sue Bowers.

Mathias Recommends $5 Million For Oil Spills, Derailments

In separate recommendations to the Senate Appropriations Committee's transportation subcommittee, Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) this week asked for nearly $5 million in additional funds to handle coastal oil spills and to conduct comprehensive studies of the shipment of hazardous materials by rail.

The funds would be added to the U. S. Department of Transportation's budget for the 1979 fiscal year.

Mathias requested $4.9 million to beef up the U. S. Coast Guard's capacity for cleaning up major oil spills. The recommendation comes in the wake of recent hearings Mathias held in Annapolis, and a General Accounting Office study which showed the Coast Guard lacks adequate manpower and equipment for containing and cleaning up oil spills in rivers, harbors, and off-shore areas.

Under the Mathias recommendations $3 million would be added to the Coast Guard's research and development efforts in testing and evaluating an airborne all-weather surveillance system (AIREYE). Twenty civilian employees would be added to the Coast Guard oil spill research and development program under the appropriation at a cost of $300,000.

The recommendation also provides $1.6 million for personnel and equipment assigned to the Coast Guard's oil spill response efforts. An authorization of $600,000 would enable the Coast Guard to lease 74 pollution response vans equipped with oil containment booms and other oil collection and storage equipment. The remaining $1 million is for 100 new employees to operate and support the pollution response vehicles. Two of the vans would be assigned to the Baltimore area.

In his second set of recommendations, Mathias requested $365,000 for the National Transportation Safety Board to conduct two rail studies of hazardous material shipment in the United States.

1. $182,500 for a special study of the Federal Railroad Administration's track standards.
2. $182,500 for a study of the shipment of hazardous materials by rail.

Six new staff positions would be added to NTSB for the studies, the first phase of which is to be completed by March 1, 1979.

The funds will enable the Board to undertake a comprehensive study to determine how the FRA can reduce and prevent derailments which result in the spillage of hazardous materials.

In hearings conducted last month by Senator Mathias members of the NTSB testified that the FRA has failed to implement regulations or develop safety procedures to reduce the incidence of hazardous material derailments, and indicated their interest in investigating the situation.

Mathias said the $365,000 request "is less than the cost of any one hazardous material derailment."

Maryland—Sixth District

This regular column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with the citizens of Central and Western Maryland. You may send your questions to me, in care of the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. While space is obviously limited for printing all replies, I will answer each of you who writes. The following questions are typical of those asked of me in recent weeks:

What is the status of your legislation which would abolish the Fuel Adjustment Clause in utility bills?

Over the past few weeks I have taken several steps with regard to this measure. A letter was sent to all 435 Members of Congress calling attention to the importance and critical nature of the problem of high electric costs and twelve congressmen have now joined me in cosponsoring the bill. I have also testified before a congressional subcommittee on Energy & Natural Resources urging a review of the procedures governing the wholesale purchase of electricity during emergency situations such as the recent coal strike. Interstate sales between utility companies are quite properly a matter of Federal jurisdiction and I feel Congress has an obligation to the citizens we serve to ensure that the public interest is protected when such large amounts of electrictiy are exchanged. Finally, on a related matter, your 6th District Energy Task Force reconvened in Washington to advise me on the National Energy Act as well as the utility rate issue. As you know, during the past 18 months, the Task Force has been helping me to focus on all the energy related problems affecting residents of Central and Western Maryland.

What is the latest news on the Alaska Wilderness Bill?

As many of you know, the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act passed the House in mid-May 277-31 and is currently pending in the Senate. Under the measure, about one-third of the State of Alaska would be set aside as parks, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers and wilderness areas. I fully supported this legislation as a member of the Interior Committee and I will continue to work hard for its final passage.

How soon before the Department of Transportation makes a final decision on the dualization of Route 15 in Frederick County?

I have been in regular contact with the Federal Department of Transportation and have received assurances from Transportation Secretary Brock Adams that a prompt review will be made of the environmental impacts of the U. S. 15 dualization. As you may know, a Memorandum of Agreement was reached last week by the State Highway Administration and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.

Please explain your measure which would encourage industry to locate or expand in Central and Western Maryland?

The tax incentive legislation I have co-sponsored would encourage industry and business to locate in labor surplus areas including Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Carroll, Baltimore and Howard Counties. Special tax incentives include an additional 10% investment tax credit, accelerated depreciation allowances, and double deduction of state and local real property taxes applying to newly acquired property to be used for manufacturing purposes. Keying the tax incentives to pre-defined labor surplus areas means that we can generally target aid toward areas of greatest need. For our area, the Targeted Tax Relief Act of 1978 could well mean a beginning to the end of chronic unemployment problems because industry and business would be induced to develop and grow in Central and Western Maryland.

Maryland farmers have agreed to hold 32,000 acres from production this year.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my husband, Perry Uphold, who passed away three years ago, June 4, 1975.

June brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest. You can't know the feelings or the sadness that it brings until you lose a loved one. It only takes a little space to tell how much we miss you, but it will take a lifetime, dear husband, to forget the day we lost you; and secret tears still flow, what it meant to lose you, none will ever know.

Sadly missed by

Loving Memories

Your gentle face and patient smile, with sadness we recall; you had a kindly word for each, and died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart that loved us well and true, ah, bitter was the trial to part from one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one, nor will you ever be; as long as life and memory last, we will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore, as time goes on we miss you more; Your loving smile, your gentle face, no one can fill your vacant place.

THE REPUBLICAN

Good Luck, Graduates

Garrett County now has among its ranks 344 new high school graduates. To them we extend our congratulations and perhaps a few bits of wisdom which may not have been included in the several graduation addresses.

For those graduates who are planning to leave the county, whether it be to attend college or vocational school, to serve in the armed forces, to secure a job elsewhere, to get married or whatever the reason, we hope they remember that they will always be representatives of Garrett County. As a whole, Garrett County graduates have always fared well in the world and there is no reason to think that the class of '78 won't do the same.

Though the graduates have already attained a high degree of knowledge (probably more than they realize), in many ways, their education has just begun. Dozens of new challenges and rude awakenings lie just around the corner.

These graduates should be mighty proud of their Garrett County background. A finer stock of people they will find nowhere. Many of those who leave will quickly realize how much they have taken Garrett County for granted. A great number of those who said that they "couldn't wait to get out" will be right back here in a few years. However, it is indeed good to get away, if for nothing more than just to appreciate the quality of this county and its people.

For those who stay, we hope they jump in and become a vital part of the county by getting involved in solving the problems that face all counties.

For those who leave, we wish them good luck and hope that many are able to return. We all know that job opportunity here in Garrett County is certainly not the best. For some, it's not possible to return. However, the present county government seems quite aware of that fact and is working diligently to change this situation. Much progress has been made just in the past ten years.

So many believe the grass is greener on the other side. Most soon discover that the grass in Garrett County is just about as green as it gets.

County Deputies Check Larcenies

Several larcenies were under investigation by members of the Garrett County sheriff's department over the past few weeks.

Helen Coleman, Turtle Creek, Pa., reported May 27 that a 12-foot green aluminum boat had been taken from her residence on Lake Shore Drive. Value of the boat was estimated at $299.

On May 17, Gerald Chadderton, Kitzmiller, told police someone had taken his CB radio and a fishing pole from his automobile. Value of the items was set at $150.

More fishing equipment, this time valued at $150, had been taken May 12. Donald Lipscomb, Route 1, Oakland, told the deputies that the items had disappeared from a storage building beside his house.

A bicycle which disappeared early June 3 was later found in Mt. Lake Park and returned to its owner. The bike belonged to John Schrimshire, Broad Ford Road, and was valued at $100.

A breaking, entering and larceny was reported at the Piney Mountain Corporation clubhouse May 30. Entry was apparently made through a rear window, according to John F. Dragoo, who noted that food and drink items totaling $83 were missing.

Weather

Showers and thunderstorms today and likely at times tonight and Thursday. Highs both today and Thursday in the 70s. Lows tonight in the low 60s. The chance of rain is 80 percent today and 70 percent tonight and Thursday. Southerly winds 10 to 15 mph with stronger gusts in thunderstorms today and tonight.

Extended forecast Friday through Sunday — Variable cloudiness through the period. Chance of mainly afternoon or evening showers or thundershowers each day. High will average around 80 to mid 80s, with lows mostly in the 60s but some 50s in the mountains.

Building Program Tops Agenda For School Board

Top items on the agenda for the June 8 meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education will be a discussion of the ongoing building program in the county. A new school for Grantsville, Dennett Road School renovation, the Crellin relocatable, opening of Northern Middle School and site work at Southern High School are also scheduald for deliberation.

In addition to the building program the board will discuss transportation guidelines, cafeteria management, and the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Title I program.

Possible action may come on curricula, extra curricula and co-curricula activities for the middle schools. The Board of Education held hearings on the proposed policies at its May meeting. It has been the policy of education officials to not treat the middle schools as mini-high schools. A formal board policy should clarify activities for sixth to eighth grade students.

Board members will address another policy — whether to issue certificates as well as diplomas to students completing four years of high school. Presently, only one diploma is issued statewide for high school graduates who complete 20 credits with a "D" or better grade. Certificates may be developed for special education students.

Curriculum discussion has consistently led the board meeting agendas; however, tomorrow's meeting will not include such discussion despite a directive from the board's president Herbert Harman last fall to have a science curriculum ready for adoption by this spring. The science curriculum is still in the committee.

Another agenda item missing for tomorrow is action on a petition to have school board meetings held at night. A petition for night meetings was first presented in October and again in April by citizens who felt the evening meeting time would be better for the public. Action on the petition is expected next month, along with election of the board's officers.

The board has scheduled a meeting June 19 to adopt the fiscal year 1978-79 budget

Board Of Public Works Asked For Deadline Extension

The Board of Public Works has been asked to extend the deadline for the Garrett County Sanitary District to pay $15,588.08 it owes to the state.

The money is due to repay principal and interest from a water quality loan of $160,000 approved in 1968.

The sanitary district recently completed litigation with the town of Mt. Lake Park for a sum of $74,949 covering sewage treatment and interest incurred from October 1975. Mt. Lake Park had steadfastly refused to pay, but now has been ordered by the Garrett County Circuit Court to foot the bill.

The Board has been asked to grant another extension on the loan payment until the problem is worked out.

Seven Percent Tax Rate Cut Is Possibility

Garrett County property owners may expect the largest property tax rate reduction in more than eight years if the county commissioners adopt the $2.45 per $100 of assessed value rate at the end of June.

The proposed 18-cent slash in the rate would mark the second time in as many years that the rate has dropped in Garrett County. Last year the rate was cut ten cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The projected $7,880,000 budget represents the largest expenditure in the county's history, offset by new sources of revenue, including substantial assessment increases attributed to new development, which make the seven percent tax rate decrease possible.

W. Marshall Rickert, county administrator, said the $206,937,558 assessable tax base for the fiscal year 1978-79 budget includes $11 million in new development.

Last year's assessable base was $185 million, with the tax rate at $2.63 per $100 assessed value. Both the old rate and the proposed new rate include a five-cent special levy for fire departments.

According to the new figures, a home with a $15,000 tax assessment last year paid $394.50 in property taxes. That same property this year would be assessed at $15,000 and the homeowner would have a tax bill of $382.20 if the budget is adopted as proposed.

Rickert said the commissioners were certain they would be able to cut the tax rate and still maintain the same level of services. The commissioners instituted a new budgeting format this year which had included giving each of the county's 30 agencies a "target figure." In January, each department head was told to develop a budget request in line with the figures offered by the county commissioners.

The new policy was adopted to aid in letting the agencies know what the taxpayers are willing to pay, and would assist in keeping the departments within reasonable limits for requesting county money.

One county agency, the Board of Education, has already expressed public disapproval of the county's budget, and last week issued a statement which said the county commissioners were assuming school operations would not cost more next year.

If the commissioners adopt the proposed new budget, which is subject to public hearings, Garrett's tax rate reduction for the last two years will be one of the largest in the state.

Public hearings will be held Monday, June 12, at 10:30 a.m. in the grand jury room, Court House, Oakland. The commissioners are expected to take final action on the budget and levy June 26.

Students taking part in the ceremonies were Helen Niner, Southern, who gave the address of welcome; and Rebecca Sue Stanton, Northern senior class president, and Brenda Jane Sisler, junior class president, who participated in the mantle ceremony at Northern.

Cora Sue Humberson, daughter of Mrs. Juanita Humberson and the late Woodrow Humberson, is listed among Who's Who Among American High School Students and was co-editor of The Viking. She is a member of Quill and Scroll and was active in thespian efforts.

Open Line → Garrett County Memorial Hospital

This new column is meant to provide communication between the public and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. It is a combined effort by The Republican news staff and the administration of the hospital. Persons having questions and comments, both negative and positive, may send them to The Republican office for publication. Questions concerning specific medical cases will not be accepted because of possible legal consequences.

1. I have heard that the salary of the administrator of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital is $55,000/year. Is this true? How does this salary compare with salaries of other hospital administrators?

This is totally untrue. As a matter of comparison, hospital administrators in the 61 hospitals in the state average salaries between $20,000-$65,000 per year. The salary of the administrator of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital is in the lower 1/3 of the scale.

Nationwide, the comparison shows a similar comparison.

2. How much in debt was the Garrett County Memorial Hospital at the end of the last fiscal year?

Not in debt at all. At the end of fiscal 1977 (July 1, 1976-June 30, 1977) the Garrett County Memorial Hospital ended up with an excess of revenue over expenses of $28,812. As a comparison, listed below are the net gain or loss figures for the last ten years:

1977—28,812; 1976—13,716; 1975—(-8,523); 1974—14,529; 1973—(-10,811); 1972—(-70,273); 1971—(-102,999); 1970—(-38,476); 1969—248,425; 1968—(-9,605); 1967—11,794.

Although fiscal year 1978 began slowly, was compounded by the miners' strike and resulted in us reducing expenses, it is still projected that we will complete the year in the black. If we do, it will be the first time since 1966 and 1967 that we have done so two consecutive years in a row.

3. How do the employees' salaries and fringe benefits at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital compare with those of other hospitals in the state?

For a realistic comparison to be made we must compare salaries and benefits to Western Maryland hospitals specifically. A comparison to metropolitan hospitals is not realistic.

Two years ago, the beginning salary at the hospital for aides, housekeepers, and diet workers was $2.20/hour while the same job in Cumberland was receiving a rate of $3.25/hour. A difference of $1.05/hour. In an effort to "catch up" and become more competitive our rate now for those positions is $2.90/hour while those in Cumberland is $3.50/hour. A difference of $0.60/hour. This similar relationship held true for almost every position in the hospital. And, our progress towards paying a competitive rate also has had similar positive effects at each job level.

We are continuing to work towards increasing our salaries closer towards that at Allegany County hospitals as well as neighboring West Virginia institutions.

A similar situation has evolved with fringe benefits and efforts are continuously underway to make progress in that area.

Roadrunners Camp Near Cumberland

The Maryland State Spring Campout of the National Campers and Hikers Association, held at the Cumberland Fair Ground, was attended by seven families of the Garrett Roadrunners. They were the families of Laurence Selby and Winston Teats from Friendsville; Gary Teats, Bill Graham, and Melvin Schwing from Accident; and Harold Humberson and Dale Glass from Grantsville.

Activities included a flea market, parade (Maryland State Queen from the Cumberland Chapter), midway for camper groups, contests in horseshoe and darts to compete at the National meet to be held in Colorado in July, entertainment by singing groups, dance, and church service on Sunday. The Garrett Roadrunners assisted in the traffic control with Bill Graham in charge. The Garrett Roadrunners consist of 17 families.

In June the group will camp at Mirror Lake Camperland at Ligonier and in July at Appalachia Lake, Bruceton Mills, W. Va. The N.C.H.A. Scholarship Committee awarded a fund to Franklin Schwing in 1975 and again this year to David Schwing to be used at a four-year college. Membership to the group is made by recommendation of members.

The Fall Campout for the Northeastern states will be held at Callaway, Maryland in October.

Deputies Arrest Two Area Men

Two area men were arrested by members of the Garrett County Sheriff's department during the past few days.

A Friendsville youth on a motor vehicle charge June 1 was later arrested and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

Michael Casteel, 19, was stopped by a county deputy and transported to the county jail. A search there revealed a substance identified as marijuana.

Casteel has been released on his own recognizance pending trial.

Glen Harvey has been released on bond pending trial in connection with the larceny of a boat dock from Deep Creek Lake. Sylvia Smith, Star Route, Oakland, reported that sometime May 24 a dock valued at $1,000 had been taken. Harvey was later arrested and jailed until bond was made.

Sheriff's Report Lists 22 Arrests

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's department made 22 arrests during April on charges ranging from breaking and entering to assault and battery, according to Sheriff John Evan's monthly report.

His department served 224 papers on civil, criminal, law and equity matters, and answered over 175 complaints in all parts of the county.

Some 280 patrol checks were made for security purposes at homes and businesses.

Ten prisoners were incarcerated at the beginning of April and 41 prisoners were added by members of the sheriff's department, state police and Oakland police. Forty were released, leaving eleven incarcerated at the end of the month.

Four trips were made transporting prisoners to the Children's Center and to Springfield State Hospital.

Garrett County Child Development Project Now Accepting Applications

The Garrett County Child Development Project is now accepting applications for enrollment. Garrett Community College sponsors the Child Development Project in cooperation with the Maryland Department of Employment and Social Services and Appalachian Regional Commission.

The project includes six main areas of meeting the needs of its families. They include the Oakland Center, the Friendsville Mini-Center, the Kitzmiller Activities Center, Outreach-Home Visitor Services, Infant Stimulation, and Park-a-Tot. Each component provides health services for all children enrolled, and the curriculum for all the components includes a variety of activities to aid the children in their physical, emotional, and social growth.

The Oakland Center is located at the Garrett Community College Oakland Center. The center has an enrollment of 35 children ages eighteen months to five years who attend Tuesday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Transportation is provided for these children.

The Friendsville Mini-Center is located in the Ralph Murphy Building, Maple Street, Friendsville. The mini-center has an enrollment of twenty children ages two to five years. They attend two days a week in half day sessions with ten children in each session. Transportation is not provided for these children.

The Kitzmiller Activities Center has an enrollment of ten children ages two to five years. They attend two days a week in half day sessions. Transportation is also not provided for this center.

The Outreach component is located in all areas of the county. The home visitors spend one and a half to two hours one day a week visiting with each family. The home visitor brings specially prepared materials and activities to the home for the children and assists the mothers in learning the use of the activities.

The Infant Stimulation component is located at the Oakland Center. It has an enrollment of six infants, ages birth through seventeen months. The program consists of an affectionate nurturing atmosphere, motor development activities, and general stimulation. The hours for this service are 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. with mothers being present no less than two hours per day. Transportation is provided for these infants.

Park-a-Tot is also located at the Oakland Center. It provides services for Garrett Community College students and faculty instructors while they attend classes. Ages for these children are two to five years. The children may be scheduled for up to three consecutive hours in one day. A fee of fifty cents an hour is charged for this service, and bills are sent monthly. Transportation is not provided for these children.

Persons interested in obtaining an application for enrollment or having questions about the Child Development Project should stop by the main office at 104 East Center Street or call 334-8152 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The deadline for applications is June 30, 1978.

Sandi Sisler

Daniel Beiler

The American Youth Foundation, through its "I Dare You" committee, recently recognized four area students at the two county high schools as recipients of the 1978 Danforth awards.

Chosen from Southern were Patricia Keefe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Keefe, Oakland, and Paul Naylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Naylor, also of Oakland. Northern High recipients were Steven Lee Sisler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sisler, Friendsville, and Cora Sue Humberson, daughter of Mrs. Juanita Humberson and the late Woodrow Humberson, Friendsville.

This year for the first time Northern also presented Junior "I Dare You" awards. Recipients were Sandi Sisler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Roosevelt Sisler, Friendsville, and Daniel Beiler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Beiler, Accident. Both were recognized for their academic, sports and music achievements.

Copies of the book "I Dare You," were presented to the winners by principals Kenneth Bittinger and Luther Parrack.

The award is made yearly to the young man and young woman graduates of high schools who have demonstrated outstanding qualities of constructive leadership and who have exhibited balanced personal development in the areas of healthy physical habits, an alert and ever-growing mind, an outreach of friendship, and constructive social relationships within the home and community.

The salutatorian of her graduating class, Patricia Keefe was commended by the National Merit Scholarship test, and was a member of Who's Who Among American High School students and the Society for Distinguished American High School Students. In her junior year, she was awarded a certificate of merit from the Western Maryland section of the American Chemical Society, and has also served as secretary of the Southern High National Honor Society.

In addition to her academic accomplishments, Patricia was secretary of the junior class, treasurer of the American Field Service, and treasurer of the Future Teachers of America. She was a member of The Acorn newspaper staff and served as page one editor, art editor, and news bureau director.

She wrote "Southern Speaks" for The Republican, and in 1976 had attended a gifted and talented student workshop for creative writing students held at Maryland's Wye Institute.

During her senior year, she had works published by the National Essay Press and the National Poetry Press. She was a member of Quill and Scroll and was one of Southern's finalists in the National Council of English Teachers' essay contest in 1977.

Patricia has worked as a page at the Ruth Enlow Library and been involved in work at St. Peter's Catholic Church as a substitute teacher and member of the youth fellowship.

Paul is also a member in the top five percent of his graduating class and was a member of Who's Who Among American High School Students. He was a member of the National Honor Society and Quill and Scroll.

During the summer of 1977, he attended the center for gifted and talented students specializing in math. He was managing editor and page two editor of The Acorn.

Paul served as both president and vice president of the Ski club and as president of the ski racing team at Southern. In 1977 and 1978 he placed second in the New Germany Cross Country ski race. He was also a member of the tennis club.

Prior to his senior year, he attended Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion, and during his senior year was a member of the play cast which presented "The Mousetrap."

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Dear Sir:

The American Heart Association-Western Maryland Chapter is now actively seeking residents of Garrett County to become Heart Savers. This is in response to the fact that each year over 750 residents of Western Maryland die from heart attacks. And of the 750 deaths each year over 375 occur before the victim reaches the hospital.

We'd like each reader to ask himself what he would do if a loved one suddenly collapsed at home. How would you keep them alive until the arrival of the ambulance? If you do not know the answer to this question, then you should enroll in the Heart Saver Course.

Garrett County has excellent rescue squads, but the volunteers of these fine organizations need a viable patient to work with in order to help them. Time is an important factor when one is dealing with the victim of a heart attack. If someone nearby knows what actions to take when a person suffers a heart attack, it can mean the difference between life and death.

The Heart Saver training could make the difference. This program is designed especially for the lay public. It is given in one four-hour session at three different locations in the county. These locations are: the Garrett County Memorial Hospital, the Grantsville Area Health Center and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad Hall. The course will train each person who enrolls the early warning signs of heart attack, risk factors of heart attack, prudent living, how to enter into the emergency medical system, as well as the life-saving technique of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR).

To enroll in a Heart Saver class send your name, address and phone number to American Heart Association, 551 N. Centre Street, P. O. Box 1114, Cumberland, Maryland 21502 or for more information call 724-4011.

Sincerely,
The American

Public Meeting Scheduled On Conservation Law

A new federal conservation law, signed in November, 1977, is known as "The Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977." This law recognizes the need for public leadership to develop an accurate and meaningful appraisal and a grass-roots program to ensure an effective, workable conservation policy and program in the future.

The public is invited to participate in a meeting to be held in the Garrett Community College auditorium on Tuesday, June 13, at 7:30 p. m. Individuals or representatives of groups or agencies with an interest in conservation are urged to attend. Those in attendance can take a hand in the development of future conservation programs by letting their needs, desires, and objectives be known. This meeting is jointly sponsored by the Garrett Soil Conservation District and the USDA Soil Conservation Service according to John Reckner, District Conservationist.

Comments resulting from the meeting will be summarized and used at the local, state and national level to assure that public needs and desires are considered in future conservation programs according to Mr. Reckner.

Actions required by the law include gathering data to appraise the condition and quality of America's soil and water resources by 1979, outlining a five-year plan for the U. S. Department of Agriculture's conservation assistance, and evaluating the effectiveness and progress of ongoing programs.

Cooking Corner

It's fresh strawberry time again and there appears to be an abundant supply of the juicy, fragrant berries. Strawberries are versatile and can be used to provide many taste-tempting delights such as jams, jellies, pies, cakes, fruit salads, homemade ice cream, milkshakes, toppings, sauces and glazes.

When buying strawberries, look for plump berries with bright color, rich flavor and pleasing aroma. Strawberries bruise easily and, depending on the degree of ripeness when purchased, can deteriorate quickly if not handled properly. If berries are very ripe when picked or purchased, plan to use soon or flavor, quality and amount of yield will be reduced.

The following recipe is from "Joys of Jello" cookbook and is shared by Robin Sandsmark.

FROSTY STRAWBERRY PIE

1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
1 package (3 oz.) Strawberry or Mixed Fruit Gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
1 pint vanilla or strawberry ice cream
1 baked 9 inch pastry shell, cooled

Combine gelatin, sugar and boiling water and stir until gelatin and sugar are dissolved. Spoon in ice cream, stirring until melted and smooth. Chill until thickened, about 20 minutes. Fold in strawberries and pour mixture into pastry shell. Chill until firm, about 1½ hours or longer. Garnish with whipped cream or whipped topping, if desired.

The following recipe is from "Farm Journal Freezing and Canning Cookbook." This is easy to make and the fresh strawberry taste is unbelievable.

UNCOOKED STRAWBERRY JAM

2 cups finely mashed or sieved strawberries
4 cups sugar
1 package powdered fruit pectin
1 cup water

Combine fruit and sugar. Let stand for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Boil powdered pectin and water rapidly for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, add strawberries and stir about two minutes. Pour into containers and cover. Let stand at room temperature for one hour. Refrigerate until set. Store in freezer. Once opened, refrigerate. Makes 5-6 half pints. These jams will keep in a refrigerator for 2-3 weeks and will keep for up to a year in a regular freezer.

NUTRITION NOTE: Strawberries are a rich source of vitamin C which is an essential vitamin needed daily. Vitamin C prevents scurvy and is important in the maintenance of body tissues and promotion of healing. Strawberries which are washed without stems will lose more Vitamin C than berries which are de-stemmed after washing. Also, gently twist the fruit from the stem rather than pulling it from the stem.

TIP OF THE WEEK: If you are doing errands on a hot day, try to make grocery shopping the last stop on your list. Foods which are perishable can spoil easily in a hot car on a summer day. You might consider investing in a small, inexpensive foam freezer chest which will provide a safe place to store perishables for short periods.

King And Queen Elected For June

The policy has recently been changed regarding the Resident of the Month at the Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home. A King and Queen for the month will now be designated so that more residents may be honored for their accomplishments at the home.

The criteria which the nurses and nursing aides follow in electing the King and Queen are: the most active persons, the most helpful and those that interact with patients and staff. The aides and nurses on Annex 1 have selected Pearl Foglepole and Lewis Stoner as King and Queen for the month of June.

Pearl Foglepole was 78 years old May 15. She was admitted in January of 1978 and previously resided in Oakland. She insists on keeping herself busy watering the pansies recently planted outside the nursing home by the Swanton Girl Scouts and Brownies. She also helps in the dining room by helping to clear the tables.

Lewis Stoner has been a resident of the home since September of 1972. He recently turned 66 and takes an active part in the activities program. Mr. Stoner says he always enjoys the company of visitors and especially the volunteers.

Academy Nomination Procedure Announced By Senator Mathias

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) today announced procedures for applicants seeking Congressional appointment to five United States service academies.

Maryland students interested in pursuing appointment to the Military, Naval, Air Force, Merchant Marine or Coast Guard Academies should inform Senator Mathias' office before October 31, 1978, the deadline for applications for nominations to the class of 1979.

The nominations are strictly competitive and are based on the recommendations of the Senator's Academy Review Board which evaluates the merits of applicants. College Entrance Examination Board (SAT) scores of 450 verbal and 600 math, or a composite total of 1050, are required to qualify for an interview.

After the Board considers the student's academic record and interviews each applicant a final decision is made. Ten nominations are then made for each vacancy. Final decision on appointments is made by each service academy.

Students interested in obtaining further information and application materials should contact Ms. Linda Strine in Senator Mathias' Baltimore office — 1616 Federal Building, 31 Hopkins Plaza, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

New Motor Vehicle Law Is Enacted

A new Maryland law has been enacted regarding homicide by motor vehicle while the driver is intoxicated.

It is to be known as "Homicide by motor vehicle while intoxicated."

The penalty for this offense is noted as imprisonment for not more than two years or by fine of not more than $1,000 or both.

the ROCKPILE

by Cathy Helbig

In July of 1887, this ad was placed in the paper; "Wanted-At Garthright's store, 500 bushels nice potatoes. Will pay 50 cents cash." Quite reasonable for 500 bushel of potatoes, wouldn't you say?

"A tramp giving the name of Walter Williams was arrested in Oakland several days since, and committed under the town ordinances for ten days. He so closely answered the description of the alleged murderer 'Billy' Williams, of Alexandria, Va., that a detective was sent on from the city to identify him. The detective said that the tramp was not the man wanted, and he was released Thursday morning on the expiration of his sentence."

Barns were quite popular that month in the little community of Flatwoods; "Mr. Truman Pysell is now about to finish his barn." "Mr. Noah Pysell has finished his barn." "Mr. Jeremiah Beeghly is also building an edition to his barn."

John Alt had three head of cattle struck by lightning and the same day, Noah Pysell's new barn was also struck. Edith, his daughter, was in the barn at the time and was partially paralyzed as a result.

In August, "An interesting game of base ball was played in the Oakland Hotel grounds Saturday last, between the Oakland and Mt. Lake Park clubs, which resulted in favor of the Oakland club by a score of 18 to 11. Slattery, the Oakland pitcher, did good work."

Tourism was as prominent in 1887 as it is in our county today; "The number of visitors at the different hotels and boarding houses of our town are estimated at about eight hundred."

"Mr. C. B. Crop has purchased the patent right for Larnard Improved Furniture Spring and will continue the manufacture and sale of these excellent springs in Oakland."

September 3 brought the first frost to Garrett county. Considerable damage was done to buckwheat along Deep Creek and the headwaters of the Yough river.

Five guests staying in the Oakland Hotel were exhilarated by autumn and took upon themselves the walk from Oakland to Cumberland. They left at 5:21 a.m. and from the start a Mr. Howard of Baltimore made the pace. "He reached Cumberland at 10:30 having covered 57 miles in 17 hours. The rest of the party got in at 11:25, 45 minutes behind Howard. The party returned to Oakland by rail. They speak of the walk as one of the most beautiful and agreeable every taken by them. The route was by Deep Creek and Swaugers Mill to the National Pike."

More "excitement" from the winter months of 1887 next week!

Forgery, larceny and receiving stolen goods were among the cases heard in Circuit Court last week by Judge Fred A. Thayer.

Andrew Charles Snyder, RD 1, Oakland, pleaded guilty of storehouse breaking and larceny at a trial last Wednesday. A presentence investigation was ordered by Judge Thayer. The incident involved the property and goods of Adrian A. Spiker at Oakland in January. Just Golfing Around, Southern High Golf Team Ends Seventh Season

WATCH THE BIRDIE — One of the Southern Golf Team's graduating seniors is Larry Sanders, the 1977 PVC Champion and most valuable player for Southern. Larry was a team member for four years and carries an individual record of 104-4.

by Jim Willis

What has 24 legs, is seven-years old, wears spiked shoes, carries an array of clubs, possesses keen eyesight and holds an overall record of 130 wins, four losses? Answer: the Southern High School Golf Team.

The Southern High golfers have been phenomenally successful since their organization in 1971. In the span of their seven year career they have earned seven Potomac Valley Conference (PVC) championships.

The team was begun by Coach Don Stemple who guided their activities during the first year. Coach Jim Meyers then worked with the golf team for five years until Bill Freyman, a five-year veteran of Southern High School replaced Meyers this year.

Freyman is a graduate of the University of Maryland and finds his new coaching position challenging. He stated, "I've learned a lot this year. Some mistakes have been made, but they won't be repeated next year." At any rate, the Southern golfers tallied a season record this year of 25-3; not a bad record for a first year coach.

The team will lose several senior golfers to graduation this year. Larry Sanders, who played on the team for four years, leaves with the record for lowest individual score in PVC competition — 75, at three points over par. Larry is a three-time PVC participant and was the 1977 PVC champion and most valuable player for Southern. Over the past two years he has maintained an 81.5 average with an individual record of 104-4. Larry also served as the 1978 co-captain of his team and considers winning the PVC championship as the high point in his career. He said, "I think the golf team can be even better next year if there is practice, dedication and the desire to win — and never lose." Larry hopes to attend college on a golf scholarship or attend a business college.

Another senior, Jeff Orr, is the 1978 PVC champion and MVP for his team. He is the other team co-captain and has maintained an 81.1 average over the past two seasons, earning a 104-4 individual record. Jeff played for SHS for four years and was chosen for the PVC All-Tourney team two years in succession. He plans to attend college in North Carolina and play golf on the collegiate team.

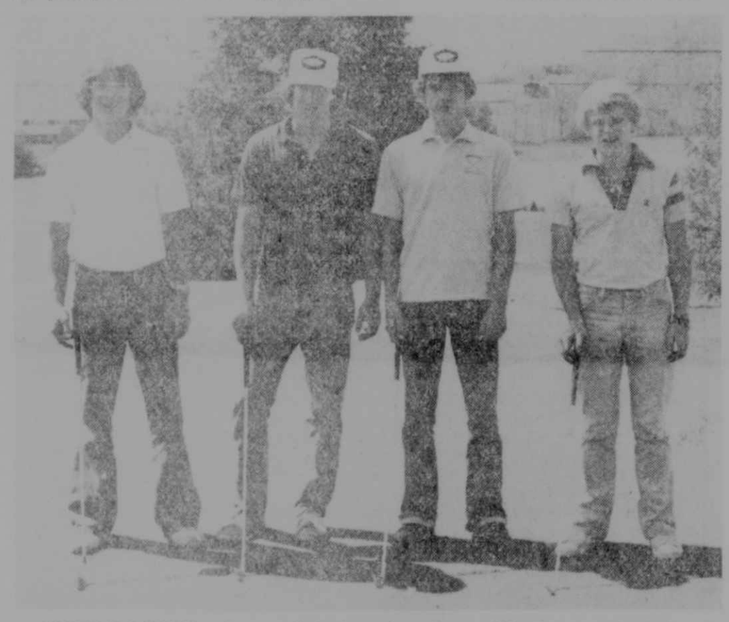
Jim Clark is also a senior and will be leaving the SHS team this year. He has been described as a very strong, highly spirited player and participated in team competition during his senior year.

Being accustomed to firsts, the golf team used the talents of its first female member, Debbie Daniels, this year. Debbie is a freshman and looks forward to a long career with the team.

Dan Daniels is an up-and-coming junior player and has been involved with the team for three years. Dan participated in two PVC tourneys and is described as a very consistent player. He has an average of 84.0 in team competition.

Darren Ream is also a junior and has been a team member for one year. He led the Junior Varsity team and is expected to be an asset during his senior year.

The 1977-78 team included three sophomores, Jeff Kurilla, Dean Daniels and Jim Beard. All three are two-year veterans and participated in the PVC this year. Advances in age and experience next year should prove beneficial to their performance. When a fellow team member was asked to comment on the boys, he said concerning Jeff, "He has the potential to be a great golfer." About Jim he stated, "He is a very consistent player and with practice there could be drastic improvements." When asked about Dean he offered, "Dean never gives up until the match is over, no matter what he's doing scorewise."



The freshman contingent of the team is represented by Jeff Ryscavage, Matt Pritts and Mark Powles. In another three years they could be rivaling the records of their predecessors.

The success of the golf team is phenomenal, but it is also understandable. The dedication of the players and their coach is supplemented with the support of several local merchants including, John Kurilla, Rob Sharps and Jim Kreyenbuhl.

The team also has a beautifully maintained and difficult par 71 course to practice on at the Oakland Country Club. Coach Freyman attributes much of the team's success to this 18-hole course. He stated, "Because we have such a difficult course to play on we usually travel to a match and find that the course is comparitively easier." Whatever the reason, the Southern High Golf Team seems headed for a charmed and enviable career.

UNDER-PAR STARS — Team participation and practice could be the reason for Southern's phenomenal record of 130 wins, four losses. Pictured, left to right, are team members, Jeff Kurrilla, Jim Beard, Darren Ream, and Mark Powles. These golfers will be all returning next year - a fact that could make PVC opponents a little nervous.

NOT JUST ANOTHER ROOKIE — Coach Bill Freyman, left, may be one of this year's new additions to the team but the SHS golfers tallied a 25-3 record this season under his leadership. Senior, Jeff Orr, right, is co-captain of the team and the 1978 PVC champion.

FIRST LADY — Freshman golfer, Debbie Daniels, is the undisputed "first lady" of the Southern Golf Team. Debbie is the first female golfer in the team's seven year career.

GCC Athletic Director, Dennis Fearnow, Announces Resignation

Dennis Fearnow, whose athletic teams have compiled an impressive 158-55 record during his career, has announced his retirement as athletic director at Garrett Community College, a position he's held since the formation of the college.

Fearnow, a native of Hagerstown, has been athletic director for seven years and was the school's first basketball coach. He also initiated a baseball program and since the Lakers joined the Maryland JUCO Conference, his athletic teams have not had a losing season.

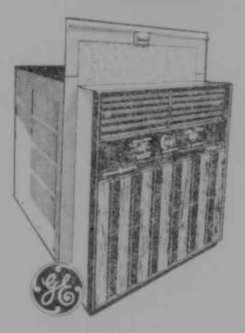
His 1973-74 basketball team compiled a 17-9 record and his 1974-75 team posted 19 wins, still a school record. His baseball teams have won 122 and lost 38 having participated in the Region 20 Tournament on three occasions.

Fearnow is a Hagerstown Jr. College and Bowling Green University graduate and has done work toward his doctorate at Brigham Young University. He will retain his position as associate professor at GCC along with chairmanship of the health and physical education department.

He noted with pride that two coaches serving under him have gone on to larger schools. Bill Camp is coaching basketball at Davis & Elkins while Paul Holzshu recently resigned from GCC to become head basketball coach at West Liberty State.

"Recruiting is the name of the game," said Fearnow, "and I always tried to use the small school tactic of Garrett as an advantage. We compete against Allegany CC and Baltimore-Washington area schools, and part of my philosophy has been to blend local and outside players."

He noted that his best advertisement has been his student-athlete stance for his players, who have been widely sought after by four-year schools. Also, he has tried, with immense success, to do well in a few sports rather than risk mediocrity with several.



"Also, I see no reason for me as an athletic director with only one intercollegiate sport," he said, noting that the college just recently dropped baseball with an anticipated emphasis on intra-mural sports.

Homemakers Hold Second Mini-Fair May 25

CAKE DECORATING KNOW-HOW was demonstrated for Homemaker mini-fair goers May 25 by Mrs. Ruth Harvey, Loch Lynn. Her artistic efforts and the entire cake were later won by the Casselman Valley Homemakers Club.

The Garrett County Council of Homemakers held its second Mini-Fair on May 25 at the McHenry fire hall with approximately 250 visitors and exhibitors taking part.

Seventeen booths were set up, displaying a variety of items. Three demonstrations were given during the day, featuring Mrs. Ruth Harvey decorating a cake; later won by the Casselman Valley Homemakers club; Mrs. Ferne Beachy, making a latch hook rug; and Mrs. Ethel Buckel, demonstrating crewel embroidery.

Special guests included Mrs. Edith Jenkins, Phoenix, Md., president of the Maryland Extension Homemakers Council; Mrs. Julia Miller, Hagerstown, district I director, Maryland Extension Homemakers Council, and Mrs. Peg Mearns, College Park, district supervisor.

Clubs presenting their wares at booths were Accident, handicrafts and potted plants; Bittinger, maple products; Casselman Valley, bake sale; Crellin, baked goods, white elephant sale and a craft sale; Deer Park, baked goods; Friendsville, miscellaneous items.

Hoyes club, candles, bandanna hats; Kitzmiller, various items; Loch Lynn, baked goods; Mars Hill, crafts made over the winter months; Meadow Glade, baked goods; Oakland, many handicrafted items; Route 40, pizzerle waffles and potted plants; Sunnyside, flea market; McHenry, sandwiches, and county 4-hers, Garrett County tee shirts.

The Homemakers gave away seven food baskets, with the proceeds of $408 going to IFYE fund to help sponsor a trip for Ann Carroll. Baskets were won by Mrs. Helen Williams, Baltimore; Grace Falkenstein, Oakland; Robert Dickinson, Oakland; Priscilla Bell, Oakland; Dora Schlossnagel, Accident; Ireta Callis, Mt. Lake Park, and Gladys Lashbaugh, Frostburg.

LOOKING OVER EXHIBITS at the Bittinger Homemaker booth were members Janet Brenneman, who is the club secretary, and Ethel Buckel, a member who demonstrated crewel work handicrafts for those assembled at the mini-fair May 25.

THE WINNER IS . . . — The Garrett County Homemakers featured a drawing for food baskets at their recent mini-fair. The fund-raising activity collected $408 as the county homemakers' and 4-H's contribution toward the Ann Carroll IFYE fund. Ann will depart June 18 for a six month stay in Trinidad and Tabago as the U. S. delegate in the International 4-H Youth Exchange Program. Ann, left, is assisted by Mrs. Opal Fazenbaker, president of the County Council of Homemakers; and Jane Rentschler, Extension Agent for Home Economics, right.

State Advertises For Construction Of Finzel Ramp

Sen. Edward Mason (R-Allegany, Garrett) announced Saturday that he has received word the State Department of Transportation is ready to advertise for bids for the Finzel Road access ramp off the National Freeway.

Bids on the project were advertised for on Tuesday and the offers will be opened July 11.

Sen. Mason noted that the lack of the ramp has been a problem for business owners and residents of the Finzel area because of access problems with the Freeway.

He said once the bids have been received and a contract awarded, the state has indicated it will make every effort to get the work started as soon as possible.

Carter Declares U.S. Seeks Detente, But Is Prepared For Confrontation

ANNAPOLIS, Md.(UPI) — President Carter today declared the United States seeks detente and peaceful cooperation with the Soviet Union but is adequately prepared if the Soviets choose confrontation instead.

In an address to the graduating class of the U.S. Naval Academy, Carter said "detente between our two countries is central to world peace" but must be "truly reciprocal."

"Both nations must exercise restraint in troubled areas and in troubled times," he said. "Both must honor meticulously those agreements, which have already been reached, to widen cooperation, mutually limit nuclear arms production, permit the free movement of people and the expression of ideas, and to protect human rights."

Aides described the address as an "olive branch" to the Soviets, but also a "very clear expression" of Carter's growing concern that the Russian military buildup in Europe, increasing involvement in Africa and denial of human rights in its own country could damage detente and erode public support for it.

The tone of the speech was moderate but the message was tough, against a backdrop of rising international tensions.

"The Soviet Union can choose either confrontation or cooperation," Carter said. "The United States is adequately prepared to meet either choice.

"We would prefer cooperation through a detente that increasingly involves similar restraint for both sides, similar readiness to resolve disputes by negotiation and not violence, similar willingness to compete peacefully and not militarily," he said.

But the president added that competition "without restraint and without shared rules" will escalate to graver tensions and the relationship will suffer.

"I do not wish this to happen - I do not believe Mr. (Leonid) Brezhnev desires it either - and this is why it is time for us to speak frankly and to face the problem squarely," he said.

As Carter spoke, diplomatic observers were saying the United States was giving conflicting signals in the international arena. He appeared to be trying to dispel any impression the United States is wavering in its resources or resolve.

"Let there be no doubt about our present and future strength," he told the graduates of the academy from which he graduated. He also said there is "certainly no cause for alarm ... the healthy self-criticism and free debate which are essential in a democracy should never be confused with weakness, despair or lack of purpose."

"Our long-term objective must be to convince the Soviet Union of the advantages of cooperation and of the costs of disruptive behavior," he said.

Citing Africa as a point of tension, Carter said "the persistent and increasing military involvement of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa" could deny the vision of Africa as a continent free of dominance by outside powers.

He urged Russia instead to join with the United States in speeding the transition to majority rule in Rhodesia and Namibia and peacefully resolving the conflicts in Eritrea and Angola.

Lawyer Tells Committee Of "Malpractice"

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The director of the University of Maryland Law School's Juvenile Clinic says plea bargaining in Baltimore's Juvenile Court has resulted in "massive malpractice."

Peter Smith told a subcommittee of the state Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee that plea bargaining should be ended for juveniles because it is "extraordinarily destructive of what the Juvenile Court is supposed to do."

He said Judge Robert Karwacki's leadership in the court over the last two and one-half years has greatly reduced the case backlog.

But the use of plea bargaining between prosecutors and state-appointed public defenders to expedite cases has caused "a substantial number of cases where children are found guilty of offenses they have not committed but to which they have pleaded guilty," he said Tuesday.

Plea bargaining has reduced the work burden of court employees, but "has weighed heavily and unjustly on the city's lower income families, most of them black," he told the subcommittee, which is drawing up guidelines for juvenile courts in the state.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled that plea bargaining was allowed in adult cases, but juvenile plea bargaining has never been tested, Smith said.

Steven A. Cohen, a spokesman for the Baltimore state's attorney's office, said 40 percent of 7,000 cases handled each year in the city's Juvenile Court are "closed out" without being tried.

He said that during part of 1975, 85 percent of the cases handled were plea bargained while the court had a backlog of 18,000 cases.

"I believe certain cases — school cases particularly — should be pleaded out. Contrary to what Peter Smith says, there are times when the worst thing that can happen is for a case to come to trial," Cohen said.

Smith said in many instances the accused juvenile spends very little time with his defense lawyer, frequently does not understand what is happening or what he is being asked to do and will probably take a dim view of justice through the courts.

"I'll be very blunt about it and say that there's a massive amount of malpractice that goes on," he said.

"In my view the child's constitutional rights to effective assistance of counsel are being massively violated in Juvenile Court," Smith said.

Nine Charged In Moro Death

ROME (UPI) — The police dragnet for the assassins of former Premier Aldo Moro today focused on three men, including the elusive chief of the Red Brigades' Rome section.

Magistrate Achille Gallucci Tuesday filed murder and kidnap charges against three new suspects, bringing to nine the number of people wanted for Italy's worst terrorist act since World War II. Police sources said more suspects may soon be named.

Gallucci issued similar charges Monday against five Red Brigades suspects arrested May 17 in a raid on a Rome print shop that had prepared leaflets for the gang.

But the sixth suspect named Monday, Mario Moretti, 32, a former electronics technician believed to be the Rome chief of the Red Brigades, has eluded police. Moretti slipped out of the print shop shortly before police raided it.

Of the three named Tuesday, only Maria Fiora Hirri Ardizzone, 28, a research worker, is in custody. She was arrested in Naples April 6 on weapons charges. The other two, Prospero Gallinari and Corrado Alunni, remained at large.

The six in custody have been spread among several jails to minimize their chances of escape.

But Italy's anti-terrorist measures Tuesday failed to stop a man and a woman from fatally shooting Antonio Santoro, the chief prison guard at the Udine prison.

Police said Santoro, 52, was walking from his home to the nearby prison when the man and woman, walking arm-in-arm down the sidewalk, suddenly drew large-caliber pistols and shot him in the back.

Santoro, married and father of three, died en route to the hospital.

Officers said the couple who shot him escaped in a car that carried two other persons.

One anonymous caller to the Venice newspaper Gazzettino claimed Santoro was killed by the Red Brigades. Another caller to the ANSA news agency said the slaying was carried out by the "Armed Proletarians for Communism."

Police officials said they were not sure which, if either, of the calls was genuine.

They noted Santono had been involved in a scuffle last March with one of 10 prisoners who, along with four guards, were accused of bribery and smuggling money, drugs and cigarettes into the jail.

Moro, leader of the ruling Christian Democratic party and a leading candidate for presidency of the republic in elections later this year, was killed May 9.

Sadat Warns Stalled Talks May Mean War

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat wants Israel to come up with new proposals for the stalled Middle East peace negotiations, warning that failure of the initiative could mean a new Arab-Israeli war.

State-controlled newspapers today played up the warning, with the influential Al Ahram describing it as "clear-cut."

Speaking Tuesday to the troops of the Egyptian 2nd Army in the Suez Canal city of Ismailia, Sadat said, "I will give you the order, just as I gave you the order (to wage) the October 1973 war, if peace efforts fail to ensure Egypt's honor and sovereignty."

The Egyptian leader appeared to be reneging on a promise he made last November during his historic trip to Jerusalem that the 1973 war should be the last between the Arabs and Israel.

His speech indicated dissatisfaction with the lack of progress in the collapsed peace negotiations, which he blamed on Israel's intransigent stand.

Sadat said the negotiations will not be resumed "unless Israel comes up wth new elements (proposals). The old elements are totally rejected."

Sadat's statements acquired significance in view of his earlier statement that the success or failure of his peace initiative would be determined by October.

Sadat contends the Sinai military disengagement agreement between Egypt and Israel expires in October. He also promised a bombshell "surprise" July 23 when Egypt celebrates the 26th anniversary of the 1952 revolution that overthrew the monarchy.

But Sadat made it clear his peace initiative was still alive. "Our minds and hearts remain open," he said.

"We are ready to build peace and good neighborliness, but not at the expense of our territory and our sovereignty. We are ready to give Israel peace and security, but not (our) territory or sovereignty," he said.

Direct negotiations between Egypt and Israel collapsed in January after both sides reached a deadlock on the future of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

Gov. Wallace Considering Senate Race

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace is seriously considering running for the late Sen. James B. Allen's unexpired Senate term, a press aide said today.

"The governor has renewed some interest in that two-year term," said Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary. "The governor has received a heavy outpouring of letters and phone calls asking him to run."

Wallace announced May 16 that he was pulling out of the Senate race to succeed retiring Sen. John J. Sparkman, saying he did not want to move to Washington, D.C.

But Camp said Wallace began reassessing his political future after Allen died last Thursday. Allen's term expires in January, 1981.

California Votes For Lower Taxes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Californians have sent their politicians a clear message — reduce property taxes and limit government spending.

The aftershock of this particular California earthquake — Proposition 13 — likely will be felt in other states as tax-weary homeowners join the revolt.

By a nearly 2-1 margin, Californians voted Tuesday to approve the Jarvis-Gann tax limitation initiative that promised 60 percent property tax reductions.

Passage of the measure, which attracted nationwide attention, was a setback for Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and the political and business establishment of the state.

The battle over the measure now almost certainly moves from the polling places to the court dockets, as legal challenges are mounted.

With almost two-thirds the vote counted, Proposition 13 was winning 63-37 percent.

Proposition 8, which would have triggered a more modest tax relief measure supported by Brown and the Legislature, trailed 53-47 percent.

"The people have spoken very clearly," said Brown, who won the Democratic nomination for a second term. "There will be no new state taxes and we must put a lid on government spending."

Howard Jarvis, 75, co-author of the measure, declared: "I thought it would be a landslide all the time."

He characterized the state as divided into two groups, motivated by fear.

"The public officials who have lush jobs fear they will lose them," Jarvis said. "The other fear is that of the homeowners who feared they would lose their homes to taxes."

The measure, if upheld in the courts, will roll back property tax assessments to 1975 levels, limit taxes to 1 percent of market value and impose a 2 percent limit on increases in assessments.

This will cut annual local government revenue from $12 billion to $5 billion, with no certain way to make up the difference.

Skylab To Be Pushed To Higher Orbit This Week

HOUSTON (UPI) — Scientists are readying Skylab for a week-long maneuver they hope will correct the craft's orbit and prevent it from falling to Earth.

On Tuesday NASA scientists instructed computers aboard Skylab to begin charging its batteries in preparation for the first maneuver Friday morning.

Officials of the Johnson Space Center in Houston are trying to keep the orbiting laboratory on course until astronauts from the Space Shuttle can push it into a higher orbit with remote-controlled rockets or set it on a safe path back to Earth.

If Skylab's course cannot be altered, the 84-ton, 118-foot hulk could fall back to Earth as early as next spring to be destroyed in a slow re-entry into Earth's atmosphere.

"We got the batteries back up and we turned on the CMG (control movement gyro) heaters," a JSC spokesman said. "They turn those on a couple of days before they turn on the gyro. It takes about 12 hours to get the charge up to maximum.

"They're just monitoring the system and making sure everything operates OK," the spokesman said.

The control center will maneuver the Skylab to a position so that the solar panels on the outside of the craft will point to the sun at all times. On Saturday, Skylab's course will be further changed, making it fly "like an airplane" to achieve "the least resistance and drag," he said.

The object of the maneuvers is to turn Skylab so that it will present the slimmest profile in its forward movement as it circles Earth once every 90 minutes at its current altitude of 242 miles.

Skylab has three gyroscopes, but one failed in 1973. A second gyro was overheating until the Skylab mission ended and its fate will not be known until the units are started Thursday.

"We're fairly confident we can do this," the spokesman said.

Skylab, launched in 1973, was contacted by radio last March for the first time since 1974. A series of operations since then have confirmed that most of its systems still work and have charged 22 of its 26 batteries with solar energy.

House Passes Intelligence Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite warnings about issuing a blank check, the House has approved budgets for all U.S. foreign intelligence agencies, including the CIA, with most members not knowing how much money is involved or what it will be used for.

The budgets were approved, 323-43, after Rep. James Johnson, R-Colo., warned that "members who vote for the bill are granting a blank check to spend a lot of money by people who in the past have not warranted that kind of trust.

"I think we are reverting to the old days, when the CIA was given a blank check," Johnson said."

The amounts authorized were classified, except for $9.7 million earmarked for the intelligence community staff and $1.2 million for external research and analysis projects.

Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio, was applauded by colleagues when he said, "Since the authorization is blank, I intend to vote blank. I simply intend to vote present, and I recommend you all do too."

But Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Mo., insisted the budget secrecy was necessary because "if the enemy knows what our plans are, it virtually destroys our intelligence programs."

"We have not been a rubber stamp for the intelligence agencies," Burlison said, adding that the classified documents available to members "had specific amounts of money and some details of operations" in it.

And Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., noted that only eight of the 435 House members bothered to check the classified information during the three days they were made available.

Johnson said, however, he found the documents "absolutely useless" because they referred to acronyms that "tell us absolutely nothing about what the intelligence community is doing."

He said the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence which approved the bill "has the responsibility for any kind of repetition of activities of the past" by the intelligence community.

Besides the CIA, the legislation authorized funds for the Pentagon, State Department, Defense Intelligence Agency, National Security Agency, Treasury Department, Energy Department, the FBI, and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Cities Now Subject To Damage Suits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a surprise turnabout, the Supreme Court has handed the nation's cities another financial worry: they are subject to damage suits for violations of an individual's constitutional rights.

The taxpayer will have to foot the bill for this new protection under the 1871 Civil Rights Act, which punishes "any person" who, under color of state law, deprives another of his rights under the Constitution. Cities are now "persons" under the act.

Prof. Oscar Chase of Brooklyn University Law School, who won the case for some New York City women employees, said it is hoped cities will be more careful in adopting policies that might infringe on guaranteed rights.

He suggested free speech and prisoner rights as other areas where the 7-2 ruling might have an impact.

The employees had been forced by the school board to take unwanted leaves of absence during pregnancy. The policy since has been changed.

The women can now go to U.S. District Court and ask for back pay. Chase said an estimated 10,000 persons were involved in the case. Still, the city can claim it relied on the law prevailing at the time and should not be obliged to dip into its debilitated treasury.

Justice William Brennan's opinion overturned a 1961 ruling in a Chicago case that immunized cities from such suits. The Chicago case arose from a nighttime raid on the home of a black family, whose members were treated roughly while police ransacked the house for evidence. The father was taken to the police station but was never charged with anything.

The widely used opinion, written by retired Justice William Douglas, allowed damage suits against government employees as individuals but not against the city itself.

Under the new reasoning, officials may be sued — and the cities will have to pay whatever juries or judges award — if an officially adopted discriminatory policy, ordinance, regulation or "custom" is being carried out.

Cities are not liable for improper conduct of employees acting outside the law. The offenders still can be sued as individuals under the 1961 decision but often they are not financially able to pay damages.

National Spelling Bee Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The annual National Spelling Bee is on again and 58 girls and 48 boys from 38 states, Mexico, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands have converged on Washington for the competition starting today in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

To get to Washington, the youngsters outspelled an estimated 8 million children under 16. The national champion wins a $1,000 prize and a trophy.

ALICE, GET YOUR GUN? — Alice Ann Ridder, left, was the lucky recipient of a Hawken muzzle loading rifle kit raffled off by the Garrett County 4-H rifle team as a fund-raising project. Jimmy Beitzel, right, sold the winning ticket and the greatest number of tickets - 110. For his efforts he was awarded a check for $10. Carol Stewart, center, represented her husband, Coach Russell Stewart, in the presentation of the awards.

BEEP, BEEP, ROAD RUNNER — This flag featuring the likeness of one of Warner Brothers' best loved creations, "Road Runner," flew proudly as the Dennett Road Elementary School Band participated in the Oakland Memorial Day parade. The flag and three others just like it, were painstakingly constructed by Michael Moon, a fifth grade student at the school. Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Moon, Oakland.

Emily Kitzmiller Is October Bride Of Kenneth Hinson In Alexandria

The marriage ceremony uniting Emily Duvon Kitzmiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Kitzmiller, Oakland, and Kenneth Ragil Hinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Hinson, Jacksonville, Florida, took place Saturday evening, October 29, 1977, at 7 o'clock.

The wedding was performed by Rev. J. Lowell Harrup at the First Assembly of God Church in Alexandria, Va.

The candlelight, double-ring ceremony began with a prelude of violin and piano music provided by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pencoff of Alexandria, which included two wedding prayers, "O Perfect Love" and "Lara's Theme" from Dr. Zhivago. They also accompanied Mrs. Mary Munsie, Alexandria, as she sang, "Lord, Who at Cana's Wedding Feast." During this solo, two candles on the altar were lit by Misses Lora and Melody Kitzmiller, sisters of the bride. They wore gowns matching those of the bridesmaids and remained with the wedding party throughout the service. The candles were used by the bride and groom to light a single candle during the ceremony. "Largo" was then rendered as the processional.

The traditional wedding march was played as the bride's father escorted her to the altar. She was given in marriage by her parents.

Rev. and Mrs. William Rape, Alexandria, sang "The Wedding Song" and Rev. Rape sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt for prayer. They were accompanied on the organ by Rod Horner, Alexandria, who also played Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary" as the recessional.

The bride was attired in a floor-length gown of satin covered with Chantilly lace. It featured an empire waist, square neck edged with lace and long sleeves with a lace ruffle. The full skirt and train were trimmed with four additional rows of lace. The fingertip-length veil, fashioned and made by the bride, was edged with Chantilly lace to match the gown. The headpiece was covered with lace and trimmed with a strand of seed pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of bridal roses and stephanotis accented with ivy and camille.

Attending as maid of honor was the bride's sister, Ranae Kitzmiller. She was attired in a floor-length gown of burgundy crepe-backed satin, featuring an empire waist with a tie in back, long full sleeves with a ruffle and tie, and square neck trimmed with ivory lace.

Bridesmaids were Toni Elliott, Cindy McIntyre, both of Alexandria; Beverly Smalley, Arlington, Va., cousin of the groom, and Mikal Byrd, Manassas, Va., cousin of the bride.

Their gowns were the same style and of the same fabric as the maid of honor except two wore rose and two wore teal blue. Each attendant made her own gown. All the attendants wore a hairpiece of sweetheart roses and baby's breath and carried three long-stemmed bridal roses tied with pink ribbon.

Flower girl was Miss Molly Hinson, sister of the groom. Her gown was identical to that of the maid of honor and she carried a basket of rosebuds and baby's breath.

The groom's father, William Hinson, served as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Gary, Roger and Timmy Kitzmiller, all brothers of the bride, and Roy Hinson, brother of the groom. Ring bearer was Matthew Harrup. The male members of the party were attired in formal navy blue tuxedos with white ruffled shirts. Their boutonnieres were a rose backed with an ivy leaf.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown which she made of rust Quiana knit, and wore a corsage of white roses and stephanotis accented with ivy. The mother of the groom was attired in a floor-length gown of teal blue, and wore a corsage of pink roses and stephanotis accented with ivy. The groom's grandmother wore a floor-length rose knit gown, and a corsage of roses and baby's breath.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall, which was decorated with rose, teal blue and burgundy streamers and candelabra with rose candles and ivy. The four-tiered wedding cake, trimmed in burgundy and topped with roses, was cut and served by Mrs. Virginia Gower and Mrs. Zelma Bittinger, aunts of the bride. LOVE NEEDS LIGHT

The afternoon sun was streaming through the altar window the day Ken and Carole spoke their vows. She looked even lovelier with the soft transfusion of light upon her face. But, had it been a cloudy day, there would have been no less promise in it for this couple.

Love needs light. But the light that love needs comes not from the heavens but from Heaven itself. It is the light of divine truth . . . of faith . . . of religious commitment.

That is exactly what our marriage vows mean to Christians. This is why we usually prefer to be married in church. Our promises are given not only to one another but to God. Our love looks up to Him who described himself as the Light of the world.

For Ken and Carole every Sunday in church renews the glow on their faces . . . and in their hearts.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE MEDIATOR

Lesson for June 11, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 15
Devotional Reading: Romans 12:9-21

Rev. Althouse

Well, they were back at it again!

Those same wonderful people who expressed such dismay when the Samaritans responded to Philip's preaching and received the Spirit, who "roasted" Peter for going up to Caesarea and preaching to Gentiles, the same crowd we thought had been "silenced" once and for all in Acts 11 (as Luke thought they had been) — were now causing another uproar in the church over the same old issue!

"Some men came down from Judea to the church at Antioch and were teaching the brethren, "Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses you cannot be saved." (15:1)

No Small Dissension

What, hadn't they got the message before when Peter came back from being with Cornelius? Hadn't they grasped, as he did, that "God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation any one who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him"? (10:34-35). Didn't their "silence" of which Luke speaks mean that they at last perceived the error of their narrowness?

No, apparently not. Their "silence" did not mean the issue was settled in their hearts, only postponed. Sometimes prejudices and hardness of heart are too well established in people for the Spirit of God to dislodge. They kept quiet for a while and then resumed their trouble-making in the church, smugly confident that God was dependent upon them for his defense.

When people are that confident of their role as God's defenders, it is very difficult for God to get through to them, let alone persuade them that the God of heaven and earth does not need defenders, but servants. Of course, it's always more fun to be a defender than a servant. The capacity of the God-defender for causing "no small dissension" in the church is staggering.

No Greater Burden

The church at Antioch, however, approached this dangerous problem with great judgement. Instead of splitting into warring groups, Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem for a decision by the church leaders.

It must be admitted that as the leaders at Jerusalem approached this problem, the prospects of a harmonious settlement looked extremely unlikely. Yet, somehow there came out of that meeting a compromise that both maintained essentials and yet gave both parties some sense of satisfaction. Something or Someone had moved both groups to listen afresh to the Spirit of Christ. The Holy Spirit was able to mediate between them and persuade them that the most important question was not what they wanted, but what did Christ want for his church?

Even today that Mediator is available to us in our disagreements if we will seek him.

YOU SHOULD CHOOSE ONE PHARMACY

Because today's medicines are so much more potent and so much more specific, it has become very important that a family choose one pharmacy to fill all their drug needs for both prescription and non-prescription drugs. A family should "shop" for a pharmacy they feel comfortable with in much the same manner they "shop" for a physician or dentist.

We hope you will choose our pharmacy for your family. We are dedicated to your better health and concentrate our efforts toward achieving this goal.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

Saturday Wrecks Injure Two

Motor vehicle accidents in the Southern end of the county resulted in injuries to two persons in as many accidents last Saturday. There were no apparent injuries in three other mishaps.

Ruby Jane Cosner, RD 2, Oakland, was taken to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad. She was eastbound on the Crellin Road just west of the Dilley Road about 1 p.m. A car driven by Leonard Henry Dumire, Corinth, W. Va., was travelling westbound and failed to keep to the right of center of the road and struck the Cosner headon on the left shoulder. Tfc. D. H. Riggleman charged Dumire with failing to keep to the right of center of the road and driving while in an intoxicated condition.

Susan Yvonne Stem, B Street, Mt. Lake Park, was slightly injured in a two-car mishap on Md. 135 at H Street, Mt. Lake Park, shortly before 7 p.m. She was stopped in the lane of traffic, facing east, waiting to clear to make a left turn. James Milton Reckart, RD 2, Oakland, following, failed to stop in time and struck the Stem car in the rear. Tfc. E. J. Upole charged Reckart with failing to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

A mechanical defect was blamed for a minor mishap on the Mayhew Inn Road just east of the Bray School Road about 8 p.m. Sharon Ann Porter, S. Second Street, Oakland, was driving east when she alleges the steering wheel locked causing her to run off the right side of the road and into a pole. Tfc. L. R. Rosage made no charges.

Another rear-end collision occurred about 11 a.m. on U. S. 219 in the McHenry area. Kenneth Lee Paugh, Star Route 1, Oakland, was stopped, headed north on Rt. 219 waiting for traffic to clear to make a left turn onto a spur of old 219. Romona Lee Fries, Broad Ford Road, Mt. Lake Park, following, failed to reduce speed and struck the rear of the Paugh car. Tfc. Dale Williams charged Romona Fries with following too close.

A one-car accident occurred on Md. 560 at the top of Backbone Mountain about 5:30 p.m. Friday. Philip Hale Lough, High Street, Oakland, was going north when his car swerved hard to the left and struck an embankment. Tfc. Upole investigated.

We have no idea how lucky we are to live in a resort community where leisure time activities are abundant. After completing a hard day or week at the office we have a multitude of outdoor activities that provide much needed rest and relaxation.

Here are some of my favorites:

Golf — I really enjoy golf. In fact I'm such a consistent athlete that my golf score and my bowling score are exactly the same. My best stroke is "sunstroke" — I usually pass out on the third tee and crawl back to the clubhouse screaming "water!" Golf is also an inexpensive hobby — for some people. The last time I played nine holes it only cost me about $1,200. The fee rented my golf cart, shoes, clubs, replaced the window of the pro shop, reimbursed a landscaper for putting the sand back in the sandtrap, provided a diver to locate the cart in the lake and paid hospital bills for the guy who had to have my Crowflight removed from his ear canal.

Water Skiing — I've just been hooked on water skiing. There's just nothing like the sensation of being dragged across the lake on your face at 60 m.p.h. The other water skiers are probably jealous of me after watching the display I put on the other night. When the boat steered to the right of the bridge pier, I skied to the left of it. It was probably the first time they've seen a skier and a boat flip simultaneously.

Kayaking — I haven't tried this sport yet but I hear it's faster than rowing. I'm a little leary about getting into a boat that looks as if it was built around the kayaker. Once you've positioned yourself in the kayak you strap a helmet on your head and grab a paddle. The paddle, contrary to popular belief, is not for paddling — it's for fending off rocks. Most kayakers get a view of the river most people never see — a submerged view of rocks coming at you at 30 m.p.h.

Tennis — My favorite sport and the only sport that has a dress code. I tried to play last weekend in a pair of cut-offs and a tank top. I was forcibly removed from the court. In order to play tennis you will need a tennis outfit ($50), a tennis warm-up jacket ($35), Arthur Ashe tennis shoes ($22.50), Tretorn tennis socks ($5), headband and wristbands ($7.50), an aluminum racket with custom grip ($125), tennis balls ($3.50) and a tennis ball pressurizer ($15).

Expertise comes with practice, but the most important thing to remember is never be seen in the same tennis outfit twice.

Yes, leisure time activities are great whether you're a water skier, golfer or whatever. I really enjoy watching my co-workers arriving on Monday morning. Their dark, bronzed skin contrasting richly with the brilliant hospital white of their attire — splints, casts, slings and bandages. They go limping into their respective offices with a "Boy, did we have fun this weekend!" How I envy them.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sanders Honored On Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Sanders, Route 2, Oakland, were surprised with a 25th wedding anniversary celebration given by friends April 23 in the Social Hall of St. John's Lutheran Church at Red House.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders were married April 25, 1953 in Oakland by Rev. Winfield Patterson, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church.

Mrs. Sanders, the former Wilda Durst, is a daughter of the late Harry O. and Daisy (White) Durst of Oakland. She has given many years of volunteer service as a Sunday School Teacher, 4-H Leader, Scout Den Mother, Webelo Leader, and is presently serving as assistant leader with Girl Scout Troop #26.

Mr. Sanders, a son of Dora (Shaffer) Sanders Shinnaberry, Hopemont, West Virginia, and the late Joseph H. Sanders, is a native of Minnehaha Springs, West Virginia. He served in the United States Army with the Seventh Armored Division in the European theater during World War II. Following his discharge he secured employment with the State of Maryland and is presently employed as a Road Supervisor for the State Highway Administration.

The Sanders are parents of one son, Gerald J. Sanders, Jr., a student in the Lutheran Theological Seminary of Philadelphia.

The cake for the occasion was baked and served by Mrs. Mary Jane Gnegy, assisted by Mrs. Elaine Roth and Mrs. Barbara Carl.

Lutherans believe . . . GOD IS LOVE

A crucifix dramatically conveys a love that gives itself.

Does that mean God loves us as a young man loves a young woman?

If it does, then God's love might be changeable - sometimes aflame, sometimes cold, sometimes in between.

Obviously, the heart of the matter lies in the word love.

The word love - as used in reference to God - comes from a Greek word, agape, meaning "to give for the sake of another."

So, God gives Himself for the sake of another, namely, man. This He does in every moment as He constantly preserves and sustains His creation - the world and all that's in it.

God also gave for the sake of another when He went to the cross in the person of Jesus Christ. As Scripture points out, "Herein is love, that a Man would lay down his life for his friend."

In the man, Jesus Christ, God in the flesh did just that.

Lutherans believe He did it for the sake of every human being . . . and that He wants you to believe He did it for you.

Would you like to know more of this confessional and ecumenical church? A cordial welcome will be yours.

THE ARTS

by jim willis

Nineteen seventy-eight could well be the year of the artist in our nation's capital. One of the most important pieces of legislation proposes a National Conference for the Arts. Additional legislation provides for budgetary increases of millions of dollars for federally granted art programs. Such bills could have a profound effect on the local level by providing the monies necessary to establish county art councils. The arts have always been sadly neglected by our legislature; perhaps we are beginning a trend in the right direction.

Jill Wechsler, the Washington, D. C. correspondent for a New York business, reviewed the National conference proposal in the April issue of "American Artist." She writes, "Another indication of growing interest in the arts can be seen in the current campaign to gain funding from Congress for a White House Conference on the Arts to be held at the end of next year. Congressional hearings on the National Conference idea were held all around the country beginning in November 1977 to set the stage for passage of the authorizing legislation this year. The main purpose of the Conference is to look at government funding of arts activities over the past decade since the National Endowment was established and set new policies for the next ten years.

"The bill establishes a National Conference Planning Council composed of 15 members appointed by the President. The Council will help states plan "mini" conferences to be held later this year and in early 1979 where recommendations will be drafted for presentation at the National Conference in Washington. Subjects to be addressed on all levels include the adequacy of federal funding of the arts, what agencies should be expanded and proper funding of community arts councils. 'There has been a great deal of ferment in the arts over the past decade,' says one Congressional staffer working on the Conference. 'We need to set new policies for the next decade.'

"In addition to these key legislation issues that are now attracting attention from Congress, there are several other bills that may begin to generate interest in the months to come.

"Congressman Richmond has introduced a bill to boost appropriations for the new Institute of Museum Services to $25 million. The Institute's current budget is a mere $3.7 million, despite the original authorization of $25 million. Richmond's effort is expected to raise the Institute's funding to about $8 million for now, setting the stage for further increases later."

YOU CAN BUY A CHEAPER MOPED, BUT YOU'LL PAY FOR IT.

If some mopeds cost less than a Puch, it's simply because they're lesser mopeds.
They don't have the hill-hungry hi-torque engine that most Puchs have.
They aren't designed as thoughtfully, or constructed as carefully, as Austrian-built Puchs are.
At a lower price, Puch couldn't offer things like a 2-speed automatic transmission, oil injection, or an automatic starting system.
Come in and see why, feature for feature, you really can't afford anything less than a Puch.

GCC Sponsors Career Day For Local Students

Wednesday, May 24, marked the first of what Garrett Community College plans to be an annual event — College and Career Day. Nearly 250 juniors and seniors from Southern and Northern High Schools participated this year.

Before the students arrived on campus, they were identified by curriculum groups according to their major areas of interest. Ten vocational teachers and four counselors from the high schools accompanied them to the college campus.

The students arrived by bus and were treated to lunch. During the meal, Melinda Hale (member of the U. S. Olympic Handball Team) demonstrated group handball. Dean Robert Trantham addressed the group on the nature of the community college and the students began their tour of the facilities at Garrett Community College. The students then met in small groups for presentations by faculty members and question and answer discussions.

According to Bill Ewing, Director of Admissions at GCC, "the purposes of College and Career Day were threefold. We wanted to acquaint area students with GCC's academic offerings, we wanted them to tour our campus and see our facilities, and we wanted them to meet our faculty and administrators." Mr. Ewing went on to say that "the day was a total success, thanks entirely to the total cooperation from the high schools, the visiting students, and GCC's faculty. Even the weather cooperated. Now we need to evaluate the day and begin planning for next year's College and Career Day."

Mathias Concerned Over FmHA Budget

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) last week joined five other senators in expressing concern about rural development and aid to farmers through the Farmers Home Administration.

Their views were contained in a letter to Senator Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee's agricultural subcommittee and signed by Senators Mathias, Walter Huddleston (D-Ky.), Daniel Inouye (D-Ha), Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), and Quentin Burdick (D-N. Dak.).

Their letter stated: " — when most national attention is focused on the problems of our central cities, it is critical that the needs of rural America not be put on the back burner." The Senators contend that urban problems cannot be dealt with at the expense of rural communities.

They indicated their general support of the Administration's efforts to target housing program funds to the areas of greatest need, but pointed out four areas of the FmHA budget for rural housing which they believe to be inadequate:

1. Staff — They estimate that between 2,500 and 3,000 full-time permanent employees are needed to meet the challenge of reviving rural America, and recommend that at least 2,000 staff positions be funded in the next fiscal year.
2. Rental Assistance — To serve the needs of the 51,000 households presently under FmHA, they maintain that the FmHA rental allocations should be doubled to 30,000 existing and 10,000 new units.
3. Research — They recommend that FmHA establish a research division with a budget of at least $1 million.
4. Counseling and Technical Assistance — They recommend appropriating $10 million for additional counseling and technical assistance that is vital to FmHAs users.

In summary Mathias said, "The FmHA is an integral part of rural America. I believe it should be the primary agency for delivering federal resources and that it should play the lead role in rural development activity. It should have the resources to carry out that role."

Stories about human ghosts — eerie, white, and shimmering — have sent chills around many a campfire. The animal world doesn't have campfires, but it does have "ghosts."

They are albino animals.

These rare creatures — like human albinos — lack the normal amount of melanin, a body chemical that causes coloration, explains the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, a monthly children's publication from the National Wildlife Federation.

Pure albinos have no melanin at all, so their skin, hair, and feathers are totally white. Their eyes and ears are pink, and their bodies take on a pinkish cast from the blood in vessels near the skin's surface.

"Among most animals, albinos are very rare," says Ranger Rick. But most people have seen some common albinos, such as mice and chickens, that have been bred to perpetuate this condition.

Their feeble eyesight, sensitivity to light, and lack of camouflage make survival in the wild a real challenge for albino animals, points out the NWF magazine. Without coloring to conceal them, they are "easy targets" for predators. Like neon signs, they advertise their presence to their own prey, which "scamper away to safety."

Wildlife biologists suggest albinism may be fairly common, but so few albino animals survive to adulthood in the wild that catching a glimpse of them is rare.

As if life weren't tough enough, some albinos are blind. Such was the case of one albino white-tailed deer found by a rancher. Knowing how flimsy its chances were for survival, the rancher took the "ghost animal" home where it became the constant companion of a small donkey, according to the magazine. Discovering the deer was blind, the rancher came up with a clever idea. He tied a bell around the donkey's neck, giving the deer a "seeing eye friend."

Not all pure white animals are albinos, Ranger Rick cautions wildlife observers. They way to tell is by looking at the eyes. Pink means albino. In winter the snowshoe hare, the arctic fox, and the ptarmigan, may look, at first glance, like albinos. But their eyes are dark. And come spring, the colored fur or feathers that were shed or molted in the fall will return. Albinos remain the ghostly figures of the animal world all year around.

Monte Vista Club Meets June 1

Good Grooming, Campfire, Camps and Club Tour were the topics discussed at the regular meeting of the Monte Vista, Jr. 4-H Club on June 1 at Southern High School. Miss Brenda Scott, a former member now attending a Fashion School in Atlanta, Georgia, gave the group a demonstration on grooming, using Susie Riggs as a model.

Members voted on attending Hershey Park as their Club Tour June 27-28. Any member desiring to go should contact Patty Livengood for reservation form which must be in by June 12. Report was made on Bake Sale which was held for fund raising for the tour. The club will also sell candy to raise funds for the tour.

Plans for County Campfire were made. Members 12 years and under were invited to an overnight camp at the State Park, with older members assisting with the camp. Older members will be camping at Appalachia Lake during the summer.

The next regular meeting will be a picnic on July 13.

Revised Homeowner Tax Credit Forms Now Available

Application forms for the new Homeowners' Tax Credit Program became available at assessment offices and cooperating agencies throughout the state Thursday, June 1.

The Tax Credit Program, a major part of the property tax relief package enacted by the General Assembly and signed into law by Acting Governor Lee, for the first time provides credits for homeowners under 60 years of age.

Eligibility is determined by a sliding scale formula which balances the size of the tax bill against the homeowners' income to assure that homeowners are not taxed an unfair percentage of their income for property taxes.

It is estimated that one out of every four homeowners will receive a credit of some kind. Eligible homeowners under 60 years of age may receive up to a $450 credit.

The new Homeowners' Tax Credit Program also replaces the existing circuit breaker program for homeowners 60 years of age and older or disabled. The new program provides a higher benefit than did the circuit breaker. Eligible homeowners age 60 and over or disabled now may receive up to a $900 credit. Homeowners age 60 and over or disabled who have already submitted a circuit breaker application need not submit another application, even though the new law will entitle them to receive a higher benefit.

However, homeowners age 60 and over and not yet submitting a circuit breaker application should be aware of two recent and retroactive changes in the law regarding the net worth limitation and fixed charges such as room and board. The net worth limitation for eligibility has been increased to $200,000 and the value of a person's home now is excluded from that sum. Similarly, applicants now may report fixed charges such as room and board or rent instead of the gross incomes of other residents in the home not claimed as dependents for IRS purposes.

These two changes may make more people potentially eligible and persons age 60 and over who previously have not submitted applications because of the limitations should apply by completing the existing circuit breaker application available at local assessment offices. The increased net worth level and the fixed charges or room and board provision apply to under 60 applicants as well.

The new blue application form now available is to be used only by persons under 60 years of age. The front side of the form contains basic information about the new law and instructions on how the homeowner should complete the necessary space on the reverse side. On the front of the form, there is also an income and an assessment amount chart to give each homeowner an idea of whether it would be worthwhile to file an application. It is important to note that there is no set income figure that cuts off one's eligibility to receive a tax credit. The eligibility for a credit and the amount of any such credit is determined by a formula that considers income in corresponding relation to the magnitude of the property tax liability.

If homeowners have any questions about the form, they may call a special central telephone number which is printed at the bottom of the form under Instruction 6, "How to File." The new public information telephone number is 321-3750 for homeowners in the Baltimore metropolitan area, and those persons living outside this area should call the same number collect. At this central telephone number there is a group of special temporary operators to answer homeowners' questions directly.

Once the homeowners have completed the requested information on the reverse side of the new form, they then attach a copy of their 1977 IRS return, if one was filed, and mail both to the local assessment office where the property is located. The mailing address of every local assessment office in the State is listed on the front side of the new form. Homeowners need not have any concern about the confidentiality of the information they have furnished since the forms are not open to public inspection and will be kept under lock and key at the central office of the Homeowners' Tax Credit Program.

For this year, homeowners who are found eligible under the new program will receive in the mail a credit "voucher" from the State Department of Assessments and Taxation. This voucher may be redeemed at the local County Finance Office towards payment of the property tax bill or for a refund if the tax bill has already been paid. The credit vouchers will be mailed out to homeowners in relation to the time they are filed. But we urge homeowners not to wait to receive the voucher before paying the property tax bill if waiting would mean a loss of any discount for early payment or the incurring of late-payment penalties.

The deadline for filing the new Homeowners' Tax Credit application form is October 1, 1978.

For further information regarding the Homeowners' Tax Credit Program, contact the local assessment office or Robert E. Young, Administrator, at 321-3768.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Garrett County Commissioners will conduct a public hearing on June 12, 1978, at 10:30 a.m., in the Grand Jury Room, Garrett County Courthouse, to present and take testimony on the proposed County Budget (including Federal Revenue Sharing and Anti-Recessional Funds) for Fiscal Year 1978-1979.

The proposed budget is as follows:

Total Revenue	$7,029,969	$7,880,422

The County Commissioners are proposing a reduction in the property tax rate of 18¢ for this tax year. Last year's property tax rate was $2.63, and the certified value of all assessable property was $183,000,000. The rate multiplied by the value produced revenues (less discounts) of $4,491,209.

To produce the same revenues as last year (including certain State Aid adjustments), the tax rate would be $2.40. This rate is called the constant yield rate. For this taxable year, the actual property tax rate is $2.45. This rate is 5¢ more than the Constant Yield Tax Rate and will produce in revenue $103,468 more than produced by the constant yield tax rate.

Tax Changes For Homeowners

Deductions for moving expenses have been increased to $3,000 (real estate commissions, mortgage costs, etc.) if you are forced to purchase a home due to a job change over 35 miles away. Up to one half this total ($1,500) may be deducted for pre-move househunting expenses and temporary living expenses (up to 30 days) at your new location.

Older people (where one spouse is 65 or over) who sell their residence are now allowed to exclude all gain if the selling price is under $35,000. Above that, part is taxed - see your accountant for the formula.

A major change has been made in the area of long term capital gains, as real estate. Holding period to qualify for long term gains in 1978 has been increased to one year.

For vacation homes used by the owner for more than two weeks each year, or 10% of the rental use, deductions are limited to the total of rental income, less property taxes and interest. If home is rented for less than 15 days, no deductions - other than interest and taxes - but rental income is not taxable.

BY JIM WILLIS

The Fury is an epic novel of psychic phenomena by John Farris. It is a case history of two children, Gillian and Robin, who are "twins" but not in the conventional sense of the word — they were linked psychically as they were born simultaneously hundreds of miles apart.

Gillian matures as the rich and beautiful daughter of the Bellavers, one of America's wealthiest families. Robin is raised by an aunt and uncle while his father, Peter Sandza, tours the world on military assignments.

Through a military connection, Robin's father sends him to a "psi-phenomena" research facility to have the extent of his powers tested. Meanwhile, Gillian is enduring a series of traumatic experiences — she is involuntarily causing the death of innocent people by triggering fatal bleeding with her psychometric energy.

Robin "dies" in an accident, his father is "assassinated" in the line of duty. Both are alive and neither is thoroughly convinced of the other's demise.

Robin is actually being held captive in a "country club prison" by MORG, a powerful faction of the American government. MORG's potentate, once disfigured by Peter Sandza, wants Sandza dead.

The plot then becomes a mass of well-written dendritic political subterfuge. The good guys are difficult to discern and it all ends up in a spell-binding ending.

Those readers with queasy stomachs may want to skip a few pages, but the well-developed story line excuses a few needlessly graphic passages.

The author writes, "Although my characters are as real as I can make them, fortunately none of them exists outside the pages of this book." Thank goodness!

C&P Asks Tariff Change Approval

The C&P Telephone Company last week requested the Maryland Public Service Commission to approve tariff changes which would mean significantly reduced rates for more than 86,000 customers across the State. At the same time, C&P has proposed that 23 exchanges which have outgrown their existing rate classes be reclassified to the next higher rate step.

The tariff changes, which must be approved by the PSC, would take effect July 1, 1978.

The filing was made in two parts in Baltimore last Thursday. In the first part, C&P has sought rate reductions totalling $1,047,500 in conjunction with the third and final phase of a 1976 decision by the PSC eliminating discounts on telephone service for clergy and charitable organizations by July 1, 1978.

C&P proposed to reduce mileage band rates for 71,000 customers living in outlying areas of 126 telephone exchanges outside of the Baltimore and Washington, D. C., metropolitan areas.

Under C&P's proposals, the monthly mileage band charge for customers with individual service would drop from $1.99 to $1.18 and from $1.12 to $.63 for customers with two-party service.

Another 2,800 customers would benefit from the elimination of special locality rates in effect in 14 communities.

At the same time, the Base Rate Area would be extended in 23 exchanges. For the 12,000 customers affected, this would mean the elimination of the present monthly mileage band charge altogether. The exchanges affected are Annapolis (224, 757 and 956), Brandywine, Elkton, Frederick, Havre de Grace, Highfield, Hughesville, Indian Head, Jarrettsville, La Plata, Leonardtown, Lexington Park, Lonaconing, Mechanicsville, New Market, North Beach (257), Oakland, Prince Frederick, Sherwood Forest (849), Solomons, Stevensville, Waldorf and West River (798).

These rate changes proposed by C&P would offset the additional revenues the Company will receive after July 1 when the present 8% discount for clergy and the existing 11% discount for charitable institutions will be eliminated. In February 1976, the Public Service Commission ordered that these discounts be eliminated by July 1, 1978 in three equal steps. The first reduction was effective July 1, 1976.

In the second part of today's filing, the Company sought permission to reclassify 23 exchanges to the next higher rate class. Under the present tariffs, every exchange in the state is assigned to one of 12 rate classes, based on the size of the local (toll-free) calling area and the number of telephones in that calling area.

As development in an area increases the number of phones customers can call toll-free, exchanges can outgrow the limits for their existing rate class.

The exchanges which are proposed to be reclassified are Accident, Arbutus, Buckeystown, Capitol Heights, Denton, Greensboro, Havre de Grace, Kitzmiller, La Plata, Marlboro, Middletown, Millington, Myersville, Nanticoke, New Market, New Windsor, Ocean City, Parkville, Randallstown, Salisbury, Sparrows Point, Tompkinsville and Woodlawn.

In the Baltimore Metropolitan area, for example, a residential customer in the Arbutus, Parkville, Randallstown, Sparrows Point or Woodlawn area with private, unlimited service would see his monthly rate increase by 56 cents, from $10.37 to $10.93.

"While we regret the necessity of having to increase rates for these customers, fairness to all our subscribers requires us to reclassify exchanges when growth in the number of phones customers can call dictates it," said Champe C. McCulloch, a spokesperson for C&P.

If the PSC approves the second part of today's filing, C&P proposes to offset the additional $1.3 million in revenues from the reclassification by completely eliminating all remaining mileage band charges. This would be in addition to the reductions in mileage band charges proposed in conjunction with the elimination of the clergy and charitable discounts.

For the 74,000 customers affected, approval of the second proposal would mean an additional reduction of $1.18 in monthly rates for individual line customers and of $.63 for two-party customers.

At the same time, the Company is seeking permission to reduce onetime service charges for installing, moving and rearranging telephone sets and equipment by a total of $190,000 annually.

"These days, the first thing a new employee wants to know is when he can get in our Blue Cross and Blue Shield plan."

"A long illness can make a poor man out of a rich man. And they know it."

Douglas R. Abbott, General Manager of the Oxford Boatyard, knows from personal experience how fast hospital and medical bills can add up. And how his company's Blue Cross and Blue Shield program provides protection against most of those costs.

His employees consider it an important part of their benefit package. They're anxious to become eligible for the program as soon as possible. "Our Blue Cross and Blue Shield program contributes much to employee morale and satisfaction."

"We adjust our coverage to be best for the times."

As the management of Oxford Boatyard modifies its health care program to keep pace with the changing needs of the company and its employees, so Blue Cross and Blue Shield are constantly studying existing and new forms of coverage to make sure they keep up with the times.

Where there's a need, new or modified programs are quickly made available.

We can move fast. We're local companies. We make our own decisions based on local needs. And we can stay flexible because we deal strictly with Marylanders and Maryland problems.

Your coverage travels with you.

Even though we're Maryland companies, your Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage is good in all 50 states. Mr. Abbott found this out for himself when his son was injured in a neighboring state. His card was accepted immediately. No questions, no hassle.

If you or your employees travel, that's a good thing to know.

"More coverage for the money."

Year in and year out, we return more money to Marylanders in health care benefits than anyone else. That's because we're experts in what we do. But beyond that, we're non-profit organizations. We have no dividends to pay, no stockholders to satisfy.

Douglas R. Abbott, General Manager Oxford Boatyard

"We hardly ever have any administrative problems."

Blue Cross and Blue Shield handle all the paperwork. A modern computer system gives high efficiency while keeping costs down. If there's ever a complaint or problem, a phone call puts the right people to work to straighten things out. Fast. It's service and benefits like these that make Blue Cross and Blue Shield an important part of so many people's lives. It's why Mr. Abbott, his company, and his employees don't want to be without it.

You shouldn't either. Call us for full information on high-value, high-service Blue Cross and Blue Shield programs.

"First Mates" Are Award Winners

In their first showing as the "First Mates" Majorette Corps, 48 Oakland girls captured second place last Friday in the Cumberland Dapper Dan Parade. First place went to the award winning "Williamettes Drum and Bugle Corps" from Williamsport, Maryland.

The majorettes, formerly known as the "Oakettes," have changed their style and appearance and will be recognized as the "First Mates."

The "First Mates" are taught by Doris Eddy and Karen Eddy who are both professional certified baton teachers. Karen has won over 500 awards in competitive twirling and many of her students in the corps have earned numerous trophies in solo twirling.

Summer classes for new recruits will begin on June 19 and girls age five and over will be accepted for membership at that time. For further information call Doris Eddy, Director at 334-3625.

WILL PERFORM — Steve Moore, reportedly one of the country's newest sounds in contemporary music, will perform at the Meadow Mountain Mennonite Church on June 17 and 18. The church is located on Route 495 near the Glendale Road. Mr. Moore, who is an accomplished guitarist and vocalist, has been called "one of today's finest Christian composers." The times of the performances are as follows: Saturday, June 17, 7:30 p.m.; Sunday, June 18, 10:50 a.m., and 1:45 p.m. There will be no admission charge, however a free will offering will be taken at each of the services. Rev. Edgar Miller, pastor, invites the public to these services.

How Lucky Can A Beekeeper Bee?

A local beekeeper reported an unusual incident last week when a swarm of bees descended on his hive and set up residence.

Wendell Beitzell said that during the winter his hive of bees had died, including the queen. A small amount of honey remained in the super, however, and he had ordered a new hive of bees.

Before the bees could arrive, a swarm looking for a home found the super, and settled right in.

It certainly saved a lot of trouble for Mr. Beitzel, who said he plans to keep the new bees when they arrive, and place them in another super stored in his garage. Many local beekeepers have told Mr. Beitzel that this was the first instance they could recall of a swarm settling right in a hive, without having to be hived.

Maryland Sales Tax Revenue Shows Climb

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein this week announced that State Retail Sales and Use Tax revenue for the month of April 1978 totaled $54,647,649, and brought total sales tax collections for the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 to $466,965,036.

"Retail sales tax revenues for the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 are 37.7 percent above revenues at this same time last year," Comptroller Goldstein said. "If our current collections were reduced to what would have been collected at the old four percent sales tax rate, they would still be 11.2 percent above last year's revenues. These collections continue to reflect strong consumer buying activity."

Mr. Goldstein noted that the $466.9 million in State sales tax revenue for the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 is 1.2 percent above the revenue estimate for the nine month period.

When compared with sales tax collections for the same nine months of Fiscal Year 1977, the building and contractors, apparel, and general merchandise categories were among the fastest growing sources of revenue. "Within those categories, sales tax collections from roofing, sheet metal and storm windows, shoes, and sporting goods were the fastest growing," Mr. Goldstein said.

Many Veterans Still Eligible For Benefits

Vietnam Era veterans in Maryland have taken greater advantage of their GI Bill benefits than their World War II or Korean Conflict counterparts, according to VA Regional Director, John W. Rue. However, Mr. Rue thinks some 90,000 of them are still eligible for VA aid ranging from $14,000 to $20,000 each.

Rue this week inaugurated a summer-long campaign designed, he said, "to make sure that every veteran in Maryland who is eligible for GI Bill benefits thinks twice before he allows such a golden opportunity to slip by.

"In this day and age I'm convinced that an investment in education is more than ever one of the soundest decisions a young man or woman can make," Mr. Rue said.

"And today VA offers Vietnam Era veterans more education benefits in more ways than any of their predecessors from other wars had available to them.

"In addition to the basic GI Bill rate of $311 a month for a full-time student ($422 for a veteran with two dependents), an eligible veteran can borrow up to $2,500 per academic year under our education loan program," he said.

"We also offer work-study programs that will provide eligible students with as much as $662.50 in additional income per semester or period of enrollment.

"We have a tutorial assistance program for those who need it, and we even have a program that assists veterans who need to complete high school without getting into their GI Bill entitlement," Mr. Rue said.

VA educational assistance programs include a cooperative plan which combines formalized education with training in a business or industrial establishment.

Another program permits veterans employed in agriculture to enroll in related institutional agricultural courses.

The agency also offers assistance to eligible veterans in apprenticeship or on-the-job training programs and, under certain conditions, flight training programs.

"In general," Mr. Rue said, "Vietnam Era veterans have ten years from their date of discharge to use their GI Bill benefits. After that time period, they lose them.

"I cannot urge too strongly that these veterans contact the VA Regional Office in Baltimore at 685-5454 or toll-free 1-800-492-9503 and have one of our benefits counselors check their eligibility."

Solar Flare Phenomena

Solar flares are the release of enormous amounts of energy from the sun. This energy is modified in the solar atmosphere, chromosphere and corona, and continues into space where part of it reaches earth. Here on earth the energy from solar flares interacts with the earth's magnetosphere and upper atmosphere. We observe the aurora borealis, rapid changes in compass headings, and short wave radio fadeouts as a result. Solar activity may even cause changes in earthly weather and climate, although this is still speculative.

Moon

Tuesday, the moon passes through its First Quarter phase. All week the earth's satellite will be waxing. Moonset will be at 8:48 p.m. this evening. By next Tuesday the moon will set at 48 minutes after midnight.

Our earth's satellite will be at its greatest distance from earth on Thursday at 2 p.m. This apogee is 406,150 kilometers (252,420 miles) from earth.

Visible Planets

Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn are easily visible this week. Venus and Jupiter are moving apart. Jupiter appears closer to the horizon. It is among the stars of Gemini. Venus is very bright, setting about 2 hours after sunset. Mars, Saturn, and Regulus are clustered together. Saturn is the brightest, and Regulus is slightly dimmer than Mars which is reddish in color. They set about 4 hours after the sun. Regulus is the brightest star in Leo.

Daylight Increases

There will 12 minutes more daylight by next Tuesday. Sunrise was at 6:12 a.m. this morning. Sunset will be at 8:16 p.m. this evening, 14 hours 4 minutes later. Tuesday sunrise will be at 6:06 a.m., and sunset will be at 8:22 p.m.

Poster Contest Held To Promote Grantsville Picnic

A poster contest was recently held at the Grantsville Elementary School to publicize the upcoming Grantsville Picnic. The contest was sponsored by the Grantsville Community Business and Development Association. Sixth grade students, under the direction of Ralph Miller, art instructor, participated in the contest. Prizes awarded for first, second and third place were five dollars, three dollars and two dollars, respectively. Prize winners were Marla Folk, first, Benny Wilt, second, and Tina Beitzel, third.

The winning posters are being displayed in the windows of local Grantsville merchants. First place poster is being displayed at H & H Hardware, second place at Deist Pharmacy, and third place at Durst Dairy Mart.

The First Annual Grantsville Picnic is open to the public and will be held on June 24, in the new Grantsville Park, beginning at 12 noon. There will be a horseshoe pitching contest open to the public and a foul ball shooting contest with trophies awarded to the winners of both contests. There will also be games for children with prizes for the winners.

To date, about 20 local organizations will have various booths to sell bake goods, handicrafts, sandwiches, and other goods. The Grantsville Lions club is sponsoring a chicken barbeque with the proceeds going to the Grantsville Park Fund. The public is urged to support this event.

Nearly $31 Million Paid By Maryland's Two Top Taxpayers

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has accepted checks totaling $30,876,052 from Baltimore Gas and Electric Company and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Maryland as payment of the franchise tax on gross receipts of the two public utilities.

"These companies are Maryland's largest taxpayers," Comptroller Goldstein said, noting that, under Maryland law, public utilities pay a tax on gross receipts instead of a corporation income tax.

The payments cover final payment of the tax on gross receipts for 1977 and an estimated payment for the gross receipts tax for the first half of 1978.

Maryland Gross Income Was $22.5 Billion For 1976

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported this week that Marylanders paid State income tax on $22,518,855,931 in gross Maryland income for 1976. The information is part of a summary of State income tax returns filed for Calendar Year 1976.

A total of 1,618,930 resident individual State income tax returns and 24,370 non-resident returns were filed on 1976 income. "That's up from the 1,586,565 resident and 23,275 non-resident returns filed on 1975 income," Mr. Goldstein said.

He noted that Maryland taxpayers took deductions totaling $3,010,073,124 and personal exemptions totaling $2,895,369,696 on the tax returns they file on 1976 income.

"One statistic which is likely to change when returns received this year are summarized, is the percentage of taxpayers claiming the standard deduction. Traditionally, the largest percentage of taxpayers have claimed the standard deduction. Of the returns filed on 1976 income, 58 percent used the standard deduction, while 42 percent itemized deductions. The State income tax returns which have recently been filed by Marylanders on their 1977 income will reflect the effects of the emergency legislation I proposed which allows Maryland income taxpayers to itemize deductions on their Maryland tax return regardless of what they did on their Federal tax forms," Comptroller Goldstein said.

A total of 529,807 taxpayers (32%) used the State's "short form" 503. The largest percentage of returns (44%) came from single taxpayers.

An additional 30% of the returns were filed jointly by husband and wife. Twenty percent of the returns filed on 1976 income were the combined separate returns of husband and wife, and 4% of the returns were from husbands and wives filing separately.

"The largest number of returns (249,203) came from Baltimore City with 248,570 from residents of Baltimore County," Mr. Goldstein said. "Montgomery County, with the fourth largest number of returns, still had the highest gross Maryland income reported by its residents."

Gross Maryland income reported by Montgomery County residents totaled $4.65 billion. This was followed by Baltimore County ($4.08 billion), Prince George's County ($3.72 billion), and Baltimore City ($3.11 billion).

Montgomery County had the largest number of tax returns reporting Maryland gross income in excess of $200,000 for 1976 (332 tax returns), followed by Baltimore County (177 tax returns).

Scott did place second in the contest, but the competition was sponsored by VFW Post 8769, Friendsville, rather than 4-H.

CARD OF THANKS

Sincere thanks and appreciation to the members of the Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department for its rapid response, and the time and effort given to control the fire, when lightning struck and burned the barn, Tuesday afternoon.

Thanks also to the Accident and Grantsville Volunteer Fire Departments who responded, to members of other county fire departments who stopped to help, to the Ladies Auxiliary for providing food, and to all friends and neighbors who helped in any way.

Martha M. Emory
and family

CARD OF THANKS

Our family wishes to express its sincere thanks and appreciation to all the fire companies which so graciously responded to the call when our home was destroyed by fire. Also, our thanks to the new disaster group which helped to clean the burned debris; the friends, neighbors, churches and others who shared their labor, food, clothing, household articles and love gifts of money. We have had a loss but have realized more than ever that people do care about one another and are concerned about each others welfare. May God grant his richest blessings to one and all.

Mr. and Mrs. John Menges

—Adv. 15-1t.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned wish to extend our thanks and appreciation to the office staff and employees of the Garrett County CETA Program for the excellent job done at the old Veterans' Cemetery near Hoyes, Md. This cemetery, being perhaps one of the oldest in the county, had been neglected far too long. With the cooperation of the county CETA office, workers were supplied and removed the trees and brush from the cemetery, straightened several monuments, repaired the fence around the area and landscaped and reseeded the area. We are most appreciative of the efforts of the CETA office and its employees.

The grandchildren of
Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Friend

—Adv. 15-1t.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for the many cards, letters and gifts sent to us on our sixtieth wedding anniversary (May 14). Thanks to everyone who helped make our special day one which will be long remembered. God bless all of you.

Harry and Mary Murphy

—Adv. 15-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our wife, mother and grandmother, Helen Frazee, who passed away twelve years ago, May 27, 1966.

There's a place in heaven that's marked "Reserved", for mothers such as she, who lived life-long devotion to her home and family;
A cherished smile, a heart of gold, to the dearest mother the world could hold;
Happy memories, fond and true, from us who thought the world of you.

Sadly missed by husband Glen, Children Dale, Dorothy, Glenna and grandchildren

—Adv. 15-1t.

CARD OF THANKS

Our sincere thanks to the many friends who supported us during the illness and following the death of Mr. John F. Friend, Jr. For the many flowers, food and cards of sympathy we are grateful. A special thanks to the Northern Rescue Squad, Rev. Matthews, Rev. Jacks, Durst Funeral Home, the pallbearers and to the staff of Garrett County Memorial Hospital and Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home.

Mrs. Nora B. Savage
and family

—Adv. 15-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Elwood Adams, who passed away one year ago, June 8, 1977.

There's an open gate at the end of the road, Through which we must go alone; and there is a light we cannot see, our Father claims His own. Beyond that gate, my loved one has found happiness and rest, and I find comfort in the thought that a loving God knows best.

Loved and missed
by his wife

—Adv. 15-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my Grandmother, Mary Herman, who passed away June 4, 1977.

In my heart your memory lingers, sweetly, tender, fond and true; There's not a day dear Grandma, that I do not think of you.
The flowers I place upon your grave, may wither and decay, but sweet memories of you
Grandma, will never fade away.
To those who have a grandma, treat her with love and care;
you'll never know how much you miss her, till you see her vacant chair.
My heart still aches with sadness, and my eyes shed many tears; only God knows how much
I miss her, at the end of one long year.

Sadly missed by granddaughter Jeannie

—Adv. 15-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Jerri Jo Frazee, who passed away one year ago.

Little Angels

When God calls little children to dwell with him above, we mortals sometime question the wisdom of His love; For no heartache compares with the death of one small child, who does so much to make our world seem wonderful and mild.
Perhaps God tires of calling the aged to his fold, so he picks a rosebud before it can grow old.
God knows how much we need them, and so he takes but few, to make the land of Heaven more beautiful to view. Believing this is difficult, still somehow we must try, the saddest word mankind knows will always be "goodbye." So when a little child departs, we who are left behind, must realize God loves children,
Angels are hard to find.

Sadly missed by her mother, father, brother and sisters

—Adv. 15-1t.

Route 219 by reconstructing the existing intersection. The alignment parallels the existing highway and bridge to the south shore of the Lake. Access will be provided to the rental cabins, boat ramps and commercial businesses along U. S. Route 219 north of the existing bridge. After crossing to the south shore, Alternate "D" ties into the existing highway at the intersection with Lake Shore Drive. The project terminates at Leo Friend Road.

The State Highway Administration is considering the design approval for this project in accordance with Certification Acceptance Operating Procedures. The proposed design for the roadway provides for two (2) twelve (12) foot lanes with ten (10) foot shoulders and twenty (20) foot safety grading on each side. The typical section for the bridge provides two (2) twelve (12) foot lanes with ten (10) foot shoulders. A ten (10) foot bike/Walkway would also be provided.

Beginning on June 8, 1978, maps, Combined Location/Design Public Hearing Transcript and the Final Negative Declaration submitted in support of the location approval and consideration of design approval will be publicly available for inspection during normal working hours at the following locations until June 23, 1978:

The Great Revolt . . .

One of the more interesting items making the headlines during the past week is California's Proposition 13, the greatest tax revolt since the days of the American Revolution.

Whether or not one agrees with this measure by the California residents, one must admire them for taking such a bold step. This legislation will remove some $7 billion from the pockets of the California government. Time will tell if this decision was a wise or foolish one.

We hear politicians, mainly those who are seeking office, exclaim every day how they will cut taxes and cut government spending. Most of them never are able to do it. Oh, they may cut a few hundred thousand dollars here, or maybe even a million there. But, imagine a cut of $7 billion. That's seven thousand million dollars, and in just one state! It's truly staggering (especially to those who presently hold office in California).

Proposition 13 may turn out to be a great mistake. California could suffer if too many worthwhile programs and services have to be axed. Prices and inflation will most likely continue to rise for everyone, including Californians.

On the other hand, perhaps citizen-forced legislation such as Proposition 13 is one of the best ways to make a real dent in inflation. Nothing else seems to be working. It will force the California government to seek maximum efficiency, something which our state and federal governments have not had for decades. It will reveal just how much waste exists in government budgets.

Does legislation like Proposition 13 destroy progress? Maybe for a short while. Progress, like everything else, is getting more and more expensive all the time. But why does it have to be expensive? If we can defeat inflation and roll back the prices, there is no reason that the cost of progress will not also come down.

Footnote - Ironically, if Proposition 13 were enacted here in Garrett County, our property taxes would be raised.

Police Investigate Breaking And Entering Cases

Several cases of breaking and entering and larceny have been reported by the Maryland State Police.

One such case occurred at Silver Tree Inn last Friday between 1:15 and 8 a.m. An unknown person or persons broke a glass in a door, reached in and unlocked the door. A door to a cabinet was pried open and U. S. currency and change in the amount of $763 was taken. Damage estimated at $100 was also done to the door. Silver Tree Inn, owned by Alpine Village, is located on Glendale Road about a half mile east of U. S. 219.

No suspects have been named in the case investigated by Tfc. R. E. Friend.

The business was closed and secured at 1:15 a.m., and the break discovered at 8 a.m. The door used for entrance was located on the lake side of the building and the cabinet door was behind the bar.

Supplementary information is given on the breaking and entering and larceny at the home of T. R. Noble on Rt. 40 about a half mile east of the Md.-Penna. State Line. The two-story frame house was entered May 22 about 12:30 p.m. The wife was at work and the children were at school at the time. Entrance was gained through a locked basement door. A bedroom was ransacked and $30 was removed from a bank. An additional $125 was taken from a box in a drawer. There are no suspects to date in the case investigated by Tfc. Friend.

The larceny of a CB radio from a truck cab parked on the lot of Asher Glade Church on Rt. 42 about six miles west of Friendsville. The incident occurred last Wednesday between 5:50 a.m. and 12 noon. The radio, valued at $70, was taken from the instrument panel but the bracket was left. A window vent was pried open to gain entrance to the truck cab. The truck is the property of Edward Detrick of Farmington, Pa. Tfc. Dale Williams investigated the incident and no suspects have been named.

Miss Mary Lynne Sebold, daughter of Paul and Edna Sebold of McHenry received the honor of first runner-up. Miss Cynthia Sue Kamp, daughter of William and Mary Kamp of Grantsville, was declared second runner-up.

The Dairy Princess was crowned by Valerie Loughrie, present FFA Officer and past Farm Bureau Farm Queen. Mrs. Dorothy Leuba, Mrs. Joyce Bisheff, and Mrs. Betty Guard conducted a training program for the Dairy Princess candidates and helped each girl prepare a 3-5 minute speech on some aspect of the dairy industry. Mrs. Carolyn Ganoe, chairperson for the Area 1 Dairy Princess Program, wishes to thank all dairymen who supported the banquet held at the Will o' the Wisp on Thursday evening, June 8.

Marie Guard will attend the Tri-State Dairy Princess Seminar at the University of Delaware on July 6 & 7, where she will learn how to present an educational dairy skit, will sharpen up her public speaking abilities and will receive further training in how to more effectively relate to the public when telling our dairy story.

The Maryland Dairy Princess Contest will be held on July 26 and 27 at the Hunt Valley Inn in Baltimore. At the statewide gathering Marie will meet many leaders of the Maryland dairy industry, and will vie with seven other area princesses for the Maryland Dairy Princess title. All contestants will be given an opportunity to present a 3-5 minute skit, an extemporaneous speech about some aspect of the dairy industry, and will be interviewed by a panel of dairy leaders who will determine her ability to effectively relate the dairy industry message.

Local Residence Destroyed By Fire

A small home in the Charlotte Housing Development on Ben DeWitt Road off Route 219 South was totally destroyed by fire Sunday evening.

The fire was reported to the Garrett County Central Alarm at 1:48 a.m. and firemen from the Oakland and Deer Park volunteer departments were dispatched to the scene. When they arrived only the chimney was left standing, but they remained on the scene until 7 a.m. watering down the area.

The home was the residence of Roy Gregory, his wife and two children who are reported to be in Italy.

The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad also responded to the fire. There were no injuries.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by Charles Cronauer of Frederick, who is substituting for Robert Shimer, fire marshal for Allegany-Garrett counties.

Grantsville Foodland Robbed Early Sunday

Three masked men broke into the Grantsville Foodland Store early Sunday morning and fled with the contents of an office safe, according to Tfc. R. E. Friend, criminal investigator of the McHenry detachment of the Maryland State Police.

About 3:20 a.m., three white males who were wearing ski masks forced entry through a rear door. The men then made their way to the store office where they were surprised by two night employees who were later tied and told by the men not to move. The culprits proceeded to gain entry into a large stationary safe with what appeared to be two different types of chisels. After breaking open the safe, the men took the money inside and then fled the scene.

No mode of travel or positive description of the subjects is known. West Virginia and Pennsylvania as well as Maryland State Police have been alerted about the robbery.

The safe was constructed of a one-eighth inch outer shell with four inches of wire reinforced concrete. The inner shell contained a one-sixteenth inch steel plate.

Citizens Discuss Housing Plan For Senior Citizens

A meeting was held at the Accident Fire Hall on Tuesday, June 6, to discuss the possibilities of building a retirement village near Accident.

Tom Jones, of the Garrett County Planning Commission, said that two of the major criteria for building such apartments is an adequate water supply and sewerage system and that Accident is one of the few communities in Garrett County that meets these requirements.

Ms. Deborah Lawton, of the Garrett County Housing Office, indicated that funds and plans for such a project are available through the FHA.

The village would be composed of apartments which would be rented to senior citizens who are capable of taking care of their own needs, but no longer wish to live alone in homes which are too large to care for. Each apartment would have total living facilities, including kitchen, living room, bath and bedroom. Apartments would be rented on a first come-first serve basis, with senior residents of Garrett County having first priority.

It was suggested that a steering committee be formed and the committee would then decide the kind of corporate structure to supervise the project and proceed with land site and funding studies.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, June 20, at 8:00 p.m. at the Accident Fire Hall. All interested persons are invited to attend. Persons desiring more information should call Mrs. Mabel Kahl at 826-8146, Rev. Fred Illick at 826-8170 or the Garrett County Housing Office at 334-4443.

Autumn Glory Festival Parade Theme Announced

The theme of the 11th annual Autumn Glory Grand Feature Parade this year will be the "Autumn, the end of nature's rainbow," it was announced by Ed Walthall of the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

Kris Hardesty, a high school sophomore from Grantsville, submitted the winning theme. As winner of the contest, Kris will receive a $25 Savings Bond and told by the men not to move. The culprits proceeded to gain entry into a large stationary safe with what appeared to be two different types of chisels. After breaking open the safe, the men took the money inside and then fled the scene.

No mode of travel or positive description of the subjects is known. West Virginia and Pennsylvania as well as Maryland State Police have been alerted about the robbery.

The safe was constructed of a one-eighth inch outer shell with four inches of wire reinforced concrete. The inner shell contained a one-sixteenth inch steel plate.

Commissioners Questioned About County Budget Proposal Monday

A dozen members of the public and about as many county administrators were at the county commissioners' public hearing held Monday at the Courthouse in Oakland to discuss the proposed new county budget.

Representatives of the Garrett County Taxpayers Association asked several questions about expenditures and cost increases, but expressed no real dissatisfaction with the proposed budget.

He said high school band and athletic trips may suffer, field trips be reduced, positions will not be filled, and vehicles will not be replaced. He also said the Regional Education Services Agency contribution to the county education budget will be decreased.

Dr. William H. Buser, superintendent of schools, was the only agency head to testify. He submitted written testimony outlining areas in the Board of Education budget which may be cut as a result of the county commissioners' failure to fund the full budget amount requested by the school board.

The superintendent concluded his case for full funding of the board's request by pointing out Garrett County has been either lowest or next to lowest throughout the state in per pupil expenditure for the last seven years.

George C. Edwards, chairman of the county commissioners, presented the budget, stating the commissioners are proposing an 18 cents per $100 assessed value reduction in the property tax rate.

The commissioners will adopt next year's budget June 26. The public will be able to submit written testimony until that time.

At the meeting, Commissioner Edwards pointed out they are doing away with the mineral assessment tax, phasing out the inventory tax, and be noted the county now has only three tax-exempt industries still covered by previous legislation.

Several fund raising events are pending to help bring the collections to the 1978 quota of $9,000. To date, $6,877 has been turned in to the local unit, but several areas have not yet responded.

The second annual Ride-A-Thon for horseback riders will be held August 20 (rain date August 27) at Western Trails. Registration fees will be approximately $10, and for additional information, riders may contact Mrs. Marianne Flinn, Oakland. Prizes will be given following the ten-mile ride.

On July 9, there will be a "Golf for Cancer" scotch foursome at the Oakland Country Club. A tennis tournament has also been scheduled late in August.

On August 26 or September 16, there will be an evening of chamber music featuring a group from New York, which includes Dr. Gilcin Meadors. The music will be presented at St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

Leuschner Trial Begins Monday

Preliminary proceedings in the trial of Ellwood Leuschner, charged with two counts of first-degree murder, will begin in closed session in the Garrett County Courthouse Monday, June 19.

Hearings on two preliminary days will be closed to both the jurors and the public. The jury is expected to report at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, June 21, at which time open court will begin for the remainder of the trial. The trial is expected to last at least one week.

Leuschner, 45, is charged with murdering nine-year-old William Marine and ten-year-old Tony Krause last year. His case was moved to Garrett County on the change of venue request of Wicomico County Judge Alfred Truitt.

The defendant has pleaded guilty by reason of insanity.

The trial had originally been scheduled here April 18, but was delayed at the request of the Wicomico County state's attorney.

Jail Prisoners To Be Transferred To Cumberland

Garrett County prisoners in the jail on Friday, June 16, will get a free ride — to the Allegany county jail in Cumberland. On that day, the jail will officially be closed for demolition, to make way for the county office structure to be constructed on the site. Only three prisoners were incarcerated there this morning.

Jail facilities in the addition to the Courthouse are not quite completed, so prisoners must be housed in Cumberland until the new jail is finished. Completion is expected in August or September.

The sheriff, deputies and office staff will remain in the present building until June 30. After that date, they will have offices in a trailer set up behind the former Coffey house on Oak Street.

A public sale of all removable jail furnishings and some office furniture is planned Saturday, July 1, beginning at 9 a.m. A notice listing contents to be offered appears on page 39 of this week's Republican.

Booths of all types will be set up by organizations offering games, foods, soft drinks, flea markets and tee shirts.

Refusing To Weigh Brings Stiff Fine

Refusing to have truck weighed drew a stiff fine levied by Judge Lewis R. Jones in District Court last week. Others paid high for drunk driving, driving on revoked license and leaving the scene of an accident.

Joseph B. Martinko, Markleysburg, Pa., pleaded guilty and was fined $505 for refusing to allow his truck and load to be weighed.

Clyde Wilbert Hallman, Bayard, W. Va., pleaded guilty of driving while ability was impaired by alcohol and was fined $105. A charge of failing to drive in a single lane was dropped.

Hanson Amerziah Friend, Kingwood, W. Va., pleaded guilty of the same charge and was also fined $105. Friend also pleaded guilty of driving while his privilege is revoked and was fined an additional $105. A 60-day jail term was suspended and he is not to drive until he obtains his license. Three other charges against Friend were dropped; exceeding the posted speed limit, using tags issued to another vehicle and operating an uninsured motor vehicle.

Robert Leroy Twigg, Jr., RD 4, Deer Park, pleaded not guilty of leaving the scene of a property damage accident. He was found guilty and fined $105. Twigg also pleaded guilty of failing to keep to the right of the roadway and was fined $30.

Two Larcenies Investigated

Two larcenies during the past week netted the thieves over $300, according to the Garrett County sheriff's department, which is conducting the investigations.

Eric Allen Gizard, Don Nine Apartments, Oakland, reported June 7 that someone had taken $300 from a dresser drawer in his bedroom.

On June 6, the Kitzmiller Elementary School was entered and approximately $70 taken from a classroom desk. A door in the gymnasium was forced to gain entry.

On June 8, Bruce W. Shahan, Oakland-Sang Run Road, reported that someone had struck his mailbox and failed to stop. Amount of damage was undetermined.

On June 11, Ronald William Smith, Bloomington, reported that 50 pounds of copper wire, valued at approximately $35, had been removed from his porch during the night, about 10:45. He had heard a noise but could not see anyone outside at the time of the theft.

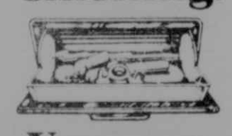
A young man from Friendsville was arrested and charged with trespassing at Wynlyn's Edge June 10. Willie Biggs Friend, Friendsville, was released on $50 bond the following day, pending a trial.

One Hospitalized In Sunday Wreck

One person was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a two-car wreck on Maryland 135 at the top of Swanton Hill road Sunday evening. Five others were treated and released.

Opel G. Roy, 46, of RD 5, Oakland, was admitted to the hospital with a broken pelvis and other injuries. Reland Adair Roy, 48, and his passenger, Teresa K. Roy, 19, both of RD 5, Michael Wane Conners, 22, operator of the other car, his two passengers, Brenda G. Conners, 18, and Caren C. Conners, 3, all of Cumberland, were all treated and released from the hospital. The injured were transported to the hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad.

Roy was traveling west on Rt. 135 at the top of Swanton Hill road about 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Conners entered Rt. 135 from the Mt. Zion road and apparently crossed the center line of Rt. 135. Roy swerved to the left to avoid a head-on collision while Conners then turned back to his own lane just in time to collide head-on with the Roy car. Tfc. E. J. Upole charged Conners with negligent driving and failing to keep to the right side of the road.



The driver of a car involved in a two-vehicle mishap occurring about 7 p.m. Saturday in Mt. Lake Park was injured when his car was struck from behind. Ernest P. Tressler, Sciote Street, Mt. Lake Park, driver of the car and Ernest R. Fisher, Mt. Storm, operating a maxivan, were both eastbound on Rt. 135 at G Street. When traffic ahead stopped Tressler also did but Fisher failed to stop and struck the Tressler car in the rear. Tfc. Upole charged Fisher with speed too great for conditions.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Sir:

Judge Thayer's sewage rate case verdict against Mountain Lake Park strips our town of our State Charter right to control over our financial integrity. Now we must pay for past and future Sanitary Commission spending, mismanagement, and even rascalities.

During the trial the judge said that, because we and Loch Lynn are the only sources of Sanitary Commission revenue, we must pay what the Commission spends.

Let's apply that mistaken principle in action:

The judge had to renege on an earlier promise that the Sanitary Commission, not us, must pay for the Ernst and Ernst Report, $15,000.

Again, suppose the Sanitary Commissioners find the moral decency to make restitution to the victims of that nasty CETA labor rip-off. Where will they find the money? Only by raising the victim's sewage rates.

And again: If we sue the Commission for breach of that hidden 1969 contract, as the judge hinted, where would the Sanitary Commission find the money to pay us damages? Only by raising our rates. The victims pay themselves.

Now no other towns in the county are likely to touch the Sanitary Commission with a thirty-foot pole.

Please think again, Judge. Think deeply.

Our town has hired a new lawyer, a fighting type this time, and a new trial has been requested. A basic legal question must be settled: Can a town be held to a blank check commitment to a sanitary commission? For that matter, is any blank check legal?

Coming soon: Negligence by a Sanitary Commissioner and its Resident Legal Agent that might ruin the Commission's financial prospects. Also, a simple, easy way for victims of the CETA labor rip-off to recover their thousands.

Joseph B. Bowen,
Mountain Lake Park

To the Editor and Game Wardens:

Earlier this year I wrote a letter about the number of fish hogs who fish Broad Ford Dam. And if anything, things are worse now. People are heard bragging about having 200 or 300 trout in their freezers. Some have been heard bragging about taking home 15 or 20 at a time, or getting the limit 2 or 3 times a day.

One day I saw a game warden park his car and walk down to the beach, and it appeared that the law was finally going to be enforced. I watched him walk right by one man who had no license and another with 7 trout on a stringer and ignored them both. He left in a few minutes and that was that. As a result of this slaughter, most of the thousands of trout that were stocked have been caught, mostly by fish hogs.

I would like for someone to tell us why the law is not being enforced. Whose responsibility is it? Apparently no ones. Everyone passes the buck to someone else. I still say that the fish hog is a thief and a cheat and should be apprehended and fined heavily.

Also, how about the cars that park illegally on the highway while the occupants are fishing? There are No Parking signs on both ends.

I would like to see some other letters on this subject. It seems that no one really cares.

Open Line → GARRETT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

1. How are members of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Board of Governors selected?

There are now sixteen (16) voting members of the Board of Governors. As specified in the county code the following shall be members, "— the three county commissioners, three county commissioner appointees (one from each district), one member from the Board of Directors of each of the two banks, President of the Oakland Town Council, President of the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross, one representative of the Garrett County Medical/Dental Society."

In addition to these eleven (11) members, the county code was amended to add five additional voting members to the Board of Governors. Four of these members are chosen as members-at-large by the nominating committee of the Board and recommended to the full Board for membership. These four members are chosen for a specific expertise that is needed to complement the existing Board's membership. The fifth new member of the Board is the hospital's chief executive officer.

The nominating committee strives towards recommending members-at-large not only for their ability but also as an equitable balance of northern and southern residents, sex and age.

2. How can the hospital justify spending money for employee parties and picnics?

A job can take up about one-third of an individuals time. Therefore, a job must be more than 40+ hours/week of work. Our employee annual picnic and our hospital Christmas party are two very small and inexpensive ways to promote the job as an experience that is rewarding both financially and psychologically. Activities for the employee and family in a recreational setting promote good moral and high enthusiasm. Additionally, employees and their families have an opportunity in these informal settings to "bump shoulders" with their supervisors, physicians, and Board members creating a team "esprit de corps."

Most of the entertainment and activities for these functions are donated with no expense at all. Items such as food are prepared by the hospital at cost, keeping the total budget for such activities very low. These parties and picnics are extremely inexpensive while the benefits continue to be extremely rewarding.

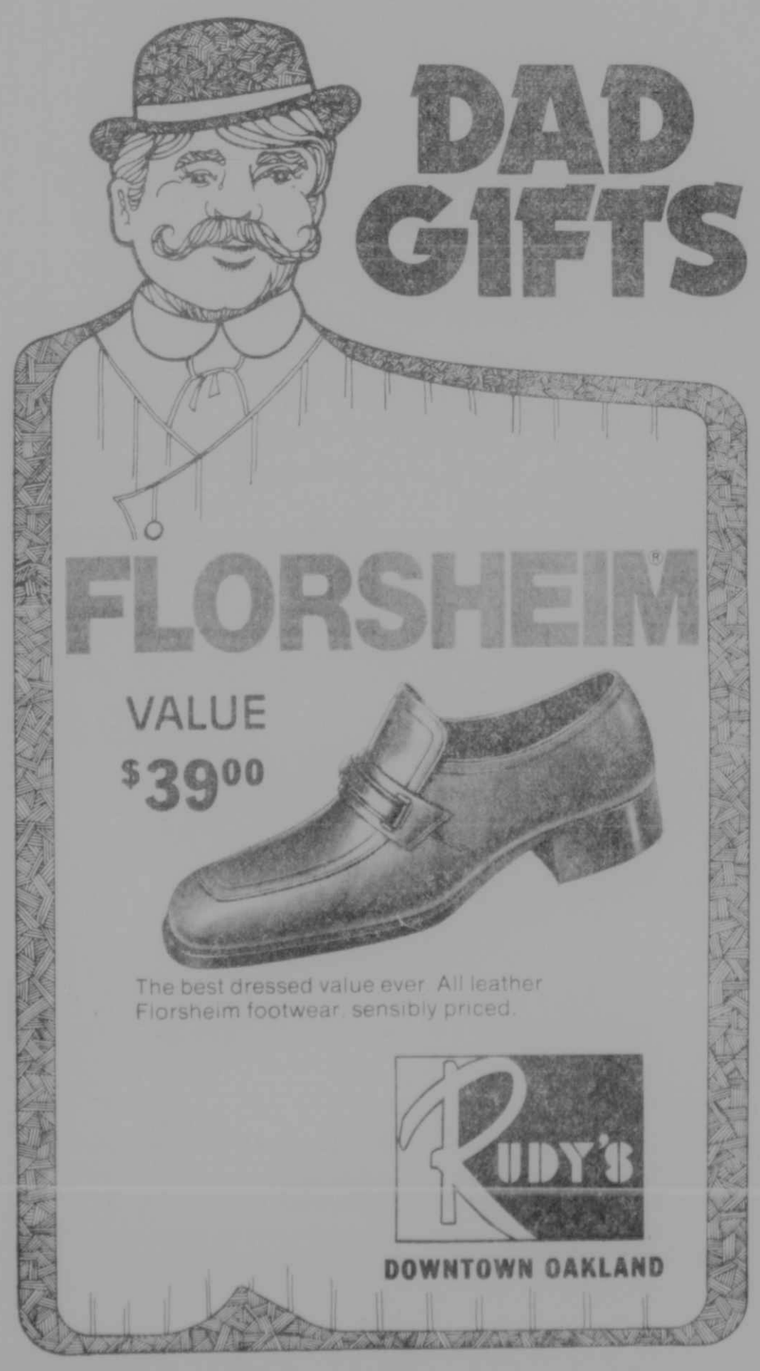
"Right Turn On Red" Effective Saturday, July 1

More than three-fourths of the licensed drivers in Maryland questioned in a recent survey said they favor the state's new traffic law permitting right turns at most red lights. But only one-fourth knew they will still have to stop at every red light before turning, and only one driver in eight knew the Right-Turn-on-Red-After-Stop law (RTORAS) will take effect July 1.

These statistics were derived from a statewide public opinion poll commissioned by the Maryland Department of Transportation, funded by the Federal Highway Administration and conducted by Hollander, Cohen Associates of Baltimore. One thousand licensed Maryland drivers were asked what they knew about the RTORAS law and what they did not.

Approximately two-thirds did not know that:

July 1, a Saturday, is when RTORAS becomes generally legal in Maryland.



Drivers must STOP for every red light before turning.

Pedestrians and oncoming traffic still have the right-of-way.

RTORAS isn't required, only permitted.

"No Turn on Red" signs will mark intersections where RTORAS is still illegal.

Washington, D. C. does not permit RTORAS.

THE FIRE GROUND — Quick and efficient action by Oakland firefighters are what saved this house on Mason Street in Oakland last Friday morning after fire broke out on the second floor. The blaze was located in the stairway and on the second floor and was brought under control within about three minutes. The house, owned by Paul Moore, was unoccupied at the time. Firefighters remained at the scene for about one hour and a half. The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad was also called to the scene. There were no injuries. Robert Shimer, fire investigator for the State Fire Marshal's Office, has determined that an arsonist was responsible for the fire. Shimer discovered three different points of origin on the second floor. The investigation is continuing.

JACK FELL DOWN, and maybe he didn't break his crown, but Jill certainly came tumbling after. This young lady got a thorough drenching when the water from the bucket spilled just before successful completion of their mission during Red House's Play Day.

Burnett Will Not Seek Re-election

Ralph M. Burnett, State's Attorney for Garrett County, has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Burnett, who was elected in 1974 as the Republican candidate, stated that the pressure of his private law practice was the principal reason for his decision.

Mr. Burnett will continue his practice with the law firm of Burnett & Elswert, 1000 Thayer Center.

Questionnaires Sent By Political Action

According to Robert Yunker, Garrett County Teachers Association president, the Political Action Committee of the GCTA recently sent questionnaires to all county commissioner candidates who filed by June 9. Those who file after this date will be contacted after July 5. The questionnaires will be compiled and information relayed to all county teachers, with a similar project being planned for those candidates seeking state offices.

The Voter Registration drive is currently in process and those teachers who received a registration card are reminded to send it to the Board of Election Supervisors as soon as possible to ensure voting privileges in the September Primary Election.

College To Conduct Masters Program

The University of Maryland announced that it is planning to conduct a Three-Year On-Site Master of Education Degree in Human Development if 20 persons can be recruited.

According to the University, all work necessary to complete the degree will be offered in Garrett County and the program may be completed within a three-year period. The program will involve night classes only, unless the participant wishes to complete the program in less than three years.

All required courses will be offered during the first two years and all students must participate together in the offerings at that time. Offerings during the third year will be flexible and determined by the interests and needs of the group.

The Nearly New Shop — GRAND OPENING FRIDAY

NOTICE

To Garrett County Taxpayers

Would you be interested in winning the election this coming fall? Wouldn't it be nice to have several commissioners who spent your money as if it were their hard earned money? This hope is truly possible, but it means work - yes, work you must do to accomplish this objective. You'll have to determine who is seeking the office of commissioner; find out if he really is a wise spender; find out if he is honest; find out if he can handle large responsibilities; find out if he can make important decisions; and then, if you find him, urge him to run for commissioner and don't stop there. You'll have to get votes for him as if your pocketbook were involved - because it really is.

At the outset of this commissioner race, may I state to you that I am endorsing no one else, since this is your decision. I ask you to start now - don't depend upon someone else to guide you through the elections. Do yourself a refreshing favor - care who is running - care about your tax dollars. Will someone else spend them wisely, honestly, fairly and with integrity? If so, by all means get behind him and get him elected.

C&P Pay Phones To Offer Help To Hard Of Hearing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. announced today the start of a state-wide program to provide pay telephones with special devices to help the hard-of hearing.

Spokesman Champ McCulloch said more than 150 special handsets that boost the volume of telephone receivers will be distributed to public phone booths throughout the state.

He said the special devices will be located at hospital emergency rooms, department stores, federal office buildings and travel facilities such as airports.

The devices will be marked with a special logo, which will be the same throughout areas of the country served by the Bell system, he said.

There are an estimated 250,000 hearing-impaired persons in Maryland, McCulloch said.

Two Killed In Plane Crash At Naval Air Base

LEONARDTOWN, MD. (UPI) — Two U. S. Navy crewmen died Tuesday when the small plane they were flying crashed into the runway at Patuxent River Naval Air Station, near Leonardtown, Md.

Lieutenant Patrick O'Neil, 30, was declared dead on arrival at Patuxent River Naval Hospital, shortly after his plane crashed at 3:45 p.m., according to a Navy spokesman. The other crewman, who was not identified, died after being taken to the National Naval Medical Center, in Bethesda, Md.

The spokesman said the crewmen were practicing touch-and-go maneuvers when their plane, a T-38, crashed into the runway. Navy officials did not disclose who was piloting the plane. The cause of the crash is still under investigation.

The air station is located about 60 miles outside Washington, D. C.

Ag Secretary Says More Beef Imports Will Hurt Farmers

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — State Agriculture Secretary Young Hance said today President Carter's decision to allow more foreign beef imports will hurt American farmers and will not lower the price of meat.

Hance had predicted that federal officials would resort to lifting beef import quotas to help depress rebounding domestic cattle prices.

"Now the president has made the move by advancing the questionable argument that more imported beef will act as a ceiling on rising beef prices and, therefore, result in cheaper hamburger at the meat counter," he said.

However, Hance charged meat prices will not go down because the market for meat has finally responded to the "laws of supply and demand."

"Beef producers, who had been losing money for over two years, cut their herds and the surplus of beef has disappeared," he said.

Hance said American cattlemen finally are receiving a favorable price for their product, but more imports will mean American dollars will flow out of the country to foreign beef producers.

"Speaking as a farmer and one who is familiar with the boom and bust cycle of the cattle business, I see the president's short-sighted move as a slap in the face to American agriculture and ultimately (it) will hurt the consumer because it uses the stick of more foreign imports," he said.

He said Carter's decision is "nothing more than a desperate attempt to fool consumers into thinking hamburger will be cheaper."

Jail Fire Kills Two Inmates

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A fire that started in mattresses in a cell at the Maryland Penitentiary killed two inmates and forced the evacuation of 1,000 others, a prison official said.

Howard N. Lyles, assistant commissioner of operations, said fire officials worked two hours Tuesday to clean up and ventilate the area around the socrched cell where the two victims had been located.

He said about 50 city police officers were on standby in riot gear to prevent any disturbances during the operation.

The victims were identified as James Fitchett, 28, who was found dead in his cell, and Larry Fore, 21, who died later at City Hospitals from burns received in the fire.

The fire itself only took about a half hour to put out, but the other inmates on the cell block were evacuated as a standard precaution in the prison.

The inmates on the cell block were either new arrivals being processed or those permanently assigned to the penitentiary, and were taken to two separate recreation areas, Lyles said.

There was some reluctance shown by the inmates about returning to their cells because of fear of the smoke.

Lyles said a "show of force was used" and the inmates returned without violence.

He said that before the fire prison officials were meeting to discuss better fire prevention alarm devices.

The state had allocated money in the budget this year to buy new cotton fiber mattresses to replace the foam beds in the cells, which are highly flammable and give off toxic odors when set afire.

Police Chief Subject Of Grand Jury Investigation

BALTIMORE (UPI) — City prosecutors searched the home of Police Lt. Col. James H. Watkins and seized at least four electronic surveillance devices, police said Tuesday.

Police spokesman Dennis Hill said police and state's attorney investigators armed with warrants, and accompanied by Watkins, entered the deputy police chief's home Monday afternoon and searched the house and Watkins' car.

The Baltimore News-American said the devices and more than 50 reels of tape were confiscated as part of a long-running grand jury investigation of police corruption.

The newspaper said the contraband included microphones equipped with antennaes that could be used to monitor conversations.

The 23-member grand jury, which has been investigating allegations of police ties to narcotics dealers, is scheduled to end its term Friday, after sitting for 18 months and having its term extended twice.

Hill said Watkins, who has testified at least once before the grand jury, will remain in his position for the time being.

John Denholm, a former policeman and now assistant state's attorney, and Mary Ann Hillin, a deputy state's attorney, heard the investigation.

Flight Shuttle Scheduled For Atlantic City

OCEAN CITY, MD. (UPI) — Although Ocean City officials remain opposed to gambling in their resort town, a local airline will soon fly the city's tourists to Atlantic City, N. J., with boardwalk-to-boardwalk service available five nights a week.

Cumberland Airlines president Dale Nicholson said beginning July 4, the airline will offer 30-minute flights Friday and Saturday evenings and three week nights.

He said Monday that exact schedules will not be drawn until arrangements are made with an Atlantic City limousine service.

The flights will make it possible for Ocean City vacationers to fly to Atlantic City at 5 p.m., have dinner, gamble and return to the Maryland resort by 2 a.m., he said.

Palmerworm Now Appearing In Central Maryland

Gypsy moths are making headlines this year in the northern tier of counties after being relatively inactive for several years. But the big news from a lay person's standpoint is the appearance throughout central Maryland of the palmerworm — seldom seen except by professional entomologists, deep in the hardwood forests of the eastern U. S.

Palmerworm larvae have one thing in common with gypsy moth larvae — they both prefer the leaves of oak trees. But gypsy moths are considerably larger and much more destructive.

Textbooks describe the palmerworm as a relatively rare insect whose populations peak about once every 60 years. Actually, the last recorded population peak in the East appears to have been about 1880 — nearly a century ago.

Because he is seldom seen and not notoriously destructive, the tiny palmerworm has not been well studied. In fact, the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency doesn't even have specific pesticide label directives for its control.

In addition, most textbook descriptions of the palmerworm are full of inaccuracies, reports Dr. Ronald W. Hodges, chief of the systematic entomology laboratory for the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Md.

For one thing, many persons assume that the derivation of the word palmerworm means that this insect is mentioned in the Bible. According To Dr. Hodges, the palmerworm is known to professional entomologists in the eastern U. S. by the scientific name, Dichomeris ligulella. This insect has never made a trip to or from the Holy Land, declares Dr. Hodges.

In addition, several college-level textbooks describe the life cycle of the palmerworm as adult moths appearing in July, hibernating through the winter, and laying eggs in the spring.

In this latitude (Middle Atlantic states), at least, they often go through two to four generations in one year, Dr. Hodges reported.

Most textbooks also describe the palmerworm as being primarily destructive to fruit orchards. In this case, normal spray schedules to control codling moth would work against the palmerworm.

But, again Dr. Hodges doubts the validity of the textbooks, citing the palmerworm's known preference for oak trees.

Dr. John A. Davidson, Extension insect specialist and professor of entomology at the University of Maryland in College Park, reports that harmless infestations of adult palmerworm moths were noted during mid-May in home lawns in Montgomery, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel counties — particularly in the Annapolis and Bowie areas.

Eggs laid by these moths should be producing caterpillars in large numbers just about now (early June). The caterpillars are only about one-half inch long. They are olive-green, with two white stripes along the side and two narrow white lines on the back.

If you suddenly find large numbers of such caterpillars on your property, don't panic. They probably won't do much damage. Just remember that you're seeing something that won't appear again for 60 to 100 years — based on past history.

Nine Arrested In Drug Raids

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Nine persons have been arrested and 18,000 pounds of marijuana seized in drug raids on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, federal officials said Tuesday.

Steve Sabo, of the Drug Enforcement Administration, said six men and one woman were arrested Monday night at a rented house near Easton, Md. He said 2,000 pounds of marijuana, two boats and eight vehicles were confiscated during the first raid.

Two more men were arrested Tuesday in Chincoteague, Va., and 16,000 pounds of marijuana and a large truck were seized, he said.

He said the investigation began three weeks ago with the help of Ocean City, Md. police and the suspects were placed under surveillance.

Sabo said the nine were arrested while distributing the marijuana and no warrants were necessary.

Sabo said a "mother ship" loaded with marijuana was believed to be anchored 200 miles off the coast and was supplying smaller and faster boats to move it ashore.

He said a drug ring would then distribute the marijuana to Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and possibly Florida.

Police withheld identities of the arrested persons because they felt some were carrying false indentification papers, he said.

Law enforcement agencies participating in the arrests were U. S. Customs Service agents, state and Department of Natural Resources police, the Coast Guard and Ocean City and Easton police officers, he said.

The suspects were held for arraignment at Magistrate's Court in Baltimore, Sabo said.

TUNES by jim willis

David Bowie has long been the token androgynous anomaly of the music world. However it may come as a complete shock to his fans to learn that he has moved from his Ziggy Stardust appeal to his new album —"Peter And The Wolf, David Bowie with Eugene Ormandy conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra."

There could be a magical quality about Prokofiev's charming children's tale that brings out the lamb in people with beastly public reputations. Boris Karloff did the narration for a wonderful version with the Vienna State Opera in 1936, — Al Hrabosky, the "Mad Hungarian" baseball pitcher did it in concert with the St. Louis Symphony and now Bowie.

His reading is unexpectedly appealing and lacks the trash flash and glitter he's been accustomed to. This is an altogether pleasant way to wean young music lovers away from the Top 40 and into the classics.

The flip side is Benjamin Britten's "Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" — a more pedantic and less attractive introduction to symphonic music.

the ROCKPILE

by Cathy Helbig

In October 1887, "H. R. Duckworth sowed a peck of Japanese buckwheat this season on the Offutt Farm, near Deer Park, from which he gathered about seven bushels, though this was not a good year for that grain."

Grantsville citizens were too smart to fall for one of the schemes floating around the country in 1887; "Some time ago there appeared in our town a man claiming to represent a Western grain firm. His scheme was to sell to farmers a new variety of oats, charging them $10 per bushel. The farmers were not to pay for the oats until he made his money out of the new crop of oats. The company agreeing to buy back twice the amount they sold to the farmer at the same price. But to secure the company the farmer was to give his note, payable in the bank. So far as we can learn, none of our farmers were so foolish as to invest in this old swindle."

"The residents of Terra Alta were thoroughly frightened one day last week by the appearance of a fullgrown black bear in the streets of the town. Bruin came down from Snaggy Mountain and walked along one of the streets until within range of the Baltimore and Ohio Depot, when he was fired upon, without effect, however. A party was formed and went in pursuit, but the bear had made good his escape.

"Bears are said to be more numerous in this locality then for many years past. A gentleman who was looking after his cattle on Back Bone Mountain reports having seen seventeen in 1 day last week. Great sport is anticipated by the old hunters."

In the following week's issue, The Republican carried this statement sent by the Terra Alta Times; "Mr. Oakland correspondent evidently was suffering from a case of plain drunk. If he saw a bear in the streets of our town within range of the B&O depot, it was due to his defective eyesight. We have heard of 'snakes in the boots,' but never before of 'bear in the boots.'"

On November 20 the Barnum and Bailey Great Show was entirely destroyed while on location in Connecticut. In less than 30 minutes the building, 600'X200' and two stories high was consumed. Only 30 elephants and one lion escaped. Damage was estimated at $700,000 with only $100,000 covered by insurance."

Throughout the month of November and early December the southeast portion of the country was plagued by drought accompanied by high winds.

Garrett County was no exception as the late Indian Summer dried wells and rivers while also causing a great many forest fires. No doubt, the winter snows were welcomed.

New Fishing, Hunting Laws Effective July 1

July 1, 1978, is a key date for Maryland's fishermen and hunters.

That's when bills passed by the 1978 General Assembly and signed by Acting Governor Blair Lee become effective.

Also, a number of new regulations for hunters take effect when the 1978 seasons open.

For fishermen:

- Within 1,200 feet of the Bay Bridge, a person may not fish with a hook and line if he holds a commercial hook and line license.
- Nor may anyone fish within 1,200 feet of the spans using a treble hook unless it is an intrinsic part of the lure. (This is a further restriction against snagging).
- A person may have a light in his possession and may use it while catching fish. (Applies to non-tidal fishing).

For hunters:

- Permits not required to take antlerless deer in Wicomico, Somerset, Dorchester and Worcester Counties.
- Fall turkey season closed statewide.
- Liberal deer bag limit in Dorchester County extended to include bow and arrow season.
- Flintlock season for deer initiated (December 7-9).
- No permanent tree stands permitted on state wildlife management areas.
- Deer hunters, or his aids, must wear either a cap, vest, or jacket of a daylight fluorescent orange color. Jacket must have at least front and back panels in daylight orange. (Doesn't apply to person hunting on his own property or to bow and arrow hunters during bow and arrow season).
- Cutoff date for receiving applications for antlerless deer permits is October 23 instead of November 1.
- Commercial hunting guides may not guide parties for economic gain on lands owned or controlled by the Wildlife Administration except by written permission of the Administration.

There are new laws and regulations governing trapping and hunting with raptors. Persons engaged in these activities should consult the hunting guide issued with their license or contact the Wildlife Administration.

Parking Lot Costs Merchants' Topic

Future plans for the new municipal parking lot in Oakland were the chief topic of discussion at Tuesday's meeting of the Downtown Oakland Merchants Association.

Discussion centered on finding a source of revenue for the lot which would rule out the possibility of the town of Oakland having to shoulder costs of the installation expense, which amount to approximately $10,000. Such additional burden could change the town's tax structure, so a source of income to offset the expenses must be found.

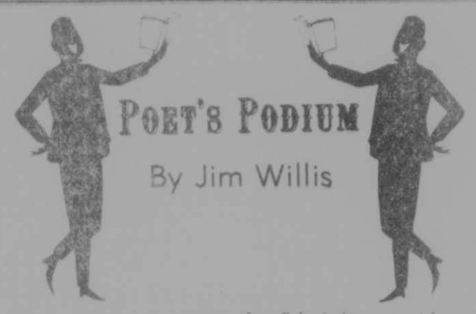
The town had first thought to install metered parking spaces but these would be impractical for snow clearing purposes.

To help solve the dilemma and keep Oakland's tax structure unaffected by the $10,000 bill on the lot, the Merchants decided to ask aid from every business in Oakland, with all contributing to a fund to purchase a metered gate for the entryway of the lot.

The lot will also offer guaranteed-availability parking spaces on a monthly basis for anyone interested. For additional information, contact the Oakland City Hall.

Cost of a metered gate would be $1,700.

Dr. Jerome Arnett Honored June 4



Dr. Jerome Arnett, Rowlesburg physician retiring after many years of service to his community and the surrounding area, was honored June 4 with a reception in the Christ United Methodist Church, Rowlesburg, arranged by the UMW, with Mrs. Thomas McMillen, president.

Presenting Dr. Arnett's gift, a selection of books on a variety of subjects of interest to the doctor, was Mrs. Harry K. Miller. Gifts were also presented to Mrs. Helen Thompson, nurse, and to Mrs. Frances Harvey, receptionist and bookkeeper. Dr. Arnett's gift was provided through the contributions of people throughout the Rowlesburg area.

Attending from Oakland were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Proudfoot, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Feather, Ora Wolfe, Ruthvan, Martha and Mike Morrow.

Other local residents attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Teets, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Teets, Mrs. Jean Winters, Eglon; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Knapp, J. Roy Lipscomb, Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Riggs, Debbie and Susie, Mt. Lake Park.

There are eight times as many rats as there are people in Mexico City.

Wind and Water, ocean breeze, and I alone on bended knees,
can while away contented hours,
to contemplate thy awesome power;
Yet while the others sleep at night,
I watch the seagulls endless flight, across thy surface to the moon,
that bathes in light the golden dunes;
For here thou once did implore,
the sailors vessels to explore,
with fluid motion thou did reach,
and dashed their boats on sandy beach;
Even yet, thou plays this game to roll and billow, kill and maim,
With fitful anger thou watch me scorn,
thy water's edge, where many mourn;
For thou are a puppet on a string, thou heeds the moon, for when she sings thy tides must course along the path,
She chooses, to escape her wrath;
But who controls the moon you say?
What ethereal force at end of day makes the orb in stillness stand,
I do! For by my hand her crystal globe ebbs and sways, across the night, till break of day.

Southern Girls Win Fitness Awards

Students in Southern High School's girls physical education program recently completed tests under the direction of physical education teacher, Helen Rostosky.

The tests are administered in compliance with the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation which is concerned with ways to improve the fitness of American boys and girls.

The Youth Fitness Test was created by AAHPER in 1957 and updated in 1965, 1975, and 1976. It is composed of a battery of six tests designed to give a measure of physical fitness for both girls and boys in grades 5-12. The tests were selected to evaluate specific aspects of physical status which, taken together, give an over-all picture of the young person's general fitness. It is the only fitness test for which national norms have been determined.

The tests are: flexed arm hang for girls, to judge arm and shoulder girdle strength; flexed leg sit-ups, for judging efficiency of abdominal and hip flexor muscles; shuttle run, for judging speed and change of direction; standing broad jump, for judging explosive power of leg extensors; 50 yard dash for judging speed, and the 1½ mile run, for judging endurance.

As an incentive for fitness, there is an achievement award in the form of a physical fitness patch for all girls who attain the 50th percentile or better on all items in the test. This means their accomplishments have put them in the upper 50% or better of all young people in the United States who have taken the test.

Many girls attained the 50th percentile and above in all but one or two test items — this however, eliminated them from award qualification. The girls who attained the 50th percentile or above in all test items qualified for a standard badge. They are: Ninth grade — Tammy Beachy, Vicki Bowers, Leslie Murphy, Janet Maffett, Catie Ravenscroft, Cathy Hesen and Cary Walters. Tenth grade — Patty Harsh, Vicki Stem, Gwen Matthews, Cathy Lee, Jane Echard, Janet Knepp and Juanita Pritts. Eleventh grade — Jackie Tasker, Yvonne Frazee, Sue Mason, Bonnie Evans and Denise Grimm.

Two senior girls, Christine Shaffer and Virginia Pritts, were recognized for winning physical fitness patches for the last four years or more.

Ellen Maffett, an 11th grader, scored above the 80th percentile in all test items and was awarded a Merit badge.

This year, three tenth graders, Janet Hanline, Debbie Miller, Karen Harvey, and an 11th grader, Lorraine Roberts, reached the 85th percentile to win the Presidential Physical Fitness Badge, the highest award presented.

Local Drivers Place Well At Morgantown

Garrett County's race car drivers did well Saturday night in events at Morgantown Raceway. Veteran driver Frank Lewis started second in the heat and finished in the top slot.

In the feature, however, he started sixth but was involved in an accident which sent him to the pits to fix a flat. When he drove back onto the track he was nineteenth but had moved into eighth place before the checked flag was waved.

Frank also ran at Hagerstown Sunday, finishing seventh in the heat and first in the consolation race. His car did not finish in the main feature.

At Morgantown Saturday Randy McCartney's semi-late model car started third in the heat and finished second. He took the number eleven position in the feature but did not finish.

Randy Murphy's dune buggy finished sixth in the heat and 10th in the feature.

Dewey Wakefield's semi-late model car finished second in the heat, moving up from the number six spot. In the feature, he started sixth but finished second. He was moving into the number one place but ran high on a curve, losing his advantage.

This weekend Morgantown will be sponsoring the mid-season semi-late championship race, with Dewey Wakefield and Randy McCartney among the competitors. The following weekend the track will sponsor the mid-season late model championship race, which will include Frank Lewis.

One new driver from Garrett County, Bob Hershman, will join the drivers with track fever starting next weekend at Morgantown.

FARM & HOME SAFETY

Animal manure in storage is subject to bacterial decomposition and various gases are given off in the process. These can be poisonous or explosive, with dangers to personnel or animals. This is the time of year that manure storage areas are being emptied. Be cautious of the gases forming.

Methane Gas (CH4). Anaerobic decomposition (without air) over a period of a month or more can produce methane gas which is explosive when mixed with air. There is a record of a free stall barn being lifted straight up when the methane-air mixture was ignited by a welding torch.

Hydrogen Sulfide (H2S). A very poisonous gas, hydrogen sulfide, is also given off in the bacterial action in manure. It is bad-smelling (like rotten eggs), and has killed both men and animals.

Effective ventilation is required to make the area around the manure storage safe for man or animal. This applies to tanks under closed buildings. There can be chronic effects on animals constantly exposed to air containing traces of hydrogen sulfide. When the liquid manure is agitated there can be a very high concentration of the gas. At this time it can kill man or animal in a few minutes. It may be advisable to remove animals when agitating the manure.

Because gas is heavier than air, no one should enter an emptied manure tank without breathing apparatus and plenty of assistance on hand.

Open Storages. There is some trend toward open top outdoor manure storages for solids or liquids. Because the gases are not confined, there is little danger of explosion or asphyxiation. There can be a danger in any open storage tank or pond, that of drowning of a person or animal in the liquid contents. This is particularly true of manure storage because the surface gets a hard dry crust in warm weather. It appears deceptively solid: strong enough to walk on, so the area must be fenced against animals and children. Signs on the fence should be used to warn adults of the danger.

Straight Talk About Aging

by Dr. Matthew Tayback, State Director on Aging

THE OLDER DRIVER

Independent living is the major objective of today's programs for the elderly. Since we are a mobile society, independent living includes transportation and the use of a car. A common fallacy, however, is that the elderly must give up driving and thus lose their mobility because they cannot see as well as they once did.

This is not true. Changes in vision that occur naturally with age do not mean that elderly people must necessarily discontinue doing the things they have always done, and that includes driving a car.

The ability to travel freely is basic to participation in volunteer work, social functions and part-time careers. Older people who turn in their driver's license because their vision is not what it used to be may be doing themselves a disservice.

The following safety tips will help older Marylanders to remain active and drive safely:

Have a professional vision examination at least once every two years.

Be sure you have the proper glasses for both day and night driving.

During the day, if sunlight glare is a problem, wear quality sun glasses. Do not wear them at night, however, when they drastically reduce the light needed to see clearly.

Study the cars and roadway far ahead. Check both sides of the street and glance frequently in the rearview mirror. By keeping your eyes moving, you will be more alert and can compensate for the reduction of peripheral or side vision that occurs with age.

Choose a car without a tinted windshield. The tinting process reduces the amount of light entering the eyes and can be a handicap at night.

Be sure to keep the headlights and windshield clean.

Because drugs can affect vision (and this includes alcohol and tobacco), know their side effects before taking the wheel.

Maintain correct speeds. Slow driving can cause as many accidents as excessive speeding.

For older pedestrians, if you walk on the roadway, always use the left side, facing traffic, and try to wear clothing which contrasts with the background. Since most auto-pedestrian mishaps occur when a law is violated, do not jay-walk, observe traffic signs carefully and do not walk between parked cars.

Know your capabilities well and adjust your driving and walking practices accordingly. Transportation is the key to independent living. Learn to use it safely.

BE CAREFUL, THAT'S MY MON'S IRON — The students from grade section 8A-5 and 8B-5 have been busily constructing two weather balloons from black plastic garbage bags. They all donated 25c to the project to offset the cost of materials. After cutting the bags they followed a pattern while ironing the seams of the balloon together. Each section's balloon will be judged on several criteria upon launching. Pictured, left to right, are Skippy Roy, Steve Knotts, Barry Sweitzer and Rick Stemple.

Businessman Arrested In Moscow On Currency Violation Charges

MOSCOW (UPI) — The forcible arrest of an American businessman on charges of currency violations threatens to worsen U.S.-Soviet relations, already strained by worldwide political tensions and allegations of espionage.

P. Jay Crawford, 37, of Mobile, Ala., the Moscow representative of International Harvester, was dragged from his car at a traffic light by Soviet militiamen.

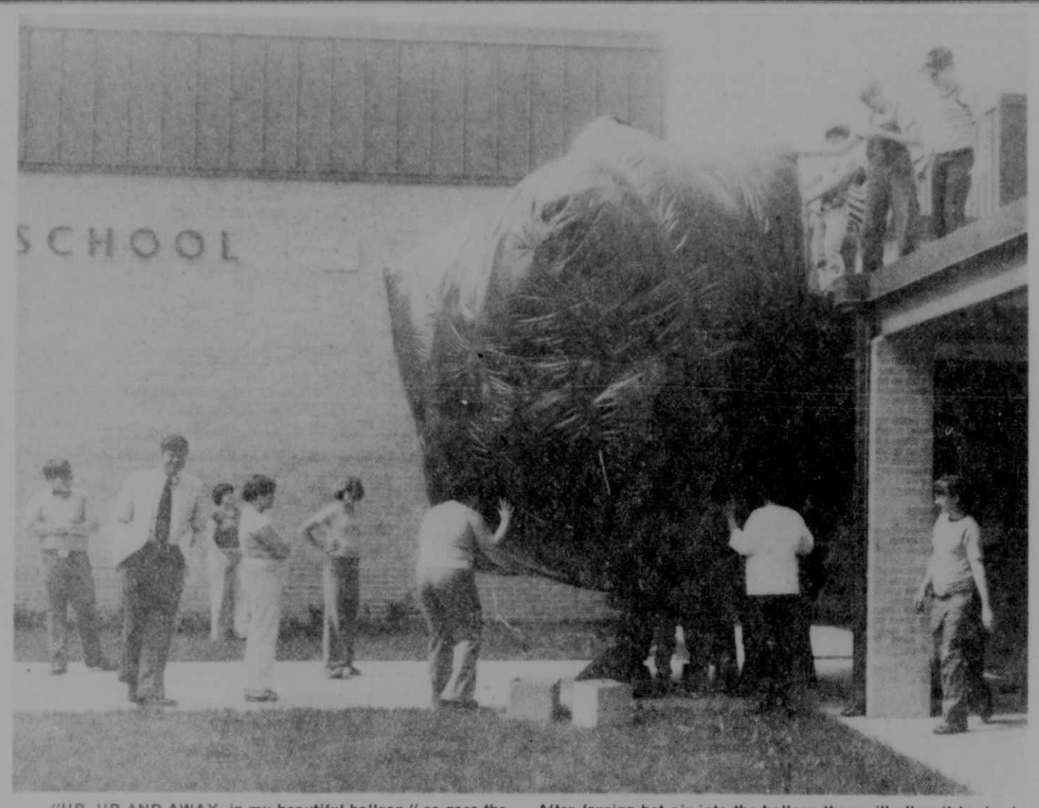
Crawford was held incommunicado for a day before U.S. officials were allowed to meet with him at Moscow's Lefortovo Prison Tuesday. The U.S. Embassy has delivered a written protest over "the behavior of Soviet authorities in this case."

The embassy declined to discuss the conversation between its officials and Crawford, but said the Soviet Foreign Ministry announced he was accused of violating Section 78 of the Russian Criminal Code, which deals with smuggling and illegal contraband.

But Soviet sources said the arrest involved alleged currency violations, a charge that carries a sentence of three to 10 years.

Crawford, who has been in Moscow for more than two years, was driving with his fiance, embassy employee Virginia Olbrish of Philadelphia, when he was picked up Monday. Miss Olbrish was freed.

In Chicago, International Harvester said it believed Crawford was innocent of any violations of Soviet law. "We don't think he's guilty," a company spokesman said.



Crawford's arrest came at a time of increasing tension between Washington and Moscow over Soviet moves in Africa and American charges that the Russians planted listening devices in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

State Department officials in Washington said they were not yet prepared to draw any direct relationship between the Crawford case and other recent incidents.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia Monday said a U.S. Embassy employee was caught last summer as she tried to deliver money, microphones and poison capsules to a spy. It said a previous supply of poison was used to kill an innocent Soviet citizen.

The newspaper said the woman, Martha Peterson, was allowed to leave the country, but was declared persona non grata.

The Izvestia story followed warnings by the Soviet press last week that it would reveal U.S. espionage activity in the Soviet Union if Washington continued to press the case of a Soviet bugging device found in the U.S. Embassy May 25.

"UP, UP AND AWAY, in my beautiful balloon," so goes the Fifth Dimension's hit of a few years back. This balloon is not meant to carry passengers but it is used by meteorologists and scientists to measure wind velocity, direction and other important factors. Southern Middle School pupils utilized the same principles and constructed two balloons of black plastic. After forcing hot air into the balloon they will allow it to rise to the end of its tether and then check wind conditions. The air in the balloon is continuously heated by the sun's rays which are absorbed by the black plastic. The students first attempted to raise a balloon Monday, but were unable due to high winds. They plan to repeat the experiment later this week.

Court Upholds Law Stopping State Oil Company Monopolies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today upheld a pioneering Maryland law that prohibits oil companies from operating their own retail gasoline stations in the state.

More than half the states have considered similar laws since the 1973 Arab oil embargo shortages and led to complaints about uneven distribution of available supplies. But only a few have enacted them so far. Maryland was the first.

Today's 7-1 decision opens the way for other states to adopt such laws and eventually could lead to major changes in the U.S. system of petroleum marketing.

Oil companies who challenged the Maryland law warn it will lead to an increase in consumer prices. For starters, it will require producer-refiners in Maryland to divest themselves of 250 outlets with a total value of about $13 million when it takes effect in one year.

The Maryland Legislature approved the statute after a 1973 survey found company-operated stations were getting all the gas they needed, while dealers were having serious problems obtaining supplies during the shortage.

The law not only bars oil companies from operating their own retail service stations, but requires them to distribute supplies uniformly and says they cannot discriminate in apportioning gas during shortages.

The most common form of retail service station is the "major brand" station, usually run by independent dealers who sell nationally advertised brand-name products and offers full services. Another form is the "private brand" station, which usually sells only gas and motor oil, is run by company personnel and offers gas at slightly lower prices.

Opponents of the law thus argued it would hurt competition by making it uneconomic for smaller refiners to market their gasoline in the state and by creating a "virtual marketing enclave for local independent dealers."

But Justice John Paul Stevens, delivering the court's opinion, said the statute does not create an unconstitutional burden on interstate commerce. He said states clearly have power to regulate in this area

Stevens said in the sense that the Maryland law might have an anticompetitive effect, there is a conflict between it and the central policy of the federal Sherman Antitrust Act. But, he said, "...if an adverse effect on competition were, in and of itself, enough to render a state statute invalid, the states' power to engage in economic regulation would be effectively destroyed."

Justice Harry Blackmun said he felt the law unjustifiably protects in-state retail service station dealers from the competition of out-of-state businesses. Justice Lewis Powell did not take part in the case.

Police Look For Bodies Of Six Kidnap Victims

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Authorities said today they expected to find the bodies of at least six kidnap victims buried behind a pawn broker's tar-paper shack littered with whips, chains, swords and shackles.

Police began the search Tuesday through the four acres of knee-high grass and pine trees behind the shack owned by Kenneth Appleby. Appleby, 27, was arrested on a New York warrant, charging him with kidnapping and being a fugitive from justice.

Appleby pleaded innocent at his arraignment Tuesday and was ordered held without bail pending a bond hearing today.

Officials told the Springfield Morning Union Appleby said he had buried the bodies of several victims — all apparently from New York — behind the shack on Piper Road.

"There are at least six victims involved and that is just the tip of the iceberg," a Springfield court official told the newspaper.

Hampden County District Attorney Matthew Ryan said: "Everything he has given us has been borne out by the investigation."

Local, state and New York police dug for eight hours Tuesday and reportedly unearthed what looked like a large rusted tank and a garbage can that contained clothing. No bodies were found.

New York police said the investigation began about four months ago. Local police said a helicopter surveillance of the home had been under way for a week.

Police said they found "numerous instruments of bondage and kidnapping and numerous rifles and handguns, amphetamines and other drugs" in Appleby's house. Appleby, owner of A&A Pawn Brokers in Springfield, also was charged with possession of a firearm without a permit, possession of ammunition without a firearms identification card and possession of a controlled substance.

Two police officers guarded the home overnight. The property, located on a sparsely populated country road, was completely surrounded by a 5-foot wire fence, and inside, an 8-foot stockade enclosure.

The fences were cluttered with "No Trespassing" and "For Sale" signs. Police said the land, cluttered by overgrown grass and overshadowed by pine trees, has been up for sale at least a year.

"It's a damned garage, a tar paper shack in a $50,000 neighborhood," said one officer guarding the house.

A Piper Road resident described Appleby as a dark bearded man, who often dressed in a black hat and coat and carried a cane. She said he was often seen in the company of 17-or 18-year-old boys she did not recognize.

Indian Minister Says Countries Resolving Exports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Morarji Desai says he and President Carter are resolving problems concerning the export of more U.S. enriched uranium to India — the only dispute existing in their talks.

"A dialogue is going on. It's all being sorted out," Desai told reporters Tuesday following discussions of the nuclear export problems in separate meetings with Carter and members of the House and Senate foreign relations committees.

Carter and Desai were scheduled to hold their final official talks at the White House today while the House International Relations Committee at the Capitol was considering two resolutions blocking nuclear exports to India already approved by Carter.

If the House committee refused to block the export — as some committee sources predicted — approval would be automatic, since action by both House and Senate is required to block it.

It also would be a personal triumph for Desai, who pleaded India's case strongly Tuesday.

Under a law signed by Carter earlier this year, in an effort to halt nuclear proliferation, all recipients of American nuclear fuel are required to open all their nuclear facilities to international inspection and safeguards by 1980.

Desai has pledged there will be no further Indian nuclear explosions such as those detonated by former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by diverting nuclear material provided by Canada and the United States.

But Desai told lawmakers Tuesday, according to several who attended, that India would not sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty while the superpowers maintain atomic arsenals without signing a nuclear test ban treaty.

Desai also said the United States has a valid contract to supply India with atomic fuel until 1983 and he expects Washington to honor it, the sources said.

The uranium export apparently was the only troublesome subject raised in the Carter-Desai meetings, which otherwise have been marked with great warmth.

"This has been one of the most delightful evenings of my administration," Carter told Desai during toast remarks at a working White House dinner Tuesday night.

Carter called Desai "a unique man" whose "social and religious convictions don't change."

In his response, Desai said he and Carter "have struck a common bond ... and I find we have the same values. We understand each other very fully."

Carter Insists on Safeguarding Taiwan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will speed up the process of seeking full diplomatic relations with Communist China, but is insisting on three conditions to safeguard Taiwan's future, administration officials say.

National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski told Peking's leaders last month the United States is determined to move toward full relations, but did not start negotiations, officials said Tuesday.

Rather, he sought to widen political consultation between Washington and Peking on strategic issues, and in the process outlined the administration's view of Soviet military strength as contained in a National Security Council study known as PRM-10.

In a related development, UPI learned Peking has invited Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., to visit China for three weeks beginning June 28. Wolff, a backer of full ties, is chairman of the House subcommittee on Asia and Pacific affairs.

During the past two days, Carter and his aides have outlined to the Trilateral Commission, an elite private group, the conditions on which the United States will insist before replacing the historic U.S.-Taiwan tie with full ties to Peking:

—Continued U.S. trade and and aid to Taiwan. This would mean Taiwan would continue to enjoy U.S. trade privileges, Export-Import Bank credits, uranium supplies for its nuclear power plants, and military co-production arrangements.

—Establishment of a U.S. trade office — possibly unofficial — in Taiwan after diplomatic relations are severed and the 1954 mutual defense treaty is abrogated.

—A pledge that China would not seek to reunite Taiwan to the China mainland by force. Various formulas have been considered by the administration in this respect.

The proceedings of the commission are off the record, but several participants were willing to describe to UPI the substance of the U.S. strategy. UPI also sought elaboration of U.S. China policy from officials in the executive and legislative branches.

The administration expects the Nationalist Chinese government of Premier Chiang Ching-kuo to react negatively.

But officials believe Taiwan will reject it — declaring it cannot survive withdrawal of formal U.S. ties and, instead, bow to the inevitable — protesting sharply but taking concerted actions to make the best of the situation and protect the foreign investments which are vital to its vigorous economy.

There also is the possibility Taiwan might eventually declare itself a new, independent state, but that is not seen as an immediate development. Until now, both the Nationalists on Taiwan and the Chinese on the mainland have said Taiwan is part of historic China.

Any rejoining of Taiwan to the mainland, U.S. officials say, would have to be accomplished through peaceful arrangements between the governments in Taipei and Peking and would involve exceedingly delicate negotiations.

On the other hand, should a strong Taiwan independence movement develop, the United States might consider extending diplomatic recognition to a newly proclaimed state.

Three New York City area airports were hit by bombings recently.

Big Fights Pending Between House And Senate On Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stage is set for another long fight between the House and the Senate on a bill encompassing two of the most emotional social issues in the country: federally funded abortions and hiring quotas for minorities.

At issue are provisions in a bill appropriating money for fiscal 1979 for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

On a 212-198 vote Tuesday, the House rejected a compromise that could have headed off another long abortion battle with the Senate, and insisted on language allowing federally funded abortions for poor women only if the continued pregnancy would threaten their lives.

It also voted 232-177 for an amendment blocking use of federal funds to draft programs aimed at increasing minority college enrollment and minority hiring or promotion.

Then the congressmen gave final approval to the $56 billion appropriations bill, which went to the Senate $1.8 billion lighter than when the House started working on the measure last week.

The Senate, meanwhile, prepared today for what was seen as a major test on the controversial labor law reform bill, which has been held up by a filibuster.

The third try to invoke cloture came Tuesday, but was six votes short of the needed 60 to limit debate. The fourth vote was scheduled late today, and if it fails, it could give opponents of the bill new zeal in their efforts to defeat it.

The measure would make it easier for unions to organize and would penalize employers who violate existing labor law.

In other action, House and Senate energy conferees settled final details of a compromise bill that would lift federal price controls on newly produced gas by 1985.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., the chief Senate negotiator, said Tuesday's action meant it now will be possible to move quickly on final approval of three of the five bills in the administration's energy package: those dealing with industry conversion to coal, utility rate reform and natural gas pricing.

Jackson said more work is needed on a fourth measure, the energy conservation bill. There appears to be little chance of final action on the last bill, a controversial crude oil tax proposal.

The going appeared to get tougher in committee hearings Tuesday on a bill to provide long-term federal loan guarantees for New York City.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., closed four days of hearings on the bill before his Banking Committee by saying he remained unconvinced that the legislation was necessary.

The bill passed the House last week by an overwhelming 247-155 vote, but one head count on the 15-member Senate Banking Committee indicated only five votes for the proposal.

In other committee action, the House Appropriations Committee approved an $18.4 billion Agriculture Department budget for the 1979 fiscal year, an increase of nearly $6 billion over the current fiscal year.

Handicapped division, most money collected, William Abernathy; most miles, Ronald J. Cosner. Northern region, most money collected and most miles, Timothy Miller. Scouts To Sell National Center

GREAT FALLS, Md. (UPI) — The Girls Scouts of America has decided to sell its 92-acre national center to a developer who plans to build houses on the land.

The Rockwood Girl Scout National Center is used by about 20,000 girl scouts from across the nation each year for training seminars, athletic programs and educational conventions, a spokesman said.

The scouts now will hold their training sessions at a similar facility in Westchester County, N.Y., according to the scout spokesman.

Girl Scout headquarters in New York said the decision to sell the center was made because costs of equipment, staff and operations at the center were becoming excessive.

The center was sold to Berger-Berman Builders Inc., but the sale price was not disclosed.

Peter Berman, president of Berger-Berman, said his firm plans to build homes worth more than $100,000 each at the site. He said as much as possible of the woods on the land will preserved.

Montgomery County Executive James Gleason is opposed to granting new sewer service to the area, but Berman said he would install septic systems if necessary.

U.S. Disagrees With Cuba On Zaire Invasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Cuba continued in hostile disagreement today over whether Cuba tried to prevent the Katangese invasion of Zaire. A U.S. spokesman says efforts to improve relations between the two nations are in abeyance.

The administration maintained its refusal to reveal its evidence the Cubans prepared and trained the Katangans in Angola and failed to try to stop their May invasion of Zaire.

President Carter was certain to face a barrage of questions about the situation, along with other questions about U.S.-Soviet relations, at his televised and broadcast news conference today.

An administration official said Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro told U.S. envoy Lyle Lane on May 17 he had heard about preparations for the Shaba invasion and had warned Angolan leader Agostinho Neto it should not take place.

The official said Castro claimed not to have any involvement with the Katangese in Shaba.

Two days later, the official said, Lane told a Cuban diplomat that if Castro's assurances were not true the United States would view it with "gravest concern."

The invasion began the next day. On May 25, Carter publicly condemned Cuba.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., who met with Castro for seven hours Monday, told reporters Tuesday Castro said a political solution is not possible in Angola.

"The mission of Cuba in Angola is to protect it from foreign aggression," Solarz quoted Castro as saying, "and there needs to be Cuban troops in Angola as long as the situation is unstable in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), Namibia and South Africa."

The United States estimates there are over 40,000 Cuban troops and military advisers in Africa, most of them in Angola (about 23,000) and Ethiopia (around 17,000).

Solarz said Castro has no plans to withdraw from the Ogaden in the Horn of Africa because the situation there is not yet secure, fighting continues and in any case Somalia has not yet abandoned what he termed expansionist designs on Ethiopia.

"Castro quite openly and explicitly acknowledged the fact that Cuba was providing advice and training and logistical assistance to the liberation forces in Zimbabwe, Namibia and South Africa ..." Solarz said.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Tuesday the process of improving U.S.-Cuban relations is now stopped.

School Tug Of War Ends In Tragedy

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A lighthearted attempt by the Harrisburg Middle School to set a world tug of war record began with the drop of a yellow flag.

It ended tragically about three minutes later with 70 students injured, four of them with parts of their fingers sliced off.

For nearly three minutes, 2,200 students and teachers from the school strained against the 2,000-foot long, 1¼-inch, braided nylon cable.

Then there was a sound like a rifle shot.

The rope, which was supposed to be strong enough to withstand the pull of 33,000 pounds, had snapped.

Besides the four students who lost parts of their fingers, another 66 were treated at local hospitals for burned, blistered hands and possible fractures. And 150 to 200 more were treated by school nurses for hand burns.

Marshall Layton, principal of the school, said the students and teachers were trying to set a record for the largest tug-o-war so they could get into the Guinness Book of World Records.

"It sounded like an explosion. It really popped and everybody went flying," said Pete Rekus, a news photographer who witnessed the accident.

"There was some confusion at first until the kids realized what happened and looked at their burned hands. I saw one kid running with his hand held up in the air saying, 'My finger's gone. My finger's gone.'"

The rope, loaned to the school district by the Pennsylvania Power & Light Co., had a breaking strength of 13,000 pounds.

Regina Holmes, 13, who suffered severe burns and blisters on both hands, said the rope "popped just like a gun going off. It exploded right in my hands. My hands felt like they were on fire."

Witnesses said the rope broke about one-third of the way in from the left side. One said smoke issued from the rope just before it snapped.

"There were too many people pulling. There was just too much heat, too much resistance," said Janice Hicks, 14, who suffered hand burns.

Betty Bogar, spokeswoman for Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital, said four persons were treated for amputations. They were:

Donald Burnett, 16, who lost the little finger of his right hand; John Price, 14, who lost the tip of the little finger of his right hand; Dale Roberts, 13, who lost the tips of the third and fourth fingers of his right hand, and Marie Lewis, 13, who lost part of her left thumb.

FLUORIDATION OF WATER SUPPLY

According to Dr. William Pope, County Health Officer, Oakland has recently installed fluoridation equipment at the Broad Ford Water Treatment Plant. This will supply one part per million of fluoride in the drinking water. The town of Accident also has fluoridation equipment in place. Its water is now fluoridated to an acceptable level of one part per million. One part per million fluoride is the recommended level in water supplies to insure maximum prophylatic effect in regard to tooth decay.

What does this mean for the children in this area? It will be unnecessary in the future for the children in the Oakland and Accident Municipal Water Supply District to be on any supplemental fluoride. This also holds true for Terra Alta and Kingwood residents. Discontinue any supplements for your children if you live in any of these areas. If you live in the Mt. Lake Park or Friendsville area, your water is not fluoridated and a fluoride supplement is recommended to protect your children's teeth.

If your family uses well or spring water in any area of Garrett County, please continue to give your children a fluoride supplement prescribed by your doctor or dentist. For babies and infants who are breast fed it is advisable to continue a supplemental vitamin and fluoride supplement until they are old enough to drink the tap water. For babies and infants who are bottle fed one must use an additional fluoride supplement if you give your baby the ready-to-feed formula. If the baby is on the concentrate to which you add tap water it will be unnecessary to give the fluoride supplement.

Please check with your doctor to be certain your baby is getting the proper fluoride supplement.

IMMUNIZATIONS

The West Virginia State Health Director, Dr. George Pickett has announced that West Virginia is in the midst of a measles epidemic. Five hundred ninety-one cases have been documented. At least one case from Northern Garrett County has also been confirmed.

Parents, please check your child's health records to be sure he or she has had the measles or MMR immunization. If the vaccination was given before fifteen months of age contact your doctor or the Health Department in your community.

Mathias Bill Will Identify "Problem Children" Earlier

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) today said he will introduce legislation this week to identify "problem children before they get in trouble and land in court."

In a speech to the Second National Youth Workers Conference of the National Youth Alternatives Projects, Mathias said he will seek to amend the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 under the "Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Counseling Act" he plans to introduce.

The bill will provide state educational agencies with grants to support counseling and other services to selected students, "in an effort to identify and treat incipient learning and discipline problems."

Mathias views the legislation as a way to:

1. identify and counsel problem children before they reach the juvenile justice system.
2. bridge the gap between the Justice Department's program for juveniles and those of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Senator Mathias is the ranking minority member of the Subcommittee to Investigate Juvenile Delinquency of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He was instrumental in having the "Runaway Youth Act" included in the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974. Last February President Carter signed a law introduced by Senator Mathias and Senator John Culver (D-Iowa) which increases penalties for individuals convicted of the penalties for sexual exploitation of children.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Your telephone rings. It is your REALTOR saying that he is coming right over with a prospect. You hang up the phone. What's the next thing you do? Turn on every light in the house. Why?

Because you want to give the prospect the best image you can of the comfort, beauty and livability you are offering. In other words, you want to sell a home not a house. And full illumination is the best way to give your home that lived in" look. Furniture and rugs and fixtures take on a warm glow from the proper lighting. Here are a few bright" ideas:

Turn on every lamp in the living room, bedrooms and family room. Be careful about turning on the overhead lights in these rooms for it could be harsh and make the room look uninviting. Turn on every light in a storage room or closet. Go all out in illuminating the kitchen - the cheerier the better. Brighten up the bathroom too - but carefully choose the right wattage for bulbs by the mirror, pick the most flattering one. Remember, it's just as important to have lights on in the afternoon as it is for a night-time showing.

Here's a man who knows where he's going—and it's a good thing he does! Because even a small craft can flounder pretty badly if it gets too far off course.

How about you? Do you know where you're going? If you're like many of us, you probably have your moments of doubt.

That's where the Church comes in. The teachings of the Church give us the basic understanding and philosophy we need if we are to do a good job of navigating our way through life. In the Church we learn the meaning of faith—and we learn, too, why our Faith has endured through the centuries. We come to realize the wonder and beauty of wisdom, kindness and tolerance.

If you feel that you've gotten off your course somehow . . . don't try to find your way back alone. Remember that your church stands ever ready to welcome you.

TURNING THE TABLES

Lesson for June 18, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 16
Devotional Reading: Luke 8:4-15

Did it ever strike you that much of the Book of Acts is set inside jails?

In Acts 5 the high priest, jealous of their success, imprisons some of the apostles. Of course that night an angel came and freed the apostles and sent them back to the city to continue their public work. In Acts 8 we are told that Saul dragged off to prison some of the followers of Jesus. In Acts 12 Herod has Peter thrown in jail, but with the help of another angel Peter escapes and his jailers are executed by the enraged Herod. In Acts 22-26 we find Paul in prisons in both Jerusalem and Caesarea, scenes of some of his most significant confrontations with the civil authorities. And Acts closes with Paul under house arrest in Rome.

Rev. Althouse

Praying and Singing

There is one other prison incident in Acts 16. When Paul exorcises a demon from a young woman whose madness is being exploited, a riot ensues and after they are severely beaten, Paul and Silas are thrown in jail. One would expect that these two men would feel a deep sense of dispair over their plight. But Christians in those days exhibited rather strange behaviour when they were in jail. Thrown into Herod's prison, you will remember, Peter slept, although his life was surely in danger. Now at Philippi we find Paul and Silas "praying and singing hymns to God" (16:25). And it is interesting to note that "the prisoners were listening to them."

One or more angels had figured prominently in some previous escapes from jail by apostles. This time, however, it was to be an earthquake that would open the prison doors. (What chance does a mere persecutor have when God has angels and earthquakes at his disposal!).

What Must I Do?

It is not just an earthquake that is important in this story, however, but something else. When the earthquake rips open the prison, the jailkeeper, knowing that he will be tortured and killed if his prisoners escape, decides to take his own life. All is lost, it seems. But out of the darkness there comes this reassurance from Paul: "Do not harm yourself for we are all here." Although the prison doors stand wide open, Paul and Silas are not going to escape.

Why not? One cannot help but conclude that they decide to remain out of concern for the jailor. They know what fate lies before him if they escape. So Paul communicates to the jailor a loving concern that is probably as amazing to the jailor as the sheer force of the earthquake. Here are two men who care about him, who are willing to sacrifice their freedom for him. No wonder he turns and asks that important question: "Men, what must I do to be saved?" Once again God has turned the tables to reach a man's heart.

Peaceful Horse Farm Ideal Location For Boys' Home

by Carol Canan

It always seems that young people and horses have a natural affinity for each other, and an outstanding example of that can be seen at the Long Stretch Youth Homes, Inc., between Grantsville and Frostburg.

Here, horses which once ran free on federal lands in Oregon have been transplanted to Garrett County, to be cared for by boys transplanted here by referrals from the Department of Social Services, Juvenile Services or private agencies throughout Maryland.

The youngsters, most of whom are classified as CINS (Children in Need of Supervision) or CINA (Children in Need of Assistance), will have the responsibility not only of feeding and caring for the horses but will be gently training them for their new roles as useful members of the equine race.

In a similar manner, the boys are cared for by staff members, trained in academic studies and in a trade. Average stay is 18 months, but may be as short as six months or as long as several years.

The Longstretch Home is a private enterprise, a non-profit, family-run operation which currently shelters 36 boys between 13 and 18. Involved are Mr. and Mrs. William Platter, who have had foster children in their home since the 1940's; and their four children, Rick, assistant director; Jon, counselor; Karen Dishong and her husband, house parents and 4-H leaders; and Diane Loar, purchasing agent. A full-time staff of 20, many of them graduates from Frostburg State College, works at the home.

The home fills a need for boys who are not delinquent and who, because of a state law effective in 1972, cannot be housed in state institutions.

There are three houses in use by the Long Stretch Homes, two on the Platter farm and another a short distance east along Route 40. Twelve boys are presently housed in each house, with a pair of houseparents for each of the houses. The two on the farm are known as "problem-solving" houses, with youngsters having group therapy sessions each weekday, with emphasis on peer control. One youngster is chosen each day to present a problem he has encountered, and all the boys pool possible suggestions to solving the problem. An adult group therapist is the leader, but takes part only on request, or when the youngsters cannot handle the problem.

Psychologists and pyschiatrists are "on call" and available from Brooklane Psychiatric Center in Hagerstown, coming to the Home on Thursdays to provide additional guidance.

Many of the boys who come to the Longstretch Youth Home must imagine they're having a mirage when they first see its peaceful acres, complete with attractive houses, new barn and riding ring, ponds, and lots of horses. The Platters have moved from the home in the center into a trailer to provide room for additional boys at the Home.

An Incentive House, located about one mile east of the farm, are housed the boys who are ready to go back into their communities. Those with no families to return to may stay at Incentive House until they are employed or join the service. The House was the property of Mrs. Zeola Robeson a retired school teacher, and her husband, who are selling the house to the organization with payments like rent.

A typical weekday schedule begins with reveille at 7 a.m., with boys expected to clean their rooms and perform other such chores before breakfast at 8. Meals are all prepared by the houseparents and served family style, and cleanup chores are shared. At nine, the youngsters go to school (a second-story area leased to the Home) working through various academic concept levels to attain their General Equivalency diplomas. School is held 12 months a year. At 1, boys report to one of three vocational training sites, whether it is agricultural, the Home-operated service station, or horsemanship. Boys who wish may also carry a 4-H beef or horse project. Many are members of the Blue Pine Springs 4-M riding club.

The school was organized under the capable direction of Rev. William Price of Cumberland, who set up the Alternative School in Allegany county. If the school should receive state accreditation, there would be additional funds forthcoming for materials to provide more varied learning opportunities. Most of the boys are currently showing 1½ months of progress for each month spent in the school, using the concept program which allows each to progress at his own rate. When youngsters are 17 or 18, they usually obtain their GED and are ready for the job world. Many of the boys decide the Armed Services is the next logical step, and enlist for two to four years.

At the Texaco station, the boys serve the public and learn first hand to work on small engines, do minor car repairs, manage the parts department, and learn body work. On the farms, both the Platter farm and a nearby property leased by the Home, the youngsters learn about conservation practices such as soil testing

A beautifully secluded lake is a good incentive to completing work quickly on a hot day, for a swim session au naturel which follows. The lake is located on the 960 acres which comprise the Platter farm.

The sign of the star on Route 40 east of Grantsville is where youngsters from Longstretch Youth Home learn to deal with the public, pumping gas, working on small engines and in the parts room. The training is part of their vocational education each weekday.

Each boy's nook in the bedrooms of the houses shows his individuality in tastes and interests. This neat-looking corner has the living decorations provided by a boy with a "green thumb." In other rooms, drawings of cars or motorcycles might decorate the walls; in another, electronic equipment is in various stages of assembly. Interests are encouraged as long as neatness is maintained.

The globe identifies this as a schoolroom, before any other details of the room can be absorbed. Learning at the Longstretch Youth Home, Inc., is by concepts, so that youngsters can master one idea at a time and progress to the next most difficult task. Upon arrival of new boys, the social worker, teachers, parents, and state officials go over past school records to tailor a learning plan to fit the individual.

These wild horses from Oregon were brought here in November through a federal program run by the Bureau of Land Management, part of the U. S. Department of the Interior. Under their program, excess wild horses and burros are being removed from western rangelands in order to help balance resource uses on public lands, and to meet the requirements of the Wild Free-roaming Horse and Burro Act of 1971. The animals belong to the U. S. government, but any offspring of two stallions and eight mares belong to the adopter. Horses do not need writtten permission from state agencies in order to have their pictures published, but unfortunately the boys who reside here do. Legal red tape involving several signatures of guardians, etc., precluded photographing any of the youngsters here.

The Incentive House, located along Route 40, houses boys who are ready to return to their communities, if they have families, or who are almost ready to leave the home for a job or military service. At right is one of three vans, one for each house, used to transport the boys to their activities.

Two Accidents Injure Cyclists

Two cyclists were taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, following accidents last week in the northern part of the county.

The first, a two-vehicle mishap, occurred about 4:30 last Wednesday afternoon on Collier road about a quarter mile east of U. S. 219. Robert E. Collier, 14, RD 1, Accident, was thrown from his motorcycle and taken to the hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. Nancy Kay Collier, of the same address, was westbound on Collier road and started to round a curve. Robert Collier traveling east, also started to round the same curve. The cycle struck the left front part of the car. Tfc. C. D. Skidmore investigated.

Judith E. Wynn, 35, Evans City, Pa., was also taken to the hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad following a one vehicle mishap last Saturday shortly past noon. A passenger on the motorcycle was not injured. She was eastbound on U. S. 40 at the Casselman River road and noted a vehicle making a left turn into Penn Alps Restaurant. She applied her brakes, began to fish-tail, lost control and the cycle went down. Tfc. Skidmore investigated this one also.

B. P. W. Planning Memorial To Charter Member

Members of the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's club dined at Will o' the Wisp's Four Seasons dining room Thursday prior to the final meeting of the current business year.

President Mrs. Barbara Flinn presided at the meeting, during which four guests were introduced: Connie Higgans, Glenna DeWitt, Brenda Butscher, and Ireta Callis. Two new members were also recognized, Susan Crawford and Margie Broadwater.

When the club adjourned to a meeting room, first topic of business was a provision for a memorial to Miss Mary Speicher, a charter member of the Garrett County club in 1939. There was unanimous approval to send a contribution to the Business and Professional Women's Foundation in her memory.

Members were asked to indicate to the program chairman Eleanor Deal which of many offerings the club would choose for next year. The club decided to continue meeting at Will o' the Wisp, with the first regular business meeting slated September 14.

A covered dish picnic for prospective members was tentatively scheduled August 17. Official details will be forthcoming from membership chairman Helen Harman.

Mrs. Anne Conner gave a report on activities at the annual state convention held May 26-28 at Hunt Valley Inn. Mrs. Flinn, Mrs. Deal, Miss Mildred Wucik, Mrs. Phyllis Trickett, Mrs. Helen Harman, and Mrs. Pam Ashby were others attending. The four state awards won by the club were displayed, along with other mementoes of the convention trip.

New committee chairmen and members met with last year's leaders to review responsibilities and share ideas and suggestions prior to adjournment.

Any working woman who desires to join the club is welcome. For additional information contact Mrs. William Harman, Cove, Mrs. Eugene Flinn, Oakland, or any member.

Current officers for the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club conducted their first full meeting last Thursday following dinner at Will o' the Wisp. From left they are Mrs. Sara Jane Kuhn, recording secretary; Mrs. Eleanor Deal, vice president; Mrs. Barbara Flinn, president; Mrs. Jean Deem, cooresponding secretary; and Mrs. Pam Ashby, treasurer.

Goldstein Calls All Democrats To Action

"Now is the time for some real Democratic grass roots action," declared State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein as he urged all Maryland Democrats to take part in statewide caucuses being held on Saturday, June 17, to elect delegates to the Democratic National Convention from Maryland.

The caucuses, which start at 10 a.m., will be held in each of Maryland's eight congressional districts, and each will elect one male and one female delegate to the mini-convention in Memphis, Tennessee, in December, 1978.

Five at-large delegates will be selected by the newly elected Democratic State Central Committee following the September 12, 1978 primary election.

"The emphasis will be involving as many Democrats as possible," Goldstein said, "especially women, minorities, and youth. We can build an even stronger Democratic party with more widespread participation. So I urge all Maryland Democrats to attend the caucus in their respective congressional districts."

For the location of the caucus in your area, contact Ann Baker at (301) 465-1409, or write to Democratic Party Headquarters at 123 West Read St., Baltimore, Md. 21201.

Maryland Safety Is Second Best In The Country

Maryland continued for the third consecutive year as the second safest state in the nation according to accidental death data revealed June 12 at the 55th annual meeting of the Safety Council of Maryland, Inc. in Baltimore.

National Safety Council statistics for 1977 quoted by Harold E. Archer, president of the Maryland chapter of the national council, showed the Free State with a fatality rate of 30 persons per 100 thousand population. New York again led the country with a rate of 28. The national figure was 47.

Speaking to 300 safety officials from industry and government, Mr. Archer pointed with pride to Maryland's lofty national position and to an improving population death rate that is 25 per cent better than five years ago.

"But", he said, "we cannot be happy about the absolute fact that nearly thirteen hundred of our citizens lost their lives in accidents last year, and that the vast majority of the tragedies were clearly preventable."

The specific count cited by Mr. Archer was 1,267, including 667 highway victims, 289 killed at home, 46 in work related incidents, and 265 in the public classification such as drownings, hunting with firearms, airplane crashes, and falls in public places.

and proper woodlot management, along with the basics such as the plowing and planting. Enough feed is raised each year to provide for the livestock at the Home.

Jon Platter is a qualified horsemanship instructor and is ably assisted by another young man learning the field. Boys learn how to care for the horses, including farriership, and equine health and illness, as well as riding.

Sports activities are available at Frostburg State College, with facilities open to use by the boys. A van is located at each of the houses to provide transportation to Frostburg and for field trips. Last winter, Seven Springs provided ski passes for all boys and staff members, a trip much enjoyed by the youngsters. Two of the staff members have boats on Deep Creek Lake and these are available, with supervision, to the boys.

At 4, the day's work ends, for the 4:30 to 5:30 group therapy meeting. Between dinner time and lights out at 10, boys are on their own time, and may read, swim, visit a movie, or work on extra projects such as 4-H beef animals or radio repair.

Saturday the houses are cleaned from top to bottom, and on Sundays boys sleep in until 8 a.m., and then may attend the church of their choice.

Funding for the Home activities is through state agencies with some Title XX money for medical necessities, social work and education.

Future plans are clearly outlined in the mind of William Platter, patriarch of the Home, who hopes to establish a Wilderness School for boys who have a social or anti-social tendencies. A pilot school conducted in Virginia allows such boys to built shelters in the wilderness, conduct woodlot operations and attend school, far from city confinements. Mr. Platter would also like the Home to expand to contain as many as 60 boys.

The Grantsville community area where the Platters live has been most accepting and helpful with the Youth Home project. Local farmers hire boys to help them, and their wages are banked and saved until the boy leaves or wants to make an important purchase. Youngsters are provided with $5 per week spending money and $25 per month for clothing through the funding agencies.

The neighbors were most helpful to the Platters when their home burned in 1972, and insurance covered only $10,000 of their loss. Their friends banded together, told the Platters to chose a house plan and buy the materials, and then they did the rest.

The herd of wild horses, eight mares and two stallions, are settling down now, glad to be provided with hay and at last learning to eat "corn on the cob." Now the process of training begins, a process the boys can easily identify with as it parallels what has happened in their own lives. The Platters believe that with understanding, firmness, and love, both horses and their human counterparts will become useful citizens in their respective worlds.

Scott Glotfelty Gets Scholarship

Scott A. Glotfelty, Bittinger, is one of thirteen outstanding Maryland high school seniors who have been selected from among 1,200 nominees as Chancellor's Scholars for Fall 1978 at the University of Maryland College Park Campus. Eight women and five men will receive scholarships under the Scholar's Program initiated last fall by Chancellor Robert L. Gluckstern to recognize young people in the State of Maryland who have demonstrated special intellectual talents.

Three of the recipients are National Merit Scholarship finalists and one is a National Achievement semifinalist.

Each student will receive a scholarship worth $2,000 over a four-year baccalaureate program, priority for housing in residence halls, and other recognition. Because the awards are based on outstanding achievement, each student must continue successful academic performance to renew the scholarship each year, but they are not required to demonstrate financial need.

Scott A. Glotfelty, of Northern Garrett High School, was recipient of a local County Citizenship Award. He was also president of the French Club, parliamentarian of the Student Government Association and a 4-H contest winner. He plans to study zoology upon entering the University of Maryland.

Broiler Contest Held By 4-H And FFA Members

Members of 4-H and FFA clubs from all areas of Garrett County gathered together on Saturday, June 3, to hold their annual Broiler Contest. The event took place in the Vo-Ag building of Southern High School. Fifteen youths participated and exhibited a total of 45 dressed chickens. The broiler contest was the final step in the completion of the 4-H and FFA Baby Broiler Project. Chicks were donated by Sterling Processing, and in return, the students assumed the responsibility and gained the knowledge of raising and producing marketable chickens.

Winners in the Junior division were John Martin, first place; Annette Bowman, second place; and Susan Wright, third place. Senior division winners were Durenda Riley, Tom Evans, Sharon Wright, Mike Harvey and Bryon Bowman finishing in first, second, third, fourth and fifth places respectively. Awards were based on completion and quality of record books and proper preparation of chickens. Cash prizes were donated by the Maryland Servicemen Conference.

Judging the event were Dr. Bill Merka and Raymond Beeman. Assisting in tabulating and recording scores and results were Mrs. Becky Evans, Mrs. Dottie Harvey, and Mrs. Dessie Bowman. An explanation of the hows and whys of poultry judging was given by Dr. Merka, along with a quiz session.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service offers its programs to persons regardless of race, color, national origin, sex or handicap and is an equal opportunity employer.

Youth Fined $250

A 17-year-old boy from Deer Park was fined $250 in Allegany County Juvenile Court Thursday when Associate Judge Harold E. Naughton found him guilty of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

The boy was cited on a delinquency charge after the automobile he was driving was involved in a serious accident along Route 135 between McCoole and Westernport, near the Westvaco warehouse.

A passenger injured in the May 20 accident is still hospitalized.

Judge Naughton was informed the boy has a job working for the Maryland Park Service and gave the youngster 60 days to pay the $250 fine.

Highways Claim Eight More Lives

Eight persons lost their lives on Maryland Highways according to the Weekly News Release compiled by 2nd Lt. M. I. Morgan of the Maryland State Police. Of those killed, six were drivers, two were passengers and none were pedestrians.

In the opinion of the investigating officer, three of the eight deaths could have possibly been prevented had seat belts been in use.

Persons killed through June 11 total 251, compared to 275 for the same period last year.

Byron Unfolds Effort To Reduce Property Taxes

Citing "growing public support" for tighter spending controls as evidenced by the passage of California Proposition #13 to slash property taxes, Rep. Goodloe Byron has spearheaded a three-phased effort to intensify congressional attention toward easing the tax burden on citizens.

"First, I have urged House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino to hold hearings on legislation mandating an annual balanced Federal budget," Byron said. "Five years ago, I introduced a Constitutional Amendment requiring annual Federal revenues to equal expenditures unless a national emergency were declared by the President. This measure has been introduced three times but has received no action by the Judiciary Committee to which it was referred.

"I am hopeful the passage of California Proposition #13 will put added pressure on the Judiciary Committee and Congress to move on this resolution. I urge area citizens to write me in this regard so that I may deliver their letters to the committee to show that the American taxpayer does want a balanced Federal budget.

"Second, I have contacted the House Ways & Means Committee to stir interest in another bill I introduced last year which would establish a national task force to study and evaluate the need for property taxes. The purpose of this proposal is to find ways to reduce the dependence of State and local governments on such taxation.

"Finally, I will be sending a special questionnaire to all citizens in Central and Western Maryland asking them if they would favor legislation to reduce Federal taxes, with the understanding there would be corresponding reductions in Federal expenditures. I also intend to ask citizens if they favor a Constitutional Amendment to allow a national referendum on topics of national interest, similiar to the kind held in several states such as California," Byron concluded.

Two In Juvenile Court Found Not Delinquent

Two youths were found to be not delinquent by Judge Fred A. Thayer last week.

The two males, both 17 years old at the time of the alleged incident, were charged with assault and battery which occurred at Searstown Shopping Center, LaVale. The case was transferred from Allegany County as all persons involved are from Garrett County.

New Scholarship Program Begins

The Maryland State Scholarship Board announces the establishment of a new scholarship program which differs significantly from the numerous need-based programs administered by the Board. This new program is called the Distinguished Scholar Program, and its purpose is to recognize the top academic scholars in Maryland's public and private secondary schools, and to encourage these students to attend a post-secondary educational institution in the State of Maryland.

The Directors of Guidance of each senior high school in Maryland have been mailed Distinguished Scholar Program materials, and each high school can nominate a maximum of five students for consideration. The five students nominated by the July 15 application deadline must be entering the senior year of high school in September, 1978, and they must have a grade point average over the past three years of at least 3.70 on a 4.00 scale. High schools will contact the top academic students to determine the students' possible interest in competing for a Distinguished Scholar award, but interested students should feel free to contact the guidance office for additional information.

An impressive group of secondary school counselors has been selected by the Maryland State Board to assist in the administration of this Distinguished Scholar Program, and this High School Counselor Advisory Committee has been identified in the material mailed to each secondary school. This committee will assist the Scholarship Board in the final determination of the 100 Distinguished Scholars for 1978, and these selections will be announced publicly in September as the recipients begin their final year of high school. Recipients of these 1978 awards will receive $500 annual grants for post secondary study starting in 1979-80 academic year provided they attend a school in the State of Maryland. A grant under this program may be renewed for three additional years provided the recipient continues to attend a school in Maryland and maintains a B average.

Those interested should contact the guidance office of their high school for more information, or call the Maryland State Scholarship Board's Baltimore office, 383-4095.

Resource Police Enforcing Boat Noise Regulations

Harry L. George, Chief of the Marine Division of the Natural Resources Police Force, advises the state's waterborne community that he is ordering stepped-up enforcement of Maryland's anti-noise regulations.

"We've had many complaints so far this spring," he said, "and citations are forthcoming for violators."

The Marine Division has six two-man teams equipped with special meters to enforce the noise regulations.

Here is what the Maryland regulations say:

"A person may not use any vessel on the waters of the State in a manner so as to exceed the following noise levels.

1. Vessels manufactured before July 1, 1976, may not exceed a noise level of 88 dbA measured under standard test procedures;
2. Vessels manufactured after July 1, 1976, and before July 1, 1978, may not exceed a noise level of 86 dbA measured under standard test procedures.
3. Vessels manufactured after July 1, 1978, and before July 1, 1982, may not exceed a noise level of 84 dbA measured under standard test procedures.

Pleasure craft manufactured after July 1, 1982, may not exceed a noise level of 82 dbA measured under standard test procedures."

Boat owners who are in doubt about the noise levels generated by their engines can ask enforcement teams for a test.

Complainants, Chief George said, can telephone the Marine Division headquarters in Annapolis at 269-3181.

OPEN LINE

By Congressman Goodloe Byron
Maryland—Sixth District

This regular column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with the citizens of Central and Western Maryland. You may send your questions to me, in care of the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. While space is obviously limited for printing all replies, I will answer each of you who writes. The following questions are typical of those asked of me in recent weeks:

What is the status of your measure which would require a balanced Federal budget?

Five years ago, I introduced a Constitutional Amendment requiring annual Federal revenues to equal expenditures unless a national emergency were declared by the President. This measure has been reintroduced three times but has received no action by the House Judiciary Committee to which it was referred — despite the fact that it has received the support of over 150 Members of Congress. In light of growing public support for tighter government spending controls I have again urged the Judiciary Committee to hold hearings on legislation mandating a balanced budget. Citizens in Central and Western Maryland tell me it is time Congress accept the responsibility for keeping expenditures within a reasonable framework of total anticipated revenues and I plan to keep the pressure on Congress in this regard.

What is the purpose of the Human Resources Development Act?

The Human Resources Development Act, of which I am a co-sponsor, is designed to promote labor productivity, job security, worker satisfaction, and reduce cyclical layoffs. The Cumberland Labor-Management Relations Committee is an example of the type of effort which would be fostered by this legislation.

Why can't we have national referendums on important issues — like the one the people in California held recently to cut property taxes?

Your question certainly bears merit and next week I plan to send a special survey card to all 6th District citizens asking if they would favor a Constitutional Amendment which would allow a national popular vote on key issues. I will also poll citizens to see if they would favor legislation to reduce Federal taxes, with the understanding there would be a corresponding reduction in Federal expenditures. I will keep you abreast of the results.

What educational programs have you supported in Congress?

I have supported federal programs to help educate handicapped and disadvantaged students, provide school lunches, career education, vocational education, library services, aid to elementary and secondary schools, community colleges, four-year colleges and universities and professional schools. I have also voted against crucial amendments which sought to cut the level of funding for these successful programs.

Whatever happened to the Alaska Wilderness Bill?

The Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act passed the House last month and it is currently pending in the Senate. Under the measure, about one-third of the State of Alaska would be set aside as parks, wildlife refuges, wild and scenic rivers and wilderness areas.

What steps do I take to apply for a Service Academy Appointment?

From now until October 30th, I will be accepting applications for appointments to the United States Service Academies for the class entering in July, 1979. Nominations are open to the Naval Academy, Military Academy, Air Force Academy and the Merchant Marine Academy. Interested candidates should write me, care of the U. S. House of Representatives, 1232 Longworth Building, Washington, D. C. 20515. Applications will be sent to prospective nominees who will later be subject to written and physical examinations and an interview by my Academy Selection Board.

How does a Community qualify for the National Flood Insurance Program?

The National Flood Insurance Program enables property owners to buy flood insurance at a reasonable cost. A community may apply for the emergency program by adopting preliminary flood plain management measures. Over 14,500 communities have joined this phase of the program. After the Department of Housing & Urban Development completes a detailed on-site survey that establishes flood levels, the community qualifies for the regular program by adopting more comprehensive flood plain construction measures. To find out if you are eligible for flood insurance you may call the toll-free number 800-492-6605.

Will a coal miner drawing Black Lung Benefits from the Social Security Administration lose those benefits by applying under the Department of Labor Program?

No. A miner may refile with the U. S. Department of Labor for medical treatment benefits only. If the miner is found not entitled to those benefits, for any reason, it usually will not affect the Black Lung benefits from the Social Security Administration.

What are you doing to curb Federal spending?

I have always believed that Congress must exercise fiscal restraint in order to reduce the budget deficit. In this regard, I have sponsored legislation to require that the Federal government balance its budget, except in times of national emergency. I have also consistently opposed spending tax money for foreign aid and have introduced legislation in Congress to require that all bills proposing government regulations must contain an estimate of the direct and indirect costs of complying with the bill.

What is the maximum FHA insured mortgage amount for houses?

Family get-togethers are fun any time of the year but the pleasant summer weather is especially conducive to gathering to share good food and good conversation. These gatherings are also a wonderful place to share favorite family recipes. It might be the creamy potato salad which Aunt Mary makes or the moist spice cake which Grandma makes like no one else ever made a spice cake. Family recipes are part of each person's present and past. Each time a favorite family recipe is prepared, the reward is good food and satisfying memories. Make sure you get those favorite recipes written down on paper for future use. You'll be glad you did!

The following punch is refreshing anytime but it is festive with scoops of lemon sherbet floating on top for a special occasion.

GOLDEN CITRUS PUNCH

1 (6 oz. can) frozen concentrated orange juice
1 (6 oz. can) frozen concentrated lemonade
1 (6 oz. can) frozen concentrated limeade
4 cups cold water
1 qt. bottle ginger ale, chilled

Combine all ingredients except ginger ale in a large punch bowl. Add ice cubes. Just before serving, add ginger ale and stir. Makes 20 (4 oz.) servings. If you decide to float scoops of lemon sherbet, use 1 pint of sherbet.

The following Carrot Cake recipe is easy because you substitute baby junior carrots for grated carrots.

CARROT CAKE

2 cups sugar
3 cups sifted flour (all purpose)
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. baking soda
2 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. salt
2 jars baby junior carrots
1½ cups corn oil

Beat eggs and sugar together until lemon colored. Sift together dry ingredients and then add carrots and oil to dry ingredients. To carrot mixture, add egg and sugar mixture. Beat well. Pour mixture into a lightly greased tube or 10"x12" pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 minutes. You may add 1 cup nutmeats and/or 1 cup coconut, if desired. The following low sugar frosting recipe is good with this cake.

LOW SUGAR FROSTING

2½ Tblsp. flour
½ cup milk
¼ cup shortening
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Mix flour with milk. Cook over medium heat until it forms a paste, stirring constantly. Set aside to cool. Cream shortening, butter, sugar and vanilla extract. Add cooled paste and beat for 5 minutes using an electric mixer at high speed. This recipe may be doubled and keeps well in the refrigerator in a covered container.

NUTRITION NOTE: Children will soon be home for summer vacation and will be looking for snacks around the clock instead of just after school and on weekends. The above Carrot Cake recipe makes a good snack if you leave off the frosting, chill the cake, cut thin slices and spread them with peanut butter.

TIP OF THE WEEK: If you dip your knife into hot water before using it to spread frosting on a cake, your job will be easier.

Richard L. Snider, M.D. local vascular surgeon at both Memorial and Sacred Heart Hospitals, will be the guest speaker at the 31st Annual Meeting and Awards Dinner of the American Heart Association-Western Maryland Chapter, according to Harold J. Cordts, Ed. D., president of the Association.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, June 29, at the Holiday Inn of Cumberland. The public is invited and reservations may be made at the Heart Office, 551 North Centre Street, Cumberland (724-4011). Dr. Cordts noted the invitation reads Wednesday, June 29, and it should read Thursday, June 29.

Dr. Snider's topic will be "Coronary Bypass Surgery" and he will discuss some of the pros and cons and explain the procedure for heart bypasses.

New Board members will be elected at the general meeting and a full Board meeting will be held immediately following dinner. Recognition awards will be presented to the Association's top leadership and devoted volunteers in the field of programming and fund raising.

Dr. Snider received his A.B. Degree from Seton Hall University, South Orange, New Jersey, in 1962. He received his M. D. Degree with honors from Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. in 1966 and was elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha medical honor society. His internship and first year of surgical residency were served at Yale-New Haven Hospital, New Haven, Connecticut, from 1966-1968.

Dr. Snider served with the Medical Corps of the United States Army from 1968-1970 and was stationed in Viet Nam for one year. He served as a surgical resident from 1970-1974 and a Fellow in Vascular Surgery from 1973-1974 at the University of Oregon Medical School Hospitals and Clinics.

Author of several clinical and research papers dealing with vascular surgery, Dr. Snider is currently in private practice of surgery in Cumberland. He resides with his wife, Margaret and four children, Beth Ann, Tracy Lynn, Ricky, and Mary Catherine.

Dr. Cordts urges all residents of Allegany and Garrett Counties and the surrounding areas to attend as the topic being presented is one that concerns a large number of area residents. To make reservations, persons should contact the Heart Association, 551 North Centre Street, Cumberland, Maryland.

Search And Rescue Participates In Simulated Disaster

A simulated Air Disaster Search was conducted on Sunday, June 11, by the Mountain State F. M. Association, with headquarters in Parsons, W. Va., and the Mountaintop Search & Rescue Team of Oakland. The control center for the search was at Southern High School. The search was conducted in Preston Co., W. Va.

After three and one half hours, the transmitted signal was pinpointed in the Cranesville area. Twenty-two members of the Mt. State F. M. Association and 20 members of Mountaintop Search & Rescue took part in the operation.

After the search was over at 5 p.m., a picnic was enjoyed at Swallow Falls State Park. Future drills are to be conducted in Garrett County and surrounding areas later this summer.

Local Rangers Complete Course

Potomac-Garrett State Forest Ranger, Raymond DeVone, and Savage River State Forest Ranger, Robert Hershberger, and Forester, Steven Hamilton, have successfully completed a two-week law enforcement training course at the Maryland State Police Academy in Pikesville. This course, offered by the Maryland Forest Service with the cooperation of the Maryland State Police provided forest workers the training necessary to insure that the forest laws and rules and regulations, enacted for the protection of the forests of Maryland, are followed.

During the training session the law enforcement policy of the Maryland Forest Service was stressed. According to Maryland Forest Service Director Don MacLaughlan, "There is no question that the primary mission of the forest ranger is to protect the forest resources of Maryland, and in the case of state forests, to help people enjoy themselves in the out-of doors. To achieve this mission, we must have firm law enforcement. The vast majority of people using Maryland's forest resources do so assuming they are experiencing a legal, and/or enjoyable experience. Most people have no intention of breaking the law or creating a disturbance."

Course subjects ranged from the history and development of law enforcement to search and seizure, crisis intervention, management and techniques of court systems, conflict investigation.

Health Certificate Drive For 4-H Animals Begins

The Garrett County Extension Service is planning a health paper drive to prepare 4-H animals for the coming Steer Camp, Holstein Black and White Show, and Garrett County Fair.

The efforts will start with veterinarian visits. Dr. F. D. Custer, of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Animal Health Laboratory, has intepreted the requirement of a negative tuberculin test within thirty days prior to date of entry as being valid for the entire show season.

Dr. James I. Fearer of Pineview Veterinary Hospital will cover the north end of Garrett County Monday, June 19, while Dr. Paul Deal, Countryside Animal Hospital, will work with the youth in the southern part on Tuesday, June 20.

The veterinarians request that animals be penned up prior to their arrival. Cattle should be broken to lead and ties with halter. Only those young people who returned registration forms to the extension service will be visited by the vets; other youths must make their own arrangements for health certificates.

John Wildesen, former Garrett County resident and present manager of the Eastern National Livestock Exposition, will hold a weekend steer camp on Friday, June 30, and Saturday, July 1, at the McHenry fairgrounds beginning at 1 p.m. Mr. Wildesen has suggested that steers arrive Friday afternoon. They will be weighed to gauge progress for the fair. The afternoon would also be spent washing, clipping and learning to fit the beef animals for the fair.

Saturday's program will continue demonstrations on fair preparations, interspersed with a picnic. During the afternoon all animals will be brought into the ring for an actual fitting and showing contest as a learning experience.

On June 19 there will be a practice livestock judging workshop at Harry Martin's farm at 7:30. On June 26, at 7:30, there will be a practice livestock judging session at Blaine Bowser's farm. Both judging events will be in preparation for a county livestock judging team which will compete at the state fair in Timonium.

RECEIVE AWARDS — Service awards were presented to two employees of the Garrett County Extension Service last Wednesday at the Extension Office in Oakland. Mrs. Saundra Kolb, left, received a certificate and pin for five years service and Mrs. Reva Thomas, right, received a certificate and pin for 25 years service. The presentations were made by Mrs. Margaret Mearns, center, who is the District Supervisor of the Cooperative Extension Service. (Photo by Barry Glotfelty).

Sometimes truth is stranger than fiction — and also a lot funnier. The following was published by Tilden, Canada's foremost car rental business. These are summaries actually submitted when police asked for a brief statement on how the accident happened:

Coming home I drove into the wrong house and collided with a tree I don't have.

The other car collided with mine without giving warning of its intentions.

I thought my window was down, but I found it was up when I put my hand through it.

I collided with a stationary truck coming the other way.

A truck backed through my windshield into my wife's face.

A pedestrian hit me and went under my car.

The telephone pole was approaching fast. I was attempting to swerve out of its path when it struck my front end.

I saw her look at me twice, she appeared to be making slow progress when we met on impact.

No one was to blame for the accident but it never would have happened if the other driver had been alert.

I was unable to stop in time and my car crashed into the other vehicle. The driver and passengers then left immediately for a vacation with injuries.

The guy was all over the road, I had to swerve a number of times before I hit him.

I pulled away from the side of the road, glanced at my mother-in-law and headed over the embankment.

The gentleman behind me struck me on the backside. He then went to rest in the bush with just his rear end showing.

In my attempt to kill a fly, I drove into a telephone pole.

I had been shopping for plants all day and was on my way home. As I reached an intersection a hedge sprang up obscuring my vision. I did not see the other car.

I had been driving my car for forty years when I fell asleep at the wheel and had the accident.

The accident occurred when I was attempting to bring my car out of a skid by steering it into the other vehicle.

I had been learning to drive with power steering. I turned the wheel to what I thought was enough and found myself in a different direction going the opposite way.

I was backing my car out of the driveway in the usual manner, when it was struck by the other car in the same place it had been struck several times before.

I was on my way to the doctors with rear end trouble when my universal joint gave way causing me to have an accident.

I was taking my canary to the hospital. It got loose in the car and flew out the window. The next thing I saw was his rear end and there was a crash.

As I approached the intersection, a stop sign suddenly appeared in a place where no stop sign had ever appeared before. I was unable to stop in time to avoid the accident.

To avoid hitting the bumper of the car in front, I struck the pedestrian.

My car was legally parked as it backed into the other vehicle.

An invisible car came out of nowhere, struck my vehicle and vanished.

I told the police that I was not injured but on removing my hat, I found that I had a fractured skull.

I was sure the fellow would never make it to the other side of the roadway when I struck him.

When I saw I would not avoid a collision, I stepped on the gas and crashed into the other car.

The pedestrian had no idea which direction to go, so I ran over him.

The indirect cause of this accident was a little guy in a small car with a big mouth.

I saw the slow moving, sad-faced old gentleman as he bounced off the hood of my car.

I was thrown from my car as it left the road. I was later found in the ditch by some stray cows.

The accident happened when the right front door of a car came around the corner without giving a signal.

Deadline Extended For Revision Of Reserve Agreements

Producers who signed Grain Reserve agreements under the old rates have been given additional time to execute a revised agreement and take advantage of interest benefits and increased storage rates, according to Paul A. Crowl, an official of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). The May 1 deadline has been extended to June 30.

On February 9, storage rates were increased from 20 to 25 cents per bushel for wheat, corn, sorghum and barley, and from 15 to 19 cents per bushel for oats.

"The new rates cannot be applied until the farmer signs a revised Grain Reserve Agreement," Crowl said. The revised agreement provides that interest will not exceed six percent and storage will not be less than 25 cents per bushel (19 cents for oats).

According to Crowl, interest will no longer accrue after the grain has been in the reserve for one year. A new three-year reserve period also will be established.

Maryland farmers with reserve agreements under the old rates should contact their county ASCS office.

Injuries Increase As Skateboard Popularity Soars

Skateboarding is back in style. The popular, but short-lived fad of the sixties is winning new converts every day and with summer here, skateboarders are a familiar sight.

But with increasing popularity, there is a dramatic surge in injuries due to skateboarding, the Insurance Information Institute reports. More than 100,000 injured skateboarders sought emergency hospital room treatment during a recent 12-month period, according to government estimates.

While some injuries were fairly minor, such as scrapes and bruises, serious injuries do occur. Fractures account for one-third of all skateboard injuries, data show. In the last two years, there were more than 16 deaths reported from skateboard accidents.

Currently, skateboards enable skaters to perform a number of tricks, such as "nose wheelies" where the back wheels are off the ground and "360s", turning the board in a circle. The Institute warns that these maneuvers can be hazardous to skateboard novices.

"Skateboarder's elbow," a fracture of the elbow, is becoming more common among youngsters. Steps can be taken to minimize dangers to a skateboarder, the Institute points out. Protective gear — such as elbow and knee pads, helmet and gloves — should be worn at all times.

"In-depth investigations indicated that in almost all investigated cases, protective equipment was not being worn by the victim at the time of the accident," the Consumer Product Safety Commission reported. "The wearing of protective equipment could undoubtedly reduce both the frequency and the severity of skateboard-related injuries."

Drivers are cautioned to be on the lookout for skateboarders, who often concentrate more on doing tricks than watching for traffic, the Institute notes.

A periodic check of the skateboard also is recommended to avoid accidents. One should look for cracks in the board, as well as freely-turning wheels.

The Importance of Sofas

Although all the furniture pieces and accessories you use are obviously important to the overall look of any room, the fact is that the sofa usually serves as the one key piece because of its dominance, its use, and the way the rest of the furniture is planned around it.

Therefore, it's important that you take into account all the many different considerations in selecting a sofa because it is such a major piece.

We can give you help in these considerations. For instance, in choosing a sofa, aside from those two basics - its beauty and its comfort - be sure it has the right size and shape for the rest of your room. Texture is another consideration. And be sure to consider the color of the sofa in relation to your overall color scheme. Another thing to think about is the fabric. There are so many wonderful choices in fabrics today that can do so much for both the looks of your sofa and its wearability.

All these things are important, and remember we're here to assist you, and help you get a sofa you'll be happy with. Also remember in today's decorating, sofas don't have to be confined to just the living room. Perhaps the right sofa could also be beautiful and useful in another room, too. In any case, feel free to stop in here.

PET POINTERS

by jim willis

In the late 1700s, veterinary medicine in the United States was a blend of folklore and reports slowly arriving from the European veterinary schools. Local experts, often self-taught, recommended treatments ranging from blood-letting (in horses, as much as a gallon each time) to brewer's yeast. Farmers tending sick stock in isolated areas often had no assistance but the advice of their friends.

During this period, the Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture responded to the need for veterinary medical information by publishing detailed descriptions of animal diseases. The society also called for the establishment of an American veterinary school — an effort that resulted in the founding of the country's first veterinary school, the Veterinary College of Philadelphia, in 1852.

The establishment of other veterinary schools soon followed and today there are 26 accredited schools of veterinary medicine in the United States and Canada. Some midwestern states heavily dependent upon agriculture but lacking veterinary schools, contract with out-of-state schools to reserve places for their own students.

Competition for admission to veterinary schools is fierce, and applicants must have an outstanding college scholastic record. College level mathematics, chemistry, biology and physics are minimum requirements.

Once in veterinary school, the student concentrates on the structure and function of normal animal systems, the etiology (cause) of disease, and the study of infectious agents, such as fungi, viruses and bacteria. Typical courses include animal behavior, nutrition, the effects of medicines and diagnosis and treatment of disease. Optional courses can include environmental toxicology and zoo and wildlife medicine. The last year or two of the three-to-five year program exposes the student to surgery and work in the clinic.

Veterinarians have numerous opportunities for employment — in aerospace medicine, laboratory animal medicine, teaching and research — to name a few. Some will work for the Public Health Service or other regulatory bodies that deal with animal-related problems affecting human health. Veterinarians preferring private practice can specialize in large (farm animal) or small (companion animal) medicine.

One aspect of veterinary medicine that is sometimes overlooked is its contribution to the understanding of human disease processes. Frequently research into animal disease points the way to better treatment of human patients. Research into leukemia in cats, diarrhea in calves, liver disease in terriers and respiratory and heart problems in keeshonds have contributed much to our knowledge of these diseases in human patients.

There are currently over 31,000 veterinarians in the United States and Canada, and more are urgently needed.

If you're interested in a career in veterinary medicine, a listing of North American veterinary schools is probably available at your public library. Or you can write to the American Veterinary Medical Association, 930 N. Meacham Road, Schaumburg, Illinois, 60196 for more information.

State Attempting To Define High-Risk Tick Areas To Stop Spotted Fever

During this year's tick season when Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever (RMSF) cases generally soar, a coordinated effort will be made by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to identify high-risk tick areas in Maryland which the public should avoid or approach with special precaution, Dr. Neil Solomon, Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, announced today.

Dr. Solomon said that a program of intensive surveillance for suspected RMSF cases by Maryland physicians will play a major role in identifying geographic areas of tick infestation which are responsible for a large proportion of the disease. The help of Maryland physicians is being solicited in the June issue of the Department's Communicable Diseases Newsletter. The Department is requesting that physicians report all suspect cases of RMSF to the Local Health Department within twenty-four hours of diagnosis. Prompt reporting will contribute to a quick delineation of infected areas.

The 1978 Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever season, which began in mid-April and should run to mid-September, has accounted, by early June, for more than twelve suspect cases, two of which are confirmed by laboratory tests. Six of the reported cases are in Anne Arundel County; four of these cases are located in the southeastern section of the county. Other cases are reported from Baltimore County, Baltimore City, Dorchester, Harford and Carroll Counties.

Dr. David Sorley, Assistant Chief of the Communicable Diseases Division, said that last year a high of seventy-four (74) RMSF cases (with two fatalities) were reported in the State. Maryland, along with Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, is part of the "RMSF Belt" which, last year, accounted for almost half of all RMSF cases in the United States.

In 1977, Baltimore City and all counties except Charles, Garrett and Worcester, reported cases of RMSF — Frederick and Baltimore Counties reported nine cases each. The five counties with the highest rate per thousand population were Caroline, Kent, Queen Anne's, Frederick and Cecil.

The major responsibility for the control of ticks, Dr. Sorley said, rests with individuals and their alertness in avoiding infested areas and knowing how to look for and remove ticks from themselves or their children. Consequently, avoidance of bushy or high grass areas and thickets remains a wise precaution throughout RMSF season.

When avoidance of suspected areas is impossible, Dr. Sorley recommends that a person should wear snug-fitting clothes, use tick repelants at the neck, wrist, waist and ankle areas and be checked for ticks on the body every two hours.

The symptoms of RMSF include a sudden onset of moderate to high fever, which can persist for two to three weeks, headache, chills and eye inflamation. A rash, generally starting on the hands and feet and progressing towards the trunk of the body is common. Although it is rare, Dr. Sorley said, the typical spotted rash occasionally does not appear and when there is no clear "history of a tick bite," diagnosis of the disease is difficult. Laboratory blood tests generally take five to six days.

Carl R. Fike Receives Degree At Bridgewater

Carl R. Fike, a senior math major, has completed requirements for the bachelor of arts degree from Bridgewater College in Bridgewater, Va. A member of the class of 1978, he was named to the Dean's List for the spring term.

While at Bridgewater he was a member of the chorale and concert choir. The chorale is a group of sixteen upperclass students that performs throughout the year for alumni, civic, church, and college programs. The concert choir tours during weekends in the spring, presenting programs in churches in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Mr. Fike is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Rogers Fike of Oakland.

Operation Care Is Paying Off

Preliminary figures indicate that Operation Care has paid off. Traffic deaths on the East Coast of the United States were cut down by 14 per cent during the Memorial Day weekend although there was a nationwide increase of 19 per cent as compared to the previous year.

Analysts feel this 33 per cent difference is a significant result. State Police and Highway Patrols from Maine to Florida joined together during this past holiday weekend in their first unified enforcement effort to save lives and fuel.

The participating 16 states displayed Operation Care decals on patrol cars to remind motorists to drive with care. Many of the additional troopers and highway patrolmen who participated in this program volunteered for this massive effort.

Besides using officers on overtime status, many states used a wide variety of speed enforcement technology from helicopters to unusual radar vehicles. One state used three large verbal message signs to warn motorists of a dangerous high-accident section of highway.

Col. Thomas S. Smith, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police, who headed this East Coast effort cited the media as an important element in the successful program. "The cooperation we received from radio and television stations, newspapers and the wire services was terrific. Through them, we were able to inform the public and gain their support in this important project."

State enforcement officers, Governors highway safety representatives, public information specialists and U. S. Dept. of Transportation and U. S. Dept. of Energy officials are now working together preparing for the July 4th weekend East Coast Operation Care enforcement and education effort.

THE ARTS

by jim willis

Many artists, artisans and craftsman are able to supplement their income from another job with orders for artwork. However, when April 15 rolls around they may be at a loss on how to prepare deductions for their home/office or home/studio. As always the government exhibits a great deal of insensitivity in this matter.

The following is an excellent explanation of the new taxbill and its most controversial feature, that of home office deductions. It was written by Tad Crawford, a lawyer, and author of Legal Guide for the Visual Artist and The Writer's Legal Guide (Hawthorn Books). He frequently lectures on legal matters pertaining to artists and teaches art law courses at the School of Visual Arts in New York City. He also serves as Vice President and a Director of the Foundation for the Community of Artists.

"Many artists find that an ideal home, whether a loft, barn, house, or an apartment, must supply them with the vital requisites of both living and working space. Untold sacrifice often goes into creating a home that is suitable as both a residence and a studio. It is a cruel irony that artists who labor to convert homes to be suitable as both living and working space are now being penalized for this enterprise. The Tax Reform Act of 1976 places stringent restrictions on the income tax deductibility of expenses relating to an office or a studio at home. Although this law applies equally to all taxpayers, it naturally works special hardships on artists, who traditionally work at home. The artist who rents studio space at a location completely separate from where he lives is unaffected by the change in the law. Only the artist who sought the savings and convenience of a studio at home must feel trepidation, in answering the question introduced for the first time in 1976 on Schedule C, Profit (of Loss) from Business or Profession, Did you claim a deduction for expenses of an office in your home?

"Regulations drafted by the IRS to explain their interpretation of the law and give examples of its operation are expected in the near future, but the basics of the law can be described now. It states that a deduction for a studio at home can be taken if a 'portion of the dwelling unit is exclusively used on a regular basis (A) as the taxpayer's principal place of business, (B) as a place of business which is used by patients, clients, or customers in meeting or dealing with the taxpayer in the normal course of his trade or business, or (C) in the case of a separate structure which is not attached to the dwelling unit, in connection with the taxpayer's trade or business.'

"Exclusivity means that the space is used only for the business activity, in this case the activity of being an artist. If the space is used for both business and personal use, the deduction will not be allowed. For example, a studio which doubles as a television room will not qualify under the exclusivity rule. The requirement or regularity means that the artist must use the space on a more or less daily basis for the minimum of several hours. The precise delineation of 'regular basis' will have to await the issuance of the regulations, but occasional or infrequent use certainly will not qualify.

"Once the work space is used exclusively and on a regular basis, the studio expense can qualify as deductible under one of three different tests. First, they will be deductible if the studio is the artist's principal place of business.

"But what happens if the artist must work at other employment or run another business in order to earn most of his income? In this case it would appear that the principal place requirement refers to each business separately. Is the studio at home the principal place of the business of being an artist? If it is, the fact that the artist also works elsewhere shouldn't matter. Again, the regulations will have to give a final clarification on this. However, the artist could not deduct a studio at home under this provision if he did most of his work in another studio maintained at a different location.

"The second way in which the expenses can be deductible is if the studio is used as a place of business for meeting with clients or customers in the normal course of trade or business. Many artists do open their studio at home to critics, dealers, and prospective purchasers in the normal course of their business activities, so this provision might well be applicable.

"Finally, the expenses for a separate structure, such as a storage shed, would qualify for deduction if the structure were used in connection with the business of being an artist. If the artist is seeking to deduct home studio expenses as an employee rather than a free-lancer, he must not only use the space exclusively on a regular basis for business and meet one of the three additional tests just described, but must also maintain the space for the convenience of his employer.

"The artist who does use the work space exclusively on a regular basis for one of the three permitted uses enumerated must pass yet one more test before being able to deduct the expenses. This is a limitation on the amount of expenses which can be deducted in connection with a studio at home. Deductible expenses for business use of the home include the cost of heating, water, electricity, air conditioning, cleaning, repairs, and similar expenses. The artist who rents can deduct the rental payments, while the artist who owns his home can deduct depreciation, mortgage interest and real estate taxes. Of course, all of these expenses are divided between business and personal use, so that only the portion of expenses applicable to business use are actually deductible on Schedule C.

"The limitation placed on these expenses is basically that they cannot exceed the gross income earned by the artist from his art business. For example, suppose an artist who rents his home uses one-quarter of it exclusively on a regular basis as his principal place of business. If the total expenses relating to the home are $8,000, the one-quarter share attributable to the business and therefore deductible is $2,000. But what happens if the artist only shows $1,200 in gross income on Schedule C from the business of being an artist? In that case, the expenses relating to the studio at home are deductible only to the extent of the $1,200. The other $800 of expenses which would usually be deductible are lost because the artist has not earned enough from art during the year.

"The calculation for the artist who owns his own home is almost the same. First, the gross income from the art business is determined from Schedule C: for example, $2,000. Next, however, the expenses which would be deductible regardless of whether incurred in pursuit of a business are calculated. These would be real estate taxes and mortgage interest, which can always be deducted on Schedule A if personal expenses are itemized. Perhaps the total real estate taxes and mortgages interest amount to $2,800, while the other expenses relating to the home are $7,600. If one-quarter of the home is used in the business of being an artist, the amount of the expenses deductible in any case, $2,800, is multiplied by one-quarter. This amount, $700, is then used to reduce the gross income from art. The gross income of $2,000 is thus reduced by $700 to determine a limit on the deductibility of the remaining expenses relating to the business use of the home. In this case the limit would be $1,300. The remaining expenses — $7,600 — are then multiplied by one-quarter to determine what amount is allocable to the business. This multiplication shows that $1,900 of the remaining expenses are attributable to the business. However, only $1,300 of these expenses are deductible, because of the limit which has been calculated. In other words, $600 of deductions are lost because of the artist's failure to earn sufficient income from art.

"The precise application of the home office provisions will be developed in the regulation to be issued by the Internal Revenue Service. However, the unfairness of these provisions with respect to artists and other free-lancers is clear. The tax laws prohibit artists from donating art works at fair market value, penalize as hobbyists those artists who sacrifice to pursue their art while earning little income, and assess estate taxes on the fair market value of art in an estate. The home office of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 join with these other unjust provisions as examples of governmental insensitivity to the needs of the community of artists."

Events Above The Mountaintop

Paul S. Frank, Jr.
Observing the Sun

The first observations of the sun from above the atmosphere were made from sounding rockets which spent only minutes in outer space. This amount of time is not sufficient for observations of phenomena of longer duration than a few minutes. Later NASA designed a spacecrat to orbit the earth while pointing instruments at the sun. This series of spacecraft, Orbiting Solar Observatories, continues to be in operation with the eighth in the series currently observing the sun. Studies carried on by these OSO spacecraft have provided a basis for many current theories concerning the sun.

Moon

Full Moon phase occurs on Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. At this time the moon is directly opposite the sun as observed from earth. This week the moon is waxing. Moonrise varies from 2:00 p.m. today to 8:33 p.m. next Tuesday.

Visible Planets

Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn are the visible planets this week. Venus is the brightest object in the west for a little over an hour after sunset. Jupiter sets within an hour of sunset with the stars of Gemini. Mars, Regulus, and Saturn remain close together high in the southwest at sunset. Regulus is the brightest star in Leo and the dimmest of the the three objects.

Daylength Increases

There will be one minute more daylight next Tuesday. Sunrise was at 5:49 a.m. this morning. This evening the sun will set at 8:46 p.m. Tuesday the sun will rise one minute later than today, and it will set two minutes later than it does today.

Eastern National Livestock Show Set October 4-8

Entry blanks and premium lists are now available for the 32nd annual Eastern National Livestock Show to be held at the Maryland State Fair Grounds at Timonium October 4-8.

More than $50,000 in premiums will be offered at the show, largest livestock event in the East, which will be held this year in a newly-constructed pavilion on the fair grounds in this suburb just north of Baltimore.

A number of new judging events are scheduled for this year's show, according to John Wildesen, show manager.

There will be an additional beef cattle class for the Simmental breed which never has been shown before in a livestock show in the East.

Supplementing the Junior Stockman of the Year Contest, for beef cattle breeders in 4-H Clubs and Future Farmers of America chapters, will be the Junior Horseman Contest and the Junior Dairymen Contest. These new events are open to both individuals and teams.

Another new event, a cutting horse show on October 7 and 8, is keyed primarily to public visitors to the show.

Assessment Answers

by James Burley

Q. Since we have already received our assessment notice, we are wondering if we will be included in the new property tax rollback that we have heard about, and if you can explain how this works. Do we have to apply for this, and if so, where?

A. The rollback that you have heard about refers to the increase in the inflationary allowance from fifty percent to fifty-five percent on residential property. Said differently, this means that your home will be assessed at only forty-five percent of its value rather than fifty percent as before. This special allowance, which is equal to five percent of the current value of homestead property, has been made in recognition of the unprecedented increase in the value of homestead property due to inflation. The additional allowance becomes effective for the taxable year beginning July 1, 1978. It will be automatically calculated in your property tax bill, and you do not have to do anything. It will apply to assessments of record of homestead properties, and tax bills for the taxable year beginning July 1, will contain a notice advising the homeowner of the special allowance that has been provided.

Any taxpayer who is entitled to the special allowance and who does not receive it on his tax bill can claim a refund for any excess taxes that he paid as a result. This new five percent special allowance applies only to homestead properties, meaning a single-family or two-family, owner-occupied residential dwelling. A homestead includes the dwelling, the land upon which the dwelling is situated, and other land and other improvements that are used primarily as accessories to the dwelling. It does not include any part that might be used for independent commercial purposes. If a resident derives an income from any part of the property then that portion of the property will be excluded from the special allowance.

The tax savings on a homestead property in the city that is valued at $24,000 will be about $78, if the tax rate remains the same. Based on an assessed value of fifty percent, or $12,000, last year, this property would have had a tax bill of $746. This year, the same property will have a tax assessed value, but taking into account the three cent reduction per $100 of assessed valuation in the state tax.

In other jurisdictions, where the tax rate is lower, the tax savings, of course, will be less. For example, if the combined tax rate is $3.20 and the property is valued at $40,000, using a typical county case, then the tax savings will be about $70. This is arrived at by applying the tax rate to $18,000, which is forty-five percent of the $40,000 value. Under the old inflationary allowance, the assessment would be $20,000.

Remember, the rollback is automatic, and no action on your part is necessary. It applies to taxes that become due this year. Bear in mind also, that the tax could fluctuate depending upon the final rate that is set by the local taxing jurisdiction. Generally, you can count on a tax savings of ten percent.

Over and above this, the taxpayer will still benefit from the fifteen percent limitation on the assessment increase. This means that if your assessment increased by more than fifteen percent from that of last year, you will be entitled to a tax credit for the amount of the tax that is based on the excess of the fifteen percent assessment increase.

Q. Why does the assessor have to physically inspect my property?

A. Many things affect property values, and it is exceedingly difficult to determine to what degree these factors govern the value without an actual physical observation. Under the law, all assessable real property in every county and Baltimore City is to be physically inspected for reassessment at least once in every three years. In actual practice this means that approximately one-third of all properties are visited by the assessor each year.

There are two main reasons for requiring a physical review. The first is that a field inspection enables the assessor to verify the information that has already been assembled and recorded on the property description card or worksheet, a name by which it is also known. The second reason is that the assessor can observe the condition of the property because this affects its value, and he can compare one property with another. Properties that are alike or comparable will have similar market values.

There is no definite procedure for conducting a physical review because there are wide variances among properties. Obviously, a more extensive review is necessary for a complex structure than for a simpler one or several of the same design, such as, a cluster of townhouses. In his physical review, the assessor will be studying the materials, style, and quality of construction so that he can arrive at a replacement cost. He will also be observing the condition of the property so that he can judge the extent of the depreciation. He will also be noticing other factors in the neighborhood.

The attractiveness of the neighborhood has a definite influence on the value of the individual properties. Newer neighborhoods tend to reflect more planning. They often have curved streets, dead ends, and cul-de-sacs; and they are designed so that the traffic flow is routed away from the residential areas and into the main arteries. Older neighborhoods, on the other hand, tend to be arranged in grids, and traffic flows through them. Newer neighborhoods not only have all the utilities, but also normally have the electric and telephone lines buried underground. The conformity of the dwellings will also have a direct influence on the appearance of a neighborhood.

The assessor, in the on-site inspection, might observe new construction occurring in the neighborhood which could be a good sign and an indication that the area is growing economically. The assessor will get all of the information he possibly can, but the time allowed for each property is limited because assessing is a mass appraisal process. The time spent in the vicinity also depends on the complexity of the structures.

If the property is new, he will most likely measure the exterior to determine the dimensions. If the house is under construction, he will probably go inside and inspect and talk to the builder, if possible. On an existing property undergoing a reassessment, the assessor will compare the property description card to make sure that the measurements and other information are reasonably accurate. Generally, he will not need to re-measure unless additions have been made. The assessor will be looking for changes that have occurred since the last physical review.

The value of the inspection is compromised to some extent by the fact that it does not include the interior. An assessor will not ask to enter a dwelling but will inspect the inside only at the owner's request. A good assessor is a good inspector, and the exterior appearance will give him a fair idea of how the interior of the home is kept.

During the course of the physical inspection, the assessor will also attempt to interview the owner, if at home, in order to verify the information that appears on the work sheet, and to ask questions relating to value such as major improvements or additions. Many of the questions can be answered by simply walking around the property and making a visual inspection.

All assessors are required to take an oath which makes them officials of the state. They carry standard identification, and they will usually knock first to inform the owner that they are conducting the required physical inspection.

Owners often complain that no assessor has visited their property. Sometimes, but not always, the assessor will leave a notice to the effect that he has been at the site. Experience shows that the homeowner is not at home about sixty-five percent of the time that the assessor makes his visit. Another complaint is that the work sheet often contains erroneous data. The assessor's on-site visit gives the owner a good opportunity to ask questions of the assessor and to correct any errors that come to light.

After the physical inspection has been completed, the assessor combines the new information with that which he has already compiled through his analysis of cost and sales data and incorporates this combined information into the proposed reassessment.

Questions or letters of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers — James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

YOU CAN BUY A CHEAPER MOPED, BUT YOU'LL PAY FOR IT.

If some mopeds cost less than a Puch, it's simply because they're lesser mopeds.

They don't have the hill-hungry hi-torque engine that most Puchs have.

They aren't designed as thoughtfully, or constructed as carefully, as Austrian-built Puchs are.

At a lower price, Puch couldn't offer things like a 2-speed automatic transmission, oil injection, or an automatic starting system.

Local ABE Program Deserves A+

Since Garrett Community College took over the ABE program five years ago, it has grown rapidly. The program now staffs nine instructors, three aides and is taught in seven locations around the county. Pictured is program director, Pat Helmick. Pat has headed the program since 1974 and has had over 500 participants in that time. This year ABE had an enrollment of 175.

ABE instructors teach subjects such as English, math, science, literature, and social studies to prepare the student for a GED test, the equivalent of a high school diploma. Unlike a public school system the classes are less structured and the teachers rarely have to deal with a behavior problem. The students express a marked willingness to learn and some have advanced as many as five reading levels in three months. Pictured are, left to right, Barbara Webster, aide; Sara Ramsey, instructor; and Sandy Stanton, instructor.

Teachers in the Adult Basic Education program are trained to help students overcome learning disabilities. Many students complete the equivalent of a high school education and then go on th college. Pictured is Sally Wilson, Coordinator of Special Education for the Garrett County Board of Education, conducting a workshop on learning disabilities for ABE instructors.

by Jim Willis

Reading, writing and 'rithmetic, have long been the standard of our country's educational system. However, the public school systems are sometimes unable to hold the student's interest for twelve years, in which case the students "drop-out."

Dealing with drop-outs has always been a concern of educators. Because of the rising education level in America, a high school diploma, or its equivalent, is now the bare minimum for successfully competing in the job market. Thanks to a federally funded program begun in the 1960's, local institutions now offer courses for those who have never completed high school.

Such an Adult Basic Education (ABE) program is offered in this county by Garrett Community College. The Oakland Center is headquarters for ABE which is also offered at Bloomington Elementary School, Crellin Community Building, Grantsville Elementary School, Ruth Enlow Library of Friendsville, GCC McHenry Campus and Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home.

The program is coordinated by Pat Helmick and is staffed by certified teachers, Stanley Weese, Elaine Ott, Margaret Stevens, Sara Ramsey, Sandy Stanton, Dennis Delaney and David Koontz. Barbara Webster, Stephanie Raugula and Carolyn Tichnell supplement the program as aides.

Prospective students are tested prior to enrollment to determine what level of ABE would best suit their needs. The instructors are conscious of the student's goals. If a student only wishes to complete the GED (high school diploma equivalency test) he can do so, or if college-bound, he can continue with the program until deemed ready for college enrollment.

The classes are free of charge and the only requirement is that the student must have been out of the public school system for at least three months and be 16 years old or over.

Since Garrett Community College inherited the program from the Board of Education five years ago, it has grown considerably. Pat Helmick reported that when she took over the program in 1974 there were 132 students involved. This year ABE had 175 participants and over 500 students have been enrolled in the program since 1974.

Close observers of the program note the apparent dedication of the teachers and the willingness of the students to learn. Although most of the enrollment is in the 16-24 year old age group, the classes have hosted persons over 65 years old. One student, a mother of five, brought her newborn infant to class and later went on to make the dean's list at a local college.

Many of the participants go on to complete a college degree. Most of the students at least complete the high school equivalency segment. They are tutored in English, math, science, literature and social studies in preparation for GED test which is administered quarterly at the McHenry campus by Gene Popiolek.

Students are often referred to ABE by the Board of Education or they may enroll themselves. Upon admittance, Mrs. Helmick has found students with hearing problems that have been inhibiting their educational progress. After medical treatment these previously poor students have excelled. She also commented that a few students have increased as many as five reading levels in the space of three months.

Speculation has been raised concerning Garrett County's high illiteracy rate. Most students admitted to the ABE program test under an eighth grade reading level. The concerted effort of the ABE Personnel, students and GCC, has seen a steady improvement in this undesirable standing.

Lowell Bender, director of the Continuing Education Division of GCC stated, "We feel we are making a significant impact in the system. This is a very personal achievement and one of the things that has been drawn to ABE. They take a very personal interest and I think we're creating a different atmosphere here."

It is indeed encouraging to recognize what a difference an ABE program can make in the community. Mr. Bender explained that the teaching centers revolve each year and classes may be offered at several different locations, provided there are enough participants.

Persons interested in enrolling in the program may contact the Oakland Center during the summer. The courses are just ending for the year, but ABE will resume in September with a full slate of classes.

Lowell Bender, director of the Continuing Education Division of GCC is quite pleased with the success of the program. He stated, "We feel we are making a significant impact in the system. This is a very personal achievement and one of the things that has been an asset to the overall program is the type of teacher that has been drawn to ABE. They take a very personal interest and I think we're creating a different atmosphere here."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our husband, father, and grandfather, George E. Sweitzer, Sr., who passed away June 15, 1972:

Our father was a boisterous man, loved by one and all. Everyone who knew our dad, fond memories can recall. He lived a very humble life, content with what he had; I never heard him once complain, this man who was our dad. He taught us right from infant up and in his gentle way, he'd really drive the lesson home, by living it each day. He gave us gifts in life that money cannot buy, the gift of honesty and truth, we treasure very high. He taught us to be thankful for whatever things we had, but most of all we are thankful that we had this precious Dad.

—Adv. 16-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Franklin S. Welch who passed away June 17, 1977.

Without your voice and dear face, home is an empty, lonely place; When Jesus called, you had to go, leaving behind the ones who loved you so. We know how you suffered and how brave you would be, hiding the pain so we could not see; Now the days and nights are so long, for in our hearts there is no song. We pray for the courage to accept what we cannot change, and the strength to live with our heartache and pain; Forever we will love and miss you, always our memories will be of you.

Sadly missed by his family.

State Police Acadmey Graduates Seventy-one Troopers

TROOPER TWINS — Your eyes aren't deceiving you. These identical twin brothers, Randy, left, and Jay Resh, from Grantsville, are among those who were just graduated from the Maryland State Police Academy in Pikesville. The Resh brothers were two of the 71 new Troopers sworn in at recent ceremonies. See story below. (State Police Photo by Bill Clark).

The Maryland State Police graduated its 77th Trooper Candidate Class during commencement exercises held in Pikesville. The 71 new Troopers received their badges and diplomas from Mrs. Sandra A. O'Conner, State's Attorney for Baltimore County. The ceremony marks the last milestone in their rigorous six-month training program.

The 68 men and three women entered the Police Academy last January to begin the special 1,366 hour training program to prepare them for the important task of safeguarding the lives and property of the citizens of Maryland. The class chose as their motto, "Strength, Proficiency and Pride."

The training included instruction in traffic and criminal law enforcement, leadership development and general police studies with college credits given for English and procedural law. Several weeks of practical training in the operation of patrol vehicles, firearms, human relations and criminal investigation were included. The physical fitness training included judo exercises, restraint techniques, water rescue, boxing and general physical development.

About 600 family members and friends of the graduates along with state officials and other law enforcement personnel attended the ceremonies.

Lt. Colonel S. I. Kaplow, Deputy Superintendent of the State Police, delivered the welcoming remarks and Lt. Colonel W. C. Dykes, Chief of the Services Bureau, administered the oath of office.

Mrs. Sandra A. O'Connor, State's Attorney for Baltimore County gave the graduation address and presented the new Troopers with their hard-earned badges. Music for the program was provided by the Perry Hall Senior High School Band under the direction of Mr. Clinton C. Marshall.

Camp Potomac To Open Sunday For Area Scouts

Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America is preparing to open its summer camp, Camp Potomac, for its 28th camping season, William L. Gardner, Keyser, Council Camping Chairman has announced.

Located near Oldtown, Camp Potomac is used to provide Scouts a place to learn about swimming, hiking, cooking, boating and canoeing, archery, marksmanship, handicraft, and campfires. About 400 boys from the six-county area served by Potomac Council will attend the summer camp. Each troop in camp is under its own adult leadership, assisted by a central camp staff, with the program for each troop developed by the Scouts of the particular troop. The Scouts arrive at camp on Sunday afternoon and return home the following Saturday noon. Parents and guests are welcome to spend Wednesday evening at Camp Potomac and participate in a special evening program and campfire.

A camp staff has been developed to assist the Scouts in the many program areas that Camp Potomac offers. Eric Bruner will serve as Camp Director, with Rob Rephan, Program Director; John Smith, Business Manager, and Edgar Bucy, Health Officer.

The program staff is made-up of Pat Price, Field Sports Director assisted by Jim Dawson; Doug Minnich, Nature-Ecology Director with Mike Mester as his assistant; Rodney Smith, Scoutcraft Director with Tyler Brant as an Instructor. Reservations can still be made for the last week, July 23-29 by calling the Council Office. The first four camping weeks have no more vacancies for Troops.

Provisional Camping is still available each week. This program allows an individual scout to return for additional weeks after his troop has departed, or to attend when his unit could not participate. The provisional troop is directed by an adult scoutmaster who is a member of the camp staff. Provisional campers elect their own boy leaders and operate the same as all other troops in camp. Scouts may register by contacting Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The Potomac Council serves youth in Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland, and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy, and Grant Counties in West Virginia, and is a participating member of the County United Way.

Summer Safety . . .

Now that school is out and summer seems to have finally arrived here on the mountaintop, the annual Garrett County population explosion is underway. Because of this explosion, one item which should be foremost in all our minds is safety. As the number of people increases in a given area, so does the opportunity for accidents.

There are more children riding bicycles. There are more people walking along roadways. There are more people who are likely to run a stop sign. There are more children around lawn mowers. There are more persons who are likely to be under the influence and behind the wheel. There are more people operating boats and water skiing. There are more people to drop a cigarette on the carpet and start a fire. There is more work to be done in the fields and thus, a greater chance of farm accidents. There are more people breaking the speed limit. For the fool who passes on a blind curve, it is more likely that there will be someone coming the other way.

It was indeed a wise man (or woman) who said that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. No-fault accidents do occur and always will, regardless of safety. However, the majority of accidents are caused not by mechanical failure, physical difficulties or "acts of God." Most are caused by carelessness, by people doing things they shouldn't do and not doing things they should do.

Safety is, for the most part, common sense. It doesn't take a high degree of intelligence to utilize it.

Why spoil a fun summer with a senseless tragedy? It's abominable to risk one's own life foolishly, but it's criminal to risk the lives of others with the same foolishness.

Playhouse Begins Summer Season With Banquet

The Garrett County Playhouse will launch its twenty-fourth season with a benefit dinner at Will o' the Wisp on Monday, July 3, at 7:30 p.m. Following the dinner, theatre patrons will be treated to a cabaret entertainment featuring members of the acting company as well as fine performers who are donating their skills to the theatre cause — notably Doug Fleharty, an accomplished guitarist.

Tickets for the theatre benefit may be obtained by sending a check in the amount of twenty-five dollars per person to Garrett County Playhouse, PO Box 304, Oakland or by contacting Gene Yell.

Proceeds from the benefit will maintain the Playhouse, thereby preserving summer theatre in Garrett County. Deadline for reservations is June 26.

Residents Protest Placing Dumpsters At Whiteface Farm

A delegation of five county residents appeared before the Board of County Commissioners at Monday's meeting to protest the placing of the trash dumpsters on the Whiteface Farm at McHenry.

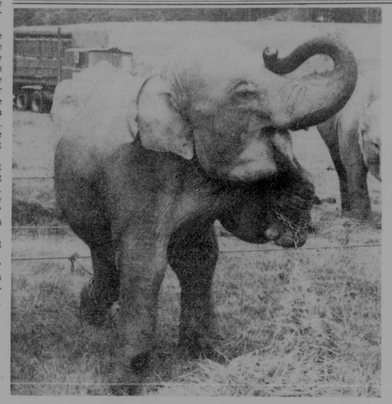
The five voiced valid complaints concerning problems which might be caused by the transfer of the dumpsters from Route 219 to the farm. Many more complaints over the placement of the unsightly trash containers near the scenic overlook have been received, however, and the containers will be moved to the Whiteface Farm within a week or ten days.

Edgar Harman met with the commissioners to discuss testimony given at the Deep Creek Lake sewage ordinance hearing. Mr. Harman had consolidated testimony and the Board will make a few changes in the proposal before reviewing the ordinance again on Monday. Another public hearing will be held on the revised ordinance in July.

Three names were submitted to Acting Governor Blair Lee III's office as possible replacements for Lee Hunter who resigned from the Assessment Appeals Board. Roy Gearhart and Dorothy Leuba were suggested for the vacancy by the Board, with Bernard Guy as a possible alternate.

Playhouse Begins Construction Plan For 219 Bridge Receives Approval

The State Highway Administration has received location approval from the federal Department of Transportation to construct a new bridge and approach roads carrying U. S. Route 219 over Deep Creek Lake.



The project begins on existing Route 219 approximately 1,500 feet north of the existing bridge over the lake. The alignment then continues to the east side of the existing highway.

Access will be provided at Rock Lodge Road and old U. S. Route 219 by reconstructing the existing highway and bridge to the south shore of the lake. Access will be provided to the rental cabins, boat ramps and commercial businesses along Route 219 north of the existing bridge.

After crossing to the south shore, the road project ties into the existing highway at the intersection with Lake Shore Drive. The project will end at Leo Friend Road.

The SHA said it plans two 12-foot lanes with 10-foot wide shoulders and 29-foot safety grading on each side. A 10-foot wide bike/walkway will also be provided.

The combined location/design public hearing transcript and "final negative declaration" submitted to the federal government in support of the project location are available for public inspection until June 23. The documents may be seen at the SHA office at 403 South 8th Street, Oakland, or at the Ruth Enlow Library, Second Street, Oakland.

THREE TONS OF HAM — Ramo, the Indian elephant enjoyed "hamming" it up for our photographer. He is part of the largest circus troupe of elephants in the world and is owned by the Carson and Barnes Circus. Ramo and his friends eat seven bales of hay twice a day and are trained to help erect the huge canvas tent that houses the performances. The circus appeared at the Wisp Ski Area Friday under the sponsorship of the Ali Ghan Shrine Temple and the Oakland Harige Unit. (See feature on page 12).

Man Found Shot In Bittinger Silo

A West Virginia man who was found shot in the head near Bittinger last Thursday remains unconscious at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland.

Dennis James Evans, 23, of Burlington, W. Va., was discovered last Thursday afternoon in a silo on the Nayburlee Farm on Rock Lodge Road.

Ray C. McCrobie, owner of the farm, had hired Mt. State Harvester, Inc. to do welding on his silo and Evans was sent to do the job. McCrobie had left Evans about 9 a.m. when he was beginning to work on the silo and when McCrobie returned about 3:30 p.m. he found the man lying on his back on the floor of the silo, unconscious and bleeding from his head. A gun was discovered and one shot had been fired from it.

The Northern Rescue Squad transported Evans to the hospital. State Police are currently investigating the incident and are holding the gun and discharged bullet.

Board Will Try To Bid Grantsville, Dennett Road Projects Together

The Garrett County Board of Education has decided to try to bid the new Grantsville Elementary School and Dennett Road School renovation project as a combined project with both prevailing and non-prevailing wage rates on both.

The board decided to bid both the projects together in hopes of getting a large contractor to do both jobs at once. George Bushey, architect for the Dennett Road project, had told the Board the Dennett Road renovation appears to be "too big for the small contractors and too small for the big contractors."

The decision was made at the June 8 meeting of the Board in Oakland. The group also decided to place a relocatable building on the Crellin Elementary School site.

In other action, the members began moving toward centralization of the county cafeteria program, to reduce the amount of local and state general funding required to operate the program. Pros and cons of the move had been discussed by the Board from time to time, and the members felt that now was the time to start the centralization project. Principals, cafeteria manager and employes have been notified by the superintendent of schools, Dr. William Buser, of the proposed change.

At the June meeting, the board authorized J. Prentiss Browne, the school's architect, to go to the State Interagency Committee for School Construction with the construction drawings for the Grantsville school, the third phase for the project.

The school was first planned in 1972, but the two previous stages, schematic and design development drawings, were held up at the state level.

The effect of the delays is making the building so expensive that construction costs exceed the state allocation. The state allocates construction funds based on the number of students it will serve and the cost per square foot for construction.

Grantsville is designed to accommodate 360 students, at $57 per square foot, and the state has earmarked $1.8 million for the project.

Browne had told the board members at their meeting that the building, as designed, would cost more than that. To keep the cost down, the architect said he had eliminated curbing on the parking lot, reduced the slope of the roof and developed a list of alternates.

Once the IAC approves the construction drawings, the project can then go out on bid. Now, however, the earliest the Grantsville school could open is January 1980.

Renovation for the Dennett Road Elementary School has been held up because the board rejected the only bid on that project, which came in 50 percent higher than the state allowed.

The next school planned for this county will be in Accident, which could leave three empty elementary schools in northern Garrett County within the next five years.

Jury Selection Slated Today In Open Court For Leuschner Trial

Ellwood L. Leuschner will be tried in separate trials in the murders of two young Salisbury boys, according to a ruling Tuesday by Judge Fred A. Thayer of Garrett County Circuit Court.

Initial proceedings were held Monday and Tuesday behind closed doors to avert additional pretrial publicity. Jury selection is scheduled today, and the trial will also be opened to the public today. Twelve jurors and two alternates will be chosen from a panel of 60 candidates.

Leuschner, a California fugitive, is charged with the murders and sexual molestations of two young Salisbury boys and has pleaded innocent to the charges by reason of insanity.

The trial was moved here from Wicomico County Circuit Court because of excessive pretrial publicity in the Salisbury area.

He will be tried first for the stabbing murder of nine-year-old William (Rusty) Marine, on charges of first degree murder, sodomy and kidnapping. Leuschner lived next door to the Marine family in a trailer park.

He faces similar charges in the death of Troy Krause, 10, who disappeared last June. Krause's body was found in October on a farm ten miles northwest of Salisbury. Shortly after that, the investigating police found the body of Marine buried nearby.

The defendant, a former employee of a Salisbury food processing plant, has been found sane and competent to stand trial by a team of doctors at Clifton T. Perkins state Hospital.

Oakland Mayor Proclaims July 16-22 Welcome Wagon Week

Oakland's Mayor H. D. Swartzentruber signed a proclamation Thursday declaring the week of July 16-22 Welcome Wagon Week in his town. Pictured with the mayor is Helen Kahl, local representative.

This July, the organization will be 50 years old, and is planning a celebration in its headquarters in Memphis, Tennessee and in the 4,500 communities coast to coast where the organization is active.

Founded by a Memphis advertising executive, Welcome Wagon employs a national network of community representatives who welcome newcomers and introduce them to local civic groups and businesses. Currently, Welcome Wagon has also begun greeting new parents, newly engaged couples and college freshmen.

Assisting Mrs. Kahl in making calls on newcomers is Mrs. Celene Trickett. At each visit, they present a packet of civic and community information, including a Maryland map, Promotion Council booklet, and change of address cards.

They also bring gifts from local businesses, which include locally, A. D. Naylor Co., Durst Funeral Home, Family Shoe Store, Jan Florists, Stewart Funeral Home, Kight's Insurance, Oak-Mar Motel and Restaurant, Proudfoot's Oakland Pharmacy, Rolyans, Brownings Foodland, Gregg's Pharmacy, Healthland, Miller's Market, Dee Ann's, and the First National Bank. The Republican sends each new family a paper.

Anyone may request a Welcome Wagon call for themselves or for a friend by contacting Helen Kahl at 334-2438.

Penn Alps Plans July Summerfest

After 20 years of teaching, demonstrating, and marketing area crafts, Penn Alps is initiating a mid-summer arts and crafts festival July 13-15 to share with area residents the work of some 40 artisans, a sampling of the many crafts produced by some 1,200 Penn Alps clients of the tri-state area.

SHA Sets Hearing On 560 Relocation

The State Highway Administration will hold a public hearing August 3 to discuss plans for relocating and improving a portion of State Route 560 in this county.

The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of Southern High School, Oakland. Beginning June 28, the draft negative environmental declaration and maps will be available for public inspection at the SHA offices in LaVale and Oakland and at Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland.

The proposed improvement would relocate Route 560 in the vicinity of Loch Lynn Heights and provide a grade separation with the B & O Railroad. The section of existing route proposed to be relocated extends between Garrett Road and Route 135, along Third Avenue and Paull Street, a distance of about a half-mile.

Construction is planned during the SHA's 1979-83 consolidated transportation program.

During the public hearing, the project planning team will acquaint those in attendance with the engineering, social, economic and environmental impacts of alternatives that have been evaluated, including the "no build" alternate.

Tentative schedules for right of way acquisition and construction will be discussed and information regarding relocation assistance programs explained.

Campers May Use Primitive State Forest Sites

Summer campers seeking a low density primitive outdoor experience will find it in four of Maryland's state forests. Camping is offered in Potomac-Garrett State Forest and Savage River State Forest in Garrett County; in Green Ridge State Forest in Allegany County, and Elk Neck State Forest in Cecil County.

Primitive camping, in designated areas and by permit only, makes use of the forests in their natural condition with few, if any, facilities or conveniences. Primitive camping is the type most compatible with the concepts of state forest management. Permits are available free at the headquarters of each state forest offering camping.

According to Maryland Forest Service Deputy Director Tunis Lyon, camping regulations are enforced on state forest lands to ensure campers a quiet, safe and clean environment. All campers must have a permit and check-in and set up camp before 11 p.m. Quiet time in the state forests will be from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. No pets are allowed in developed camping areas. Fires are not permitted without written permission from a forest officer. Forest regulations are posted at each state forest.

The Maryland Forest Service, while protecting forest resources, strives to provide a quality camping experience for state forest visitors.

New Grant Announced By Office Of Aging

A new grant of $600,795 has been awarded to Maryland's Office on Aging by the Federal Administration on Aging. The grant is for the acquisition, alteration or renovation of facilities for use as multi-purpose senior centers for the elderly, according to an announcement today by Dr. Matthew Tayback, State Director on Aging. The grant was awarded under Title V of the Older Americans Act.

Dr. Tayback explained that a multipurpose senior center is a community facility which provides a wide range of services to the elderly, ranging from health, recreation and transportation to social services.

The director noted that the grant funds have been allocated to local units on aging throughout the State including Western, Central and Southern Maryland, the Upper and Lower Eastern Shore, Baltimore City and Montgomery and Prince George's counties. He explained that these local units are largely responsible for determining how the Federal funds can best be used in their respective areas.

In a related matter, the State Director on Aging went on to explain that a new bond issue in Maryland of $600,000 will fund senior center improvements. The passage of House Bill 964 by the 1978 General Assembly authorized the bond issue which is not connected with the Federal grant. Funds awarded as a result of this State Bond issue will be used solely for the conversion of surplus elementary schools into senior centers.

Energy Pinch On Retirees Topic Of Aging Committee

Citing the vulnerability of senior citizens to higher fuel costs, Rep. Goodloe Byron last week presented several hundred letters from Central and Western Maryland retirees to the Select Committee on Aging which is currently holding hearings on the effects of energy costs on older Americans. The letters are in response to a recent appeal by Byron to area senior citizens in which he requested suggestions on ways the government can assist in easing the financial strain of paying high utility bills.

Anti-inflation programs, tax credits, senior citizen discounts and direct government subsidies were among the recommended ideas, according to the 6th District Congressman who hopes the outpouring of opinions will lead to legislation to aid the elderly.

Byron presented the letters personally to Chairman Claude Pepper noting that "retired individuals living on a fixed income cannot absorb higher fuel costs, they have less savings to make the necessary home improvements, and are generally more vulnerable to the rising utility rate squeeze."

"Increasing energy costs are taking a larger portion of the budgets of senior citizens to the point that many elderly have to make the cruel choices between warmth or food.

"Although energy conservation is a goal toward which we all must strive, we have to make a special effort to maintain the older person's environment safe for his or her minimum physical needs."

Judge Thayer Grants New Trial

Associate Judge Fred A. Thayer has granted a new trial for Leslie Norman Kyle, Barton, who was found guilty of the New Year's Day, 1974 murder of his wife and was subsequently sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Judge Thayer filed the order for a new trial in Allegany County Circuit Court where Kyle's petition for post-conviction relief was heard recently.

The new trial was granted because Judge Thayer said Judge James S. Getty erred in his instructions to the jury by placing an unconstitutional burden on the defendant, who claimed the shooting of his wife was accidental.

Judge Thayer said the jury was instructed six times as to the defendant's presumption of innocence, and that the state had to prove his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Last Saturday I received report cards for my four children in the mail (separate envelopes). Looking at the postmarks, I noted that the Board of Education mailed these report cards the same day (Friday) that my children were completing their school year. I cannot understand why these report cards were mailed when the children were in school that same day.

This may appear to be a trivial complaint on first glance, but the Garrett County school system has approximately 5,700 enrolees and the total postage bill for mailing these report cards exceeds $850. I have been reading press releases from the school board claiming that the board has insufficient funds for field trips, salary increases, etc. but this seemingly useless postage bill would have provided an adequate salary increase for two employees of the Board of Education or a memorable field trip for many students.

Exactly what does the Board of Education regard as essential vs. non-essential?

Sincerely,
Pat Glover,
Friendsville, Md.

Editor:

This in in reference to a statement in last week's issue under the heading "Commissioners questioned about County Budget".

I was one of the members of the Taypayers' Association at the meeting. I believe our questions and our comments indicated that we were, and are still, in sharp disagreement with the proposed increases in the Budget. We were disgusted with Mr. Edwards' attempted explanations.

We called attention to the fact that they are making large increases in almost every facet of our County Government at a time when they should be reducing the costs. We mentioned that this budget provides for a total increase of more than $850,000 over their previous budget. We called attention to their big contingent fund which is not much different from a slush fund and to the item of $304,499 under "Miscellaneous". These two items alone amount to more than a HALF MILLION DOLLARS.

We objected to having them spend more county money to buy land for so-called industrial parks, like up at Crellin, and like they have done at Accident. To buy the land at Accident and establish a small building on it they expended $300,000. Any person with good judgement will tell you that 10 acres of land with a small building such as the one that was constructed for a factory should not have cost more than one third of $300,000.

Our County needs industry that is self-supporting. An industry that cannot finance itself and has to depend upon our taxpayers to buy its ground and construct the facilities to get into business will likely turn out to be a liability instead of an asset.

Garrett County Taxpayers' Association
Hubert Friend, President

To Citizens of Garrett County:

My year in Oakland is now close to an end. I would like for everyone to know how much I enjoyed my stay here and I certainly would be ready to do a second year among the community but unfortunately that is impossible. It is for me a good opportunity to thank all the persons from the area who helped me and made my stay greater.

I learned how to live like an American teenager and I am certainly grateful of all the possibilities I had.

I do hope the American Field Service will always have its place in Oakland and will make next year's exchange student as welcome as you have made me. My American family is having a covered dish farewell picnic the 25th of June at 4 p.m. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

Thanks so much to all of you. I will miss Oakland (but I do hope to come back).

Love,
LoLo Carrette

Sir:

Somewhere in a schoolroom today under the care of an unknown teacher is a child, who, in his own time, grown to maturity, will lead the world. The affection planted in that child's life by wise guidance; the sense of right values with which he is constantly surrounded; the integrity and initiative that are fostered in his unfolding life will come to fruition in a mighty service to the human race.

The faith of the teacher — as he looks into eager faces of youth, is the hope of tomorrow, a hope that cannnot fail. Almost everyone, it would seem, has his own ideas on the care and counsel of our children. For some, the process does not mean much more than providing the physical necessities — if that. For others, it means minutely prescribing everything. Both are questionable extremes. The shaping of the thoughts and characters and lives of children should not be left too much to chance. It isn't possible for us to insulate them from all unlooked-for influences, nor, perhaps, would it always be desirable. But where we can counsel and safeguard and wisely control, we have an obligation to do so. We have an obligation to be ever alert to all that pertains to our children. And the less of this we leave to chance, the more we fill their lives with the right things, the less room there will be for the wrong things. We as parents and past officers of the Dennett Road P.T.A. for 1977-78 feel that our children have been subjected to the important tools for a good education and a good start in life. A special thanks to Clark Sharpless, principal, and to all of the fine teachers at Dennett Road. We feel it's been a very fine year.

Respectfully submitted,
Betsy Colaw, Secretary
P.T.A., Dennett Road School
1977-78

Sir:

On June 1 the U.S. House of Representatives, ignoring both public opinion and the Constitution, passed a bill to provide massive federal aid to parochial and private schools through a tuition tax credit scheme. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The tax credit plan would wreck our public schools, in the opinion of most experts, and divide our children along religious, class, ethnic, and other lines. Since it is being promoted largely by selfish sectarian special interests and politicians seeking sectarian block votes, the plan would entangle religion and government and poison the political waters with sectarianism.

The Supreme Court examined the tax credit plan in 1973 and pronounced it unconstitutional.

Since the plan provides massive federal aid for parochial and private schools whose students come from more affluent families on the average than public school families, and since public schools would get nothing from the plan, it is clearly a sort of "Robin Hood in reverse", taking from everybody to aid the relatively more affluent.

A poll of 40,000 voters in Maryland's Eighth Congressional District this spring showed the tax credit plan opposed 64% to 30% even more than the state parochial plan we defeated at the polls in 1974.

Concerned citizens would do well to let Senators Paul Sarbanes and Charles Mathias know that we Marylanders do not favor a plan that would undermine our basic values and democratic institutions.

Dear Editor:

Unfortunately, talking about other people is not limited to the gossip columns. All of us are confronted with the urge to pass on rumors. We may even qualify our rumors by saying we don't know if they're true. But by the time they're circulated, it doesn't matter. The fact that a person's reputation may be hurt means little. With something confidential to talk about, we can temporarily quiet that insatiable appetite that thrives on letting other know the "inside story."

No wonder the Bible describes the tongue as a member that no man can tame! So there's no point in gossiping about someone else's uncontrolled lips. Instead, we need to think about how much God hates an unloving and unruly mouth. We need to take a long, hard look at James 1:26: "If any man among you seems to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain." "The Words of a talebearer are like wounds,"—Proverbs 26:27.

In addition to the homestyle meals served in the four dining rooms of Penn Alps, there will be a concession stand near the Winterberg Log House to provide quick snacks and refreshments for those who do not want table service in the restaurant.

The grounds of Penn Alps lie almost in the shadow of the famous Stone Arch Bridge constructed over the Casselman in 1813 to accommodate canal boats they hoped to bring upstream from Cumberland.

One-Car Wreck Injures Driver

A one-car wreck resulted in the driver being taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, last Thursday.

Jeffrey Mark Eisingert, RD 1, Addison, was taken to the hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad following the 7:30 p.m. mishap on U. S. 40 just west of Zaner Road. Eisingert was westbound on Rt. 40 and while negotiating a left curve, ran off the right shoulder, swerved back to the left, crossed the road, struck an embankment and overturned. Tfc. R. C. Georg charged him with negligent driving.

The car of Michael D. Beck, RD 2, Oakland, was parked on G Street in Mt. Lake Park, partially on the roadway. An unknown vehicle apparently backed from the parking lot of El Lobo Restaurant onto G Street, struck the Beck car and left the scene. Tfc. L. C. Smith investigated the 11 p.m. accident last Friday.

One man apparently escaped injury when his car wrecked on U. S. 40 just east of Green Lantern road about 3:30 last Friday morning. James Andrew Sullivan, Frostburg, was westbound on Rt. 40 when, as the operator alleges, an eastbound unknown vehicle crossed the center line of the road forcing him to swerve sharply. Sullivan's vehicle then overturned on the roadway. Tfc. L. R. Rosage made no charges.

Errol C. Gibson, Pittsburgh, was driving north on U. S. 219 through Accident about 8 p.m. last Thursday. A 4-year-old child was playing on the sidewalk in front of his grandfather's home. The child threw a rock which struck the windshield of the Gibson car. Sgt. H. W. Graham investigated the incident.
